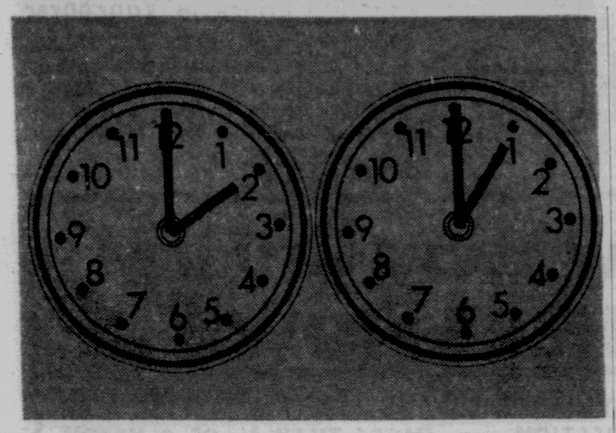
Nuclear Disarmament Parley Set By U.S., Russia To Start Nov. 17



SPRING FORWARD, FALL BACK

It's that time of the year again, folks — the time that most everyone except clock-freaks are confused about what time it is. Daylight saving time officially ends at 2 a.m. tomorrow and your clock goes back — repeat BACK — an hour. We suggest you turn the clock back before going to bed because getting up at 2 a.m. is kind of silly. And besides, tomorrow is going to be a long day.

Two Profs Call For Campus Revolution

By ALAN KORNFELD
I. J. Correspondent

BERKELEY—Herbert Marcuse, a leading philosopher of the New Left movement, and his prize pupil, Angela Davis, an avowed Communist, joined yesterday to urge a student revolt against the structure of higher education in California.

Some 5,000 students and teachers crowded into Sproul Plaza on the University of California campus to hear Marcuse and Miss Davis call Gov. Ronald Reagan and the U.C. Board of Regents "unscrupulous demagogues" for trying to fire Miss Davis from the University of California at Los Angeles faculty because of her political affiliations.

Marcusd urged the enthusiastic crowd to "ask for the resignation of the regents, who seem to insist that you obey the law, while they appear to have far less regard for the law."

A Los Angeles Superior Court judge has ruled that the firing of Miss Davis, a former philosophy student of Marcuse at

Petaluma Housing Picture Rated Better Than Marin

Southern Sonoma in general and Petaluma in particular are areas where minority groups will eventually break through housing barriers but Marin County remains a question mark, a leading urban planner told an all-day workshop on housing problems in Marin County today.

Lawrence Livingston Jr., a planning consultant to the city of San Francisco, told more than 400 Marin County civic and government leaders that while Marin County is only a tiny part of the Bay Area minority housing problem, it is the furthest behind in answering living problems of the minorities.

Livingston, the keynote speaker of the workshop's morning session, traced the history of Bay Area housing back to its first problems when the Chinese arrived to work on the transcontinental railroad.

He said that Marin County's efforts towards conservation — large lot requirements and strict zoning—ended up actually as a barrier excluding all but the upper middle class and the rich.

"The workshop, at Dominican College, also was to include talks by numerous planning consultants and by Paul C. Zucker, Marin County planning director. The afternoon session was to be devoted to problem-solving brainstorming by discussion groups.

New Crisis: Lebanese Border Hit

BEIRUT (UPI) — About 300 "armed men" supported by armored cars, artillery and mortars crossed into Lebanon from Syria during the night and occupied a Lebanese area about two miles inside the border, Radio Lebanon announced today.

Antigovernment forces were reported to have seized control of half of the northern coastal city of Tripoli Lebanon's second biggest, in renewed fighting.

REVOLT URGED

Guerrilla leaders have called for the overthrow of the government of President Charles Helou because of the army crackdown on Arab commando bases on Lebanese territory used for strikes against Israel.

The official Lebanon Radio said the "armed men" from Syria occupied the village of Yanta, about 40 miles south of Beirut, and took up positions in the surrounding hills.

It said Lebanese army forces moved into positions in the area close to Yanta "in order to prevent this force from advancing further into Lebanese territory."

The infiltrating force, in addition to the 300 men, included 20 personnel carriers, eight military cars mounted with 120-mm mortars, five armored cars equipped with antiaircraft machine guns and three jeeps carrying 106-mm antitank guns, the Beirut radio said.

GUERRILLAS SEEN

UPI correspondent David Zenian earlier reported from the village of Yanta that it was in the hands of guerrillas wearing the badges of Al Assifa, the military arm of Al Fatah. He said they told him they entered the town about 1 a.m. and captured six Lebanese policemen.

Zenian said he talked to the

Helsinki, Finland, Is Site

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union will start their long-awaited talks on curbing their nuclear arms race in Helsinki, Finland, Nov. 17, the White House announced today.

In a one-sentence statement slated for simultaneous release in Washington and Moscow, the White House said:

"Confirming the agreement reached earlier to enter into negotiation on curbing the strategic arms race, the governments of the United States and USSR have agreed that specially-designated representatives of the United States and the Soviet Union will meet in Helsinki on Nov. 17, 1969, for preliminary discussion of the questions involved."

PHASE ONE

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler indicated the term "preliminary discussion" meant dealing with preliminary matters in getting into substantive negotiations. He described it as phase one of the talks, which are expected to go on for a longtime and deal with highly important disarmament issues.

Possibilities for accord between the two nuclear superpowers on limiting their race in multi-warhead missiles and in antimissile defense systems are items on which U.S. negotiators hope to place priority.

Ziegler disclosed that today's announcement followed a secret call at the White House last Monday by Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.

REPLY TO BID

The Soviet envoy brought the Kremlin's long-delayed reply to Nixon's bid last June 11 to get going on the so-called SALT-Strategic Arms Limitation Talks.

Ziegler noted that Gerard C. Smith, head of the U.S. Disarmament Agency, has been

San Franciscans Lash Hickel On Alcatraz

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Lonely Alcatraz Island suddenly has blossomed into the most popular parcel of land in the area.

Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel, yesterday ordered the National Park Service to survey the proportions of the former prison island and determine if a federal recreation area or monument is possible.

Hickel's move angered San Francisco Supervisor William Blake who was backing millionaire Lamar Hunt's designs for the land which include a "space age museum" and a period recreation of old San Francisco.

Blake said Hickel "knows we are negotiating for recreational and commercial development of the island. . . . With Hickel's mentality, we'll probably have an oil rig out there."

However, another supervisor, Robert Mendelsohn, was elated with Hickel's overture. Mendelsohn has opposed Hunt's interest in the island from the first proposal.

"Let me say this . . . it's great," Mendelsohn said. "I am glad to see the federal government help us solve this problem. I hope Alcatraz can be the first part of (an eventual) San Francisco Bay national park."

The federal government owns the famous "Rock" where a maximum security prison was located from 1934 to 1963. The

51 Reds Dead In Surprise Viet Battle

SAIGON (AP) — A five-hour fight started by a curious helicopter pilot turned out to be the biggest battle fought by American troops in nearly six weeks, the U.S. Command reported today.

Troops of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division killed 51 North Vietnamese soldiers during the fight yesterday in the Ho Bo Woods area 28 miles north of Saigon. Ten Americans were killed and 12 wounded. The U.S. troops called for air strikes.

The battle in a bomb-cratered abandoned plantation apparently came as a surprise to both the American troops and the North Vietnamese regulars holed up there.

The battle started when WO Kenneth Young, of Newport, Ohio, pilot of a helicopter gunship, spotted movement in one of the craters.

About 100 U.S. infantrymen were shuttled by helicopter to search the area. They drew fire which was suppressed by the helicopter gunships, and four more enemy bodies were found,

THE REAL MEANING OF CONSERVATION

Carrying large plastic bags, enthusiastic students from Edna Maguire School in Mill Valley spread out over Point Reyes National Seashore in a litter clean-up project designed to teach the real meaning of conservation. The youngsters worked all day Thursday and the three students who collected the most trash will be treated to lunch at a San Francisco restaurant by teachers Richard Tanguay and Steven F. Buffo.

Bay Area Space Held Vital To Pollution Prevention

Preserving the open space of San Francisco Bay is more important in the fight against pollution than increasing the flow of fresh water from the Sacramento River, a state water resources department official said yesterday.

The importance of the river flow is "misunderstood," John R. Teerink, deputy director of the department, told the Bay Region Water Problems Committee in a meeting at the Holiday Inn.

Teerink said some 200 agencies are currently dumping waste into the bay, creating a need for more oxygen — and the real oxygen generator is the surface area.

Projections indicate the waste problem will become steadily worse, with pollution from the North Bay expected to increase the most, he said.

The outflow of fresh Sacramento River water from the delta is important to keep salinity out of the interior of the bay, Teerink noted.

Teerink also commented on possible future sources of water for California, including importing from the Pacific Northwest and Canada, development of economic methods for desalinization, and waste water reclamation.

Fledgling Bonn Cabinet Keeps Promise To Hike Mark's Value

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The new West German government, in office less than a week, has increased the international exchange rate of the mark to combat inflation and keep the economic boom in check.

This means West Germans will get more for their currency when they go to another country. Before the revaluation it took four marks to get a dollar; now it will take 3.66. The new rate goes into effect Monday.

The 8.25 per cent increase, announced last night, should cause a drop in the country's large trade surplus and hold down rising domestic prices that the boom is pushing up.

For the American consumer, the revaluation means that West German goods will become more expensive. Volkswagen said raising the value of the mark may mean it will have to increase its prices. Ernst Leitz, the optical firm that makes the Leica camera, said its cameras will go up in price.

Economics Minister Karl Schiller announced the revaluation after a cabinet meeting. He said it was "a courageous but not a foolhardy step" and would bring stability to West German industry.

The move was taken by the country's new Social Democrat-led government, sworn into office Tuesday. It ended months of wrangling between the Social Democrats and the Christian Democrats, who refused to go along with a revaluation as long as they led the government.

A revaluation had been certain since the old government freed the mark Sept. 29 from support by the central bank, leaving it to find its own level. It traded freely at 7.3 per cent more than its official rate, but Schiller said even this increase did not reflect the currency's true strength.

In Washington, the U.S. Treasury Department welcomed the mark's revaluation, saying it "should resolve in a constructive manner the principal cause of uncertainty that has existed in the exchange markets."

Schiller warned that some segments of the economy may suffer.

The government decided to give subsidies to farmers, whose products now will become too expensive in their traditional markets in neighboring countries. The government also plans to keep an eye on weak industries that might suffer, Schiller said.

Finance and agricultural ministers of the European Common Market countries will meet in Luxembourg Monday to decide on measures to protect West German farmers from cheap imported food as a result of the revaluation.

Reagan In New Attack On Moratorium Supporters

DENVER (AP) — Supporters of the Vietnam War Moratorium are like "those who would kibitz in a game in which they haven't even seen the cards," Gov. Ronald Reagan said last night.

"Somewhere a young American now alive will die in an enemy attack geared to produce more activity in our streets where the enemy hopes to win that which he can never win the rice paddies and jungles of his own land," the Republican governor said.

"Those who parade, those who invoke the names of our honored dead in their noisy protests would have the game without the name. But they cannot escape the ugly truth - they would lend comfort and aid to the enemy."

Reagan wound up a week-long speaking trip with a speech to a Republican fund-raising dinner in Denver.

His remarks against the anti-war demonstrations were in a prepared text.

Reagan said that although a Democratic administration was in office during eight years of the Vietnam War, it has "in the short course of nine months become Nixon's war, and our political opponents are wide - eyed with shock and horror that he ever let such a war happen."

He said Nixon is the man who could gain the most politically from an end to the war.

"But a president must weigh the price of peace," he said. "And sometimes that price is more than free men can pay. The price of an enemy peace could mean a thousand years of darkness for generations yet unborn."

Chicago Trial Lawyer Goes To Red Talks

CHICAGO (AP) — Two defendants in the Chicago conspiracy trial who were refused permission to go to Paris for talks with North Vietnamese delegates concerning possible release of U.S. prisoners of war have designated their attorney to go instead.

A telegram from Xuan Oanh, a North Vietnamese delegate to the Paris peace talks, was received yesterday. It invited David T. Dellinger, 54, and Rennard C. "Rennie" Davis, 29, to meet in Paris with North Vietnamese negotiators over the weekend.

A motion by William M. Kunstler, defense attorney, that the two be allowed to leave the jurisdiction of U.S. District Court during the weekend recess of their trial was denied.

Judge Julius J. Hoffman rejected the motion and the U.S. 7th Circuit Court of Appeals upheld his decision when the ruling was appealed by the defense.

Kunstler left Chicago late Friday for Paris to take the place of Dellinger and Davis.

Clergyman Accused Of Keeping New York Harem

NEW YORK (UPI) — A self-styled minister, who allegedly has kept eight common-law wives and 60 children in the rectory of his Brooklyn church, yesterday was sued for custody of eight of the youngsters hy their mother.

Miss Betty Davis, 39, who has reportedly lived for 10 years at St. John's Church, filed the suit in Brooklyn supreme court against De Vernon Legrand.

The woman claimed she fled from the church Oct. 20, but that she left behind her eight children, ranging in age from 12 to one year.

She said Legrand was the father of seven of the eight youngsters.

Miss Davis said Legrand had kept her and the other women locked in the home and would let them out only to solicit contributions on the street. She contended that Legrand would hold the children hostage while their mothers, who dress in nuns' habits, solicited funds.

The women bring in as much as $100-a-day each, but never get any of the funds, she said.

Legrand has been charged with kidnaping by another of the women who lived with him.

A previous kidnaping charge was brought against him last year by another woman, who is a British citizen, but the complaint later was dropped when Legrand married her.

Miss Davis said yet another woman escaped the same night she did, taking her six children with her.

Legrand has reportedly fathered almost all of the children living in the church.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Auto Cost Up

NEW YOUK (UPI) — The retail price of German cars in the U. S. will increase due to the revaulation of the mark, two auto manufacturers hinted yesterday.

Volkswagen of America Inc. and Mercedes-Benz of North America Inc. said the impact of the 8.5 per cent hike in the German mark will first have to be studied, but that higher price tags were somewhat more than likely.

Volkswagen, whose prices increased 2.18 per cent Oct. 9 when the mark's value rose on international currency markets, said the revaluation "necessitates a review of our pricing policy and may mean an increase in suggested retail prices."

Water Unsafe

WASHINGTON (AP) — One-third to one-half of America's drinking water does not meet U.S. Public Health Service standards, a student conservation leader told a national conference on health and environment here Friday.

David Sachs, a third-year medical student at Stanford University and co-chairman of the Student American Medical Association committee on national priorities, said findings were based on analysis of Public Health Service data over the past five years.

"The potential threat of water-borne epidenics has been increasing steadily as municipal water supplies are forced to serve a population two to three times that for which they were designed," Sachs said.

Russ Free Britons

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government today freed two young Britons in the Brooke-Cohen spy deal and flew them to London.

named to lead the U.S. negotiating team at the talks.

The announcement in Moscow came shortly after Washington's. A spokesman for the Soviet Foreign Ministry told newsmen in Moscow he was not authorized to say who would participate for the Soviet side in the talks or to elaborate in any way on the announcement.

Helsinki is 560 miles northwest of Moscow and is the nearest Western capital.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers made these further points later at a news conference:

He expects the preliminary discussions at Helsinki will last several days, perhaps a few weeks, with the two sides working out such details as of what size the delegations should be and whether there should be a formal agenda.

Helsinki, along with Geneva and Vienna, have been proposed by the United States for the preliminary discussions. The permanent site is one item to be decided upon at the Helsinki talks.

There is no intent to hold a summit meeting between Nixon and Soviet President Alexi N. Kosygin in connection with the opening of the next phase of the talks.

The disarmament negotiations could turn out to be among the most important negotiations in U.S. history. However, one cannot tell yet how long the talks will take or how they will come out. "The start of the talks themselves does not mean success of the talks," he said.

A halt in multiple-warhead rocket production is one of the subjects which will be considered when the U.S.-Soviet negotiations start in on substantive issues.

Rogers believes the Soviets are "serious about these talks . . . Their attitude was about the same as ours. It is a realistic attitude."

He expects that an agreement would be in treaty form, through he would not rule out some other, more limited types of agreements resulting from the talks.

The United States will keep its allies and Congress informed on the progress of the talks. However the U.S. government does not intend to make public what is going on inside the negotiating room. Privacy is needed in the course of the discussions to achieve the best chance of their success.

The disarmament talks are not contingent on good or bad occurrences elsewhere in the world. As for the impact of the Big Two talks on the international atmosphere, they should tend to improve the atmosphere "but we shouldn't be euphoric about it."

an Army spokesman said.

The Americans had not moved very far, however, when they came under heavy fire. Artillery and air strikes were called in. A second company arrived to reinforce the first, and after a 30-minute barrage the infantrymen moved out again for what they thought would be a routine sweep.

They didn't know they were invading what was later determined to be the supply and assembly point for the 268th North Vietnamese Regiment.

Fairfax Area Crash Kills One Motorist

A San Francisco man was killed and three other persons injured early today when their car plunged over a 150-foot embankment on the Bolinas-Fairfax Road near the Meadow Club, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Dead was Robert L. Davis, 20, who was driving the car which went off the embankment after it rounded a curve too fast. Davis, who was pinned in the car, was the 30th traffic fatality in Marin County this year, compared with 27 at this time a year ago.

Treated at Marin General Hospital were James W. Randall, 21, of 81 Elm Avenue, Larkspur, for bruises on the left hand and a broken nose; Carlton L. Bonham III, 21, of Santa Clara, for a cut scalp; and Serena Baker, 16, of 40 Diane Lane, Larkspur, for a bruised shoulder.

A fourth passenger was not injured in the 12:20 a.m. wreck, the patrol said.

Poverty War Speeds Family Planning

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Office of Economic Opportunity has boosted by $7 million the amount it will spend this year in its war against the population explosion.

OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld announced yesterday that the federal antipoverty agency will spend $22 million in the year ending next June 30 to provide family planning services to millions of women who have not had previous help in limiting the number of their children.

Bolivians Promise Payment On Oil

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Bolivia's military junta says it will compensate Gulf Oil Co. for its nationalized Bolivian subsidiary but will not negotiate with the company on the amount to be paid.

Mining and Oil Minister Marcelo Quiroga said at a news conference last night that "no negotiations will be set up either with the company or any other institution," and that the government "will not tolerate any pressure to favor the company in prejudice of the state's interests."

Pollution Warning Sounded In Canada

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau says Canada is determined to keep man's pollution problems from the virgin Arctic.

A statement, delivered yesterday in the House of Commons, indicates Trudeau also said he will not bow to "pressures of any state" and invited the international community to support Canada's initiative "for a new concept — an international legal regime designed to ensure to human beings the right to live in a wholesome natural environment."

guerrilla leader, who declined to give his name, but was dressed like the others in khaki army fatigues and forage caps of Arab commando forces.

Zenian said the guerrillas almost all spoke with Palestinian accents and apparently were not members of the Syrian regular army as earlier reports had suggested.

Reports reaching Beirut from Tripoli said Palestinian refugees and commando sympathizers had captured the entire "Old City".

At least eight persons were reported killed and 14 wounded in fighting in Tripoli yesterday and today.

Elsewhere in the Mideast, Israeli war planes today bombed the suburbs of Amman in their closets strikes to the capital of Jordan since the 1967 Middle East War. Egypt reported its bombers attacked Israeli troops in the occupied Sinai Peninsula for the second consecutive day.

Israel reported its planes struck on two fronts during the day—hitting a suspected Arab guerrilla base near As Salt, 15 miles northwest of Amman, and Egyptian "military objectives" in the northern sector of the Suez Canal. A spokesman said all of the planes returned safely.

Zodiac Victim Unsure Of Calls

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A survivor of an attack by a killer who calls himself Zodiac does not think Zodiac is the same man who called a television talk show to talk to attorney Melvin Belli.

Bryan Hartnell, a pre-law student who talked to Zodiac for a half hour before being critically stabbed, listened to tapes of the television program Wednesday and again yesterday.

He said he could not be sure whether the voice was the same, but commented that when the voice told Belli "I've got to kill," it seemed younger and more excitable than Zodiac.

Teen-Ager Hurt In Crash

Daniel Hendrix Smith, 14, of 55 Bridge Road, Black Point, was injured yesterday when his car rounded a curve too fast, swerved to avoid hitting another car and hit an embankment near Novato, the California Highway Patrol said.

He was treated at Novato General Hospital for undetermined injuries.

The accident was on Crest Road near Harbor Road and Highway 37.

government had offered to sell the island to San Francisco. But any sale now will be delayed until at least Dec. 1 — the Interior Department's deadline to complete the survey.

The city's supervisors had given tentative approval of the Hunt plan but a San Francisco dressmaker, Alvin Duskin, whipped up a storm of protest with an ad calling the oil heir's proposal "the biggest steal since Manhattan Island."

Coupons, included in the ad, were clipped out by residents and sent by the thousands to the supervisors and Mayor Joseph L. Alioto. Hickel's office said the secretary had also received 8,000 protests against the Hunt plan and the General Service Administration counted another 6,000.

Alioto said he spent three summers at Point Reyes, where his family had a small fishing station.

State College Fund Misuse Probe Slated

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A state Assemblyman said yesterday mismanagement of funds in the 19-campus state college system has been uncovered and that the Joint Legislative Audit Committee was undertaking a thorough study of all facets of the colleges.

Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro, chairman of the committee, made the announcement during a meeting of his group and the audit committee of the State College Board of Trustees.

Thomas said there has been mismanagement for several years, especially in the area of state college auxiliary funds.

The assemblyman said a staff of auditors specially trained in college management would look into foundation fund management, grading, the role of professors and teaching loads.

Glenn S. Dumke, chancellor of the 19-campus system, said he welcomed the investigation. Dumke said he had been assured that the "performance audit" would not be a "witchhunt."

Thomas voiced criticism of the recent report of misuse of funds at Sacramento State during the administration of Dr. Robert Johns. He said another example of the mismanagement of college funds was at San Francisco State where the student funds are now in receivership.

The legislator said the new laws not only would give college presidents power to control auxiliary funds but would require them to exercise that control.

Bike Mishap Injures Two

Two young boys were injured yesterday when their bicycle slammed into the side of a car on Murray Avenue near College Avenue in Kentfield, the California Highway Patrol said.

Treated at Marin General and Kaiser Foundation hospitals were Ronald Fearon, 8, of 4 Fern Road, for a cut on the head, and Kenneth Ojeda, 7, of 98 Briar Road, both Kentfield, for a bump and cut on the forehead.

The patrol said the Fearon youth's bicycle drove into the side of a car driven by Paula Harris, 23, of 92 Murray Avenue, Kentfield, 4:14 p.m.

When it is noon in Akron, Ohio, it is midnight in Bangkok, Thailand.

"They (the Regents) want to block your mind," Marcuse said. The elderly Marxist philosopher, author of "One Dimensional Man" and other books on social suppression of the individual, has himself been the target of repeated firing attempts.

Marcuse told the crowd, "This is not a victory celebration. On the contrary, the fight is just beginning against all those who want the university to be a training school for society, the security and prosperity of which is based on the enslavement of other people within and without the frontiers of the United States."

Bad Posture Adds Inches

"Bad posture can add from one to five inches to an individual's girth that dieting alone can never get rid of," states Marjorie Craig, author of the best-selling book "Miss Craig's 21-Day Shape-Up Program for Men and Women."

"One can give the appearance of being 10 pounds thinner simply by correcting bad posture."

To discover if you need posture work, Miss Craig offers this two-part test:

1. Stand the way you normally do, and while in this position, measure your waistline.

2. Now lift your shoulders, pulling them back as you pull your stomach in, and while standing in this corrected position, again measure your waistline.

If your waist is an inch or more smaller the second time you measure, incorrect posture is causing you to look thicker and fatter than you really are.

"The trick is to learn to hold yourself straight and tall naturally," Miss Craig explains.

SEW SIMPLE

Basting Keeps Lining Smooth

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I always have trouble lining a garment using the garment and lining pieces as one. Why do I get a ripple when the two have been basted together? What is the reason for this method which is shown so often in better tailored garments? Isn't it much neater to work each separately so that no raw seams show?

MRS. R.P.

DEAR MRS. R.P.:

There is quite a knack in basting two layers of fabric together and keeping them even enough to avoid the ripple you spoke of in your letter. The reason for treating the two as one layer is to give extra shaping and body to the garment fabric. If you really feel it is important to cover the seams you may add a separate finish lining.

For the best results in keeping two layers of fabric smooth, place the underlining smooth on a flat surface, place your garment fabric right side up over the underlining and baste the two together in two diagonal basting lines, beginning at one corner, basting across the fabric to the opposite diagonal corner, then do the same for the other corners. This will keep the two pieces smooth.

Next, baste through the center of all darts, this should be done from the wrong side of the underlining side. Last, hand baste around all the outer edges, bringing the underlining back a tiny bit so that it won't be stretched too tight.

The worst thing that can happen is to pull the underlining tighter than the garment fabric, better to have a little extra give in the lining. I think if you will follow these instructions carefully, your problems will be solved. This is a rather time consuming job but does pay off in the finished results.

DEAR EUNICE,

I am making a double-breasted winter suit with six buttons, and the pattern calls for a double row of buttons and a single row of buttonholes. Would the finished jacket look better if I made six buttonholes? I am using covered buttons if you think they would look all right.

MRS. S.T.T.

DEAR MRS. S.T.T.:

Most patterns for double-breasted garments only call for one row of buttonholes, the underside of the garment is kept in place with a snap of hook and eye. Once in awhile you will find a European designer who wants you to make the double set of buttonholes.

As to the covered buttons, I think your garment will look much better if you would use a decorative button. Buttons today are not used for strictly functional purposes, but they are the important accent to your garment. They should be treated as an accessory and can really make your garment if the effect is right.

DEAR EUNICE,

My daughter will be married just after the holidays, and I have offered to make the dresses for the bridesmaids. We have spent a lot of time looking through the pattern books and can't find the kind of patterns that are shown in the brides magazines. Why don't they pattern companies have more patterns for weddings?

MRS. C.W.T.

They have explained to me that patterns are designed according to the demand. Perhaps if there were more complaints along this line, you would find more of these patterns.

I would suggest you choose any kind of pattern that you would like and simply extend the skirt full length. Often a dress that is pictured in the long version looks perfect in a shorter version, and the reverse of this would be true also. Try to get your ideas from the brides magazines, and then perhaps you will have to combine two patterns for the desired effect. Above all keep the bridesmaids' dresses simple because you don't want to detract from the bride.

Mrs. Richard W. Mobley Elected By Volunteers

A charter member of the Volunteers for Marin Child Development Center, Mrs. Richard W. Mobley of San Rafael, is the auxiliary's newly elected president.

The dual purpose of the organization is to promote greater community understanding of the needs of the marginally handicapped young children and to raise funds that will allow additional services for the Marin Child Development Center in Tiburon, which operates a therapeutic program for marginally handicapped young children. The children enrolled at the center have failed to achieve their potential and present problems in social and learning integration.

Sandra Mobley has also served as treasurer of the two-year-old organization composed of mothers of children who have been or are presently enrolled in the center.

The volunteers' next fund raising event will be a theater party Nov. 1, when the Ross Valley Players will present "Don't Drink the Water," by Woody Allen, at the Barn at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. A rummage sale is planned in the spring.

Mrs. Mobley also belongs to the Sunny Hills Grape Booth Guild and the Oak View School Association. She is a graduate of Stanford University with a bachelor's degree in psychology. Skiing, gourmet cooking, bridge, music and reading are her hobbies.

Sandra and Richard, who is regional salesmanager for Acme General Corporation, have lived in Marin for nine years. They have three children: Scott, 7, Allison, 6, and Douglas, 2. The new president's greatest enjoyment is her family, and she enjoys family-oriented activities.

Other officers are Mmes. Jerry Walter, vice president; Philip Smith, recording secretary; Norman Miller, corresponding secretary; Jack Tallman, treasurer; Stanley Kane, publicity chairman; and Earl Bailey, entertainment chairman.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Average Students Suffer From Overcrowded Universities

DEAR HELEN:

I want to go to college. I have the grades for it. I have even the money for it, or at least the will to work my way through. But I can't find an opening in a college I can afford.

I'm not a genius, or an outstanding leader, or underprivileged. So there's no space for me. At our local state college, 1500 applicants were turned away this year. No room! It's this way all over the country, I hear. Average students who might benefit from higher education are losing out because universities haven't expanded to meet the demand. By the time there's room for me, it will be too late. This goes for thousands of other high school and junior college graduates. For 12 or 14 years we have worked toward something which, through no fault of our own, is now out of reach.

Why didn't our country's planners forsee this crisis and build fast enough to avoid it?— NO ROOM

DEAR NO:

Our country's wise planners foresaw but, sadly enough, they couldn't persuade the taxpayers in time. The present crisis may be a powerful persuader, but unless money for additional professors and temporary buildings is appropriated right now, it will be too late for those thousands of hoepfuls who can't wait two or three years to continue their education. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Hooray for parents who make family life fun, even if uptight neighbors think outdoor water fights, etc., are just too-o-ondignified. I'm sure glad we don't have neighbors like the ones described by "Should We or Shouldn't We Change."

If my grandmother had listened to such people, she might be in a rocking chair by now. She has 13 children, 27 grandchildren, and a life packed with enjoyment. She is pushing 60, but last year I saw her stand on her head and, what's more, it was on a soft chair which makes it all the harder. — FROM A FUN FAMILY

New Tiburon Senior Club Planned By Lutheran Women

By BETTY FROST

Plans for a senior citizen program on the Tiburon Peninsula are being formulated by the Daughters of the Shepherd of the Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church, Tiburon.

Fellowship Hall at the church, which has kitchen facilities and would lend itself to craft programs, will be used for the program, which is expected to begin in December.

Mrs. Robert Werner, chairman, said, "We wanted to give service to our community and one of the places we are terribly remiss is help for elderly people."

According to Mrs. John Radovitch, assistant chairman, the club for the aging will round out the church's community service program, which now includes the Little Lambs Nursery School, sponsorship of Cub Scout Pack 48, and Boy Scout Troop 48, as well as church-oriented activities for youth. The activities of the Luther League, for the high school age group, including ski trips and hikes, are open to all young people of the community, as is the Vacation Bible School, conducted two weeks each summer.

Until a year ago when the Marin City Senior Center was opened, no organized program was offered in Southern Marin. Four months ago Mill Valley started a club, under the joint sponsorship of the Homestead Valley Improvement Association and the Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission.

Is there a need for such a service on the Tiburon Peninsula? Edward T. Ryken, executive director of the Marin Senior Coordinating Council, says more than 120 people requesting the council's monthly newsletter are from the Tiburon-Belvedere area.

"Figures based upon the 1960 census and a subsequent projection indicate that there are 21,000 persons in Marin County over 65 years old," Ryken said. There are now 42 clubs for these older persons in the county, each with a program suited to its membership and under a variety of sponsors.

Ryken has been consulting with the Tiburon churchwomen, and has met with the Rev. Calvin G. Frisch, pastor of the Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church, and a committee of the women's group.

In the beginning, he explained, a simple program can be undertaken with the sponsoring organization providing the leadership. Later the senior club members usually take a larger share of responsibility.

The women indicate they are willing to assist those who need transportation to and from the semi-monthly meetings, serve refreshments, and "just be there if we are wanted."

The basic program being considered would offer movies, slides, guest speakers, discussions, book reviews, speakers from historical societies and museums, and other diversions drawing upon the resources of the community. To assist the new club, the Coordinating Council offers training sessions for the sponsors and a leadership workshop for the seniors.

The direction the Tiburon Senior Club will take will be determined by its own membership — whether it will concentrate on crafts, branch out into community service on its own, or become involved with trips and excursions. Here, Ryken indicated, additional community support might be helpful. "The aged come from all economic brackets," he indicated, "but those who are on limited retirement stipends usually participate in the less expensive programs and don't feel they can go on trips."

"In such clubs," he continued, "the isolation and loneliness of old age melts away. The seniors seem to reinforce one another."

Six Seeking Three Posts On Tam Fire Protection Board

(Fifth of eight articles)

The continued growth, modernization and professionalization of the Tamalpais Fire Protection District are the chief concerns of six candidates running for three seats on the district board.

Another major problem, candidates generally agree, is getting money to pay for what is needed and making sure the taxpayer gets the most for his money.

Voters in May rejected an $800,000 bond issue, which failed majority, that would have provided money to build a new Tam Valley fire station, install improved water mains and hydrants, buy two new fire trucks, remodel the Homestead Valley station and install a new alarm system.

Two of the six candidates are incumbents. In alphabetical order, they are:

ARTHUR LEONARD CREBASSA, 42, of 535 Midvale Way. He is a school teacher who also is a trustee of the Tamalpais Community Services District, a former director of the Tam Valley Sanitary District and for 14 years a volunteer fireman.

"I believe it is imperative that water and equipment should have the first priority and be attended to as quickly as possible," Crebassa said. "Immediate steps should also be implemented to make the present station 1 at least minimally livable for the men until methods of funding for a new or permanently improved fire station have been found."

Allen Ralph Howe, 33, of 230 Laverne Avenue, is a director of clinical laboratories in San Francisco and president of the Tamalpais volunteer firemen's association. He is also vice president-elect of the Marin County Association of fire departments.

WENDELL MARTEN JOOST JR., 28, of 507 Norther Avenue. A ship's clerk employed in San Francisco, Joost is the youngest of the candidates. He is a past president of the Tamalpais Volunteer Firemen's Association and a member of the California State Firemen's Association.

Noting he has pledged himself to providing the best fire protection at the lowest possible cost, Joost proposed a program of limited bonding for "urgently needed" water mains and equipment replacement along with a pay- as-you -go funding for a new main fire station.

He said this program coupled with closely supervised modern accounting procedures will provide for the needs of the "dynamic and fast growing" district.

BERNARD LENHART, an incumbent, of 313 Starling Court, recently retired after 32 years with the San Francisco Fire Department. He was a cost accountant before joining the department. He says the board needs "qualified, dedicated citizens with the time and ability to render good public service."

Lenhart adds: "Fire protection is my business. The Tam District is in a state of transition from volunteers to a professional department. In this transition, we've lost buildup in necessary equipment by trying to get by like a volunteer fire department. Our equipment and manning is not quite adequate. We are in a deplorable condition here and we're going to have to make good-sized purchases of equipment."

CARL H. MODELL, 51, of 403 Laverne Avenue. A musician with the San Francisco Symphony and a director of the Marin Symphony Guild, Modell is the other incumbent seeking reelection. He was chairman of the Homestead Valley Fire Protection District board in 1961 and was instrumental in its merger with Tam district in 1962. He has been chairman of the merger with Tam Valley Fire District in 1962. He was chairman of the board in 1965 and 1966 and is the current chairman.

Modell says he hopes to continue the growth and professionalization of the department which since 1960 has grown from two all volunteer fire departments to one combined department with 10 full-time firemen with three night duty firemen and over 250 standard hydrants plus substantial improvements to watermains and fire equipment.

JOHN FRANCIS WALKER, 40, of 431 Green Glen Way. An auditor with the Zurich Insurance Co. in San Francisco, Walker is a member of the Tam Valley Improvement Club. He says: "I wish to serve as commissioner because I believe that with my background in auditing and economics I can help bring financial responsibility to the fire board."

Hanoi, Peking Leaders Issue Peace Demands

TOKYO (AP) — The premiers of North Vietnam and Communist China issued a joint communique today emphasizing the will of "the entire Vietnamese people" to fight to final victory over "U.S. imperialism."

The communique by China's Chou En-lai and North Vietnam's Pham Van Dong said there could be a settlement of the war—but only if U.S. forces withdraw unconditionally from South Vietnam.

The communique, dated yesterday and broadcast today by Peking's official New China News Agency, did not say when Chou and Pham held their "cordial and friendly" talks. NCNA reported earlier that Pham and his delegation had arrived in Shanghai Friday from Peking, where they were seen off by Chou.

Telescope Talk

Dr. Bernard R. Dalton, a San Rafael dentist, will talk about "Fundamentals of Telescope Making for Beginners" at a meeting of Star Observers of Marin, an astronomy study group, at 8 p.m. Thursday at the community room, Ross Valley Savings and Loan Association, San Anselmo.

Orders Due For Concert Season

The fifth annual Marin County-San Francisco Symphony Concert series will offer five Thursday afternoon concerts with round-trip bus transportation provided to San Francisco.

Mrs. Thomas Drohan, president of the Marin Regional Council of the San Francisco Symphony Foundation, announced that subscription orders should be received by Monday.

The first concert on Dec. 4 will be an all-Beethoven program. Other dates and featured artists are: Jan. 22, Misha Dichter, pianist; Feb. 26, Seiji Ozawa, conductor, and Vladimir Ashkenazy, pianist; April 2, Henry Lewis, guest conductor, and Jeanne-Marie Dare, pianist; May 14, Stuart Canin, violinist.

First Aid Course Set At Terra Linda

The classes, to be held each Wednesday for six weeks from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., will be taught by George A. Walser, a volunteer instructor who also is Terra Linda fire chief.

Interested persons may enroll by calling the Red Cross chapter house in San Rafael.

FCC Announces New Rules For Cable Programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cable-TV will get its chance to show what it can do, but the Federal Communications Commission doesn't think regular network and local television broadcasters have to worry about being upstaged.

The commission announced new rules yesterday that require large cable systems to originate their own programs in competition with the networks and existing studios and guarantees the same right to smaller systems. The FCC also ruled cable TV operators will be allowed to present some paid commercials.

Specific rules are to be published next week and will take effect 30 days later.

The commission's top authority on cable TV says, however, that cable TV can't do its best against conventional broadcasters in the competition for viewers until some other issues are decided.

Perhaps the most crucial question, said Sol Schildhause, chief of the FCC's cable-TV task force, in a news conference, is that of allowing cable systems to bring signals from "distant" TV broadcasting stations into or near existing TV markets.

Another Student Draws Suspension

A fourth College of Marin student, Elena Badell, has been suspended for her part in the Oct. 16 fracas at the Marin Junior College District board meeting, Dean of Students Irwin P. Diamond announced yesterday.

The college said she had swept papers and materials off the board table as had two of the other suspended students.

Suspended Monday were Del Mar Jackson, Brigardo Groves and William Nason.

All four are still attending classes pending an appeal whose status grew ever cloudier through the week.

The Associated Students Executive Council voted Thursday to rescind its action Tuesday, in which it rejected the appeal procedure as not affording true due process. The council then named four students to the student conduct committee which is to hear the appeal.

The student government still maintains, however, that the committee should not act because the appeal procedure may be revamped.

Another executive council meeting was set for 1 p.m. Monday to discuss the student position on the conduct committee.

Meantime, the College Cabinet and the Academic Senate have also met to discuss the appeals procedure.

The student complaint is that the committee is a rubber stamp for the administration, student body secretary Melanie Annin said. She said a porposed change would send appeals from the committee to the College Cabinet instead of to Acting Supt. -Pres. Louis H. Herkenoff. The cabinet is composed of students, faculty and administration.

In another action Thursday, the executive council voted to halt all open forums in the college center until a council forum Tuesday to lay down rules for future forums. Some students have complained of being a captive audience for forums using the center's public address system.

Addict Faces Burglary Hearing

A preliminary hearing was set yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for an 18-year-old youth who said he had a $75-a-day heroin habit and who recently escaped from the Marin Community Mental Health Center.

James Anthony Gardner, of no known address, was returned to the Marin County Jail Thursday by Sausalito police. He is accused of burglarizing a Mill Valley residence Oct. 1 while out on bail awaiting trial on an earlier burglary charge.

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein said yesterday that Gardner was too ill from withdrawal symptoms to be brought to court.

New Jail Charge

Terry Perry, 22, of San Bruno, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a charge of possessing barbituates when he arrived to spend a weekend in Marin County Jail Aug. 16. His case was continued until Friday for entry of plea.

Judge Rules Arrest Of Teen-Ager Illegal

Charges of possessing marijuana and a device for smoking it were dismissed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Lee Alan Bramson, 20, of San Anselmo, when Judge Hadden W. Roth ruled that his arrest was illegal.

Bramson was arrested by Sausalito police Sept. 24 on suspicion of contributing to the delinquency of a minor when he and a 16-year-old girl refused to leave a parking lot. Police said they found quantity of marijuana and a pipe when they searched Bramson.

Leydecker Backing Unruh For Governor

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Byron W. Leydecker, president of the Redwood National Bank and former Marin supervisor, is a member of a group calling itself "Some Concerned Californians," which is backing Assemblyman Jess Unruh for governor.

Unruh is expected to announce his candidacy in January. A brochure mailed by the group yesterday is one of the first major appeals for public support for Unruh's expected candidacy. The group also includes actors, active and retired professional football players, legislators and journalists.

Tiburon Walkway Location Proposed

Tiburon park and recreation commissioners have recommended to the city council that a new walkway on Trestle Glen Boulevard be located on the west side adjacent to Belveron Gardens, according to Asst. City Mgr. Russell L. Melquist.

The commission, meeting Thursday night, also agreed to work with the school facilities and transportation committee of the Reed School District board in developing paths from neighborhoods to schools, Melquist said.

Cosmonaut's Son Dates U.S. Guide

ANAHEIM (AP) — A visit to Disneyland proved to be extra-special for Viktor Beregovoy, 19-year-old son of Soviet cosmonaut Georgy Beregovoy.

The young man met Kathy Birk, 20, a Russian-speaking hostess at the amusement park, Friday and promptly dated her up for a party in the evening at the home of actor Kirk Douglas.

Then it was arranged for Miss Birk to accompany the family to San Diego—another stop on the American tour by two Russian space travelers and their party. Part of her mission will be to explain professional football to Viktor when they attend the Chargers game tomorrow.

Kathy, born in Paris of Russian parents, calls it all "terribly exciting."

Other members of the Soviet group appeared to find the full day at Disneyland elating also.

"I feel 25 years younger," said Viktor's father, a major general.

Beregovoy and fellow cosmonaut Konstantin Feoktistov, a civilian scientist, went through at least a dozen rides and exhibits—including a make-believe moon voyage.

Although skies were cloudy, the Russians were in high spirits as they clowned with costumed comic strip characters and posed in Mickey Mouse hats.

Girl's Screams Halt Attempted Kidnapping

A beefy attacker grabbed a 14-year-old Sir Francis Drake High School student in an apparent kidnap attempt yesterday in San Anselmo, but fled when the girl screamed and fought.

San Anselmo police said the girl was walking along Fern Lane to the high school at 9:30 a.m. when she passed a car parked in a driveway.

The driver leaped out, took off his shirt and threw it over her head, trying to drag her into the car, police said. The girl screamed and kicked as she fell to the ground and the attacker tried to stuff the shirt in her mouth. Failing in that, he jumped into his car and sped away, peeling rubber and running over the girl's scattered lunch.

The victim ran into a house at 19 Fern Lane and called police, who were unable to find the attacker's car, according to Patrolman Bernard Del Santo.

A neighbor heard the girl's screams and saw the attacker drive off, but did not get his car's license. The car was described as a dark blue station wagon with a rack on top.

Del Santo said the attacker had "no connection whatever" with the Zodiac killer believed to have slain five persons in the Bay Area. The San Anselmo attacker had short black hair, was "very heavy" and was between six feet and six feet, two inches tall, Del Santo said.

Irate Speaker Denies Story, Will Run Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Speaker John W. McCormack emphatically denies he knew about or aided any influence peddling through his House office. And the 77-year-old Massachusetts Democrat—contrary to previous speculation—says he will seek not only another term as congressman but as speaker.

McCormack told newsmen yesterday that Life magazine made an unwarranted and malicious attack on him in reporting the speaker had let his office and influence be used by a friend and a staff member to seek favors from government officials.

The charges obviously triggered McCormack's decision to run again, thus avoiding any appearance of his quitting under fire.

"My conscience is absolutely clear," McCormack said.

Until the activities of Nathan Voloshen, a long-time McCormack friend, and Martin Sweig, the speaker's chief aide, were publicized it had been widely believed among House Democrats that McCormack would retire at the end of the 90th Congress in December 1970.

He will be 79 then, with 43 years of service in the House.

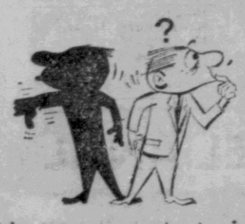
Thinking of Roofing?



Sometimes it is smarter to turn down the lowest bid.

Make sure your contractor is licensed by the State. It means he's insured (for your sake). He offers a 2-year guarantee and his men are trained, union help. He'll stand by his work. If the lowest bidder is a fly-by-night, he can not meet these standards.

Marin Nips Solano In Final Seconds

By DAVIS EINSTEIN

In fading twilight with 41 seconds remaining on the clock, quarterback Jim Peters dived one yard for a touchdown to give the College of Marin a 21 to 14 come-from-behind victory over Solano Junior College of Vallejo yesterday at Marin Catholic High School in Kentfield.

This one came hard. The Tars did not score until the final minute of the first half, after Solano had racked up two opening period touchdowns.

On both scoring drives Falcon quarterback Mike Golovich employed the long bomb to put his team within eosy scoring range. A 40-yarder to Chet Dion paved the way for Muggsy Simons' 10-yard run that made it 7-0.

After an exchange of punts, the Falcons went 79 yards in 13 plays, the big gainer coming on a 46-yard toss to speedster Spenser Davis, who went down on the Marin one. Halfback Ralph Brown took it over.

LONG DRIVE

Peters, who hit on 13 of 23 passes for 210 yards and a touchdown, got the Tars on the scoreboard with a one yard sneak in the final minute of the first half. It capped an 85-yard drive that took 12 plays and five minutes to accomplish.

Early in the second period it was evident that the Marin defense had shut down Solano's power. In the third quarter it became evident that the Tars had found theirs.

TIE SCORE

They wasted little time proving it, as they marched 89 yards on a touchdown drive following the second half kickoff. Peters completed four of five passes along the way, including a 24-yarder to Keith Stirling that tied the score.

Midway through the fourth quarter, Solano moved to the Marin 22 yard line, its closest penetration since the opening period. From there the Falcons attempted a field goal that fell far short.

Marin brought the ball back to midfield, but lost it there on a fumble with 3:30 left in the game. It seemed then that a stalemate was inevitable.

KEY INTERCEPTION

On the next play, however, John Dohn, who recovered a fumble earlier, picked off his fifth interception of the year and ran it back 42 yards to the Falcon 30.

Staying on the ground to waste the clock, the Tars used Jim Finnegan once for 13 yards, and Mike Fowler thrice to arrive at the Falcon one. Peters then scored and 500 spectators went home happy.

SAN FRANCISCO OPEN

Archer Fights Wildness

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — George Archer, leading the San Francisco open but troubled with a balky driver, says he has the solution to his errant shots.

"I'm going to get me 18 free passes and give them to my relatives," said the laconic Archer, from nearby Gilroy. "I'm going to put nine of them on each side of the fairway and give 'em baseball gloves.

"Man, when one of those drives start into the woods, they're going to be throwing them back out of the fairway so fast . . . bingo, right back on the fairway."

Archer, the 6-foot-6 Masters champ who has been in a slump since June, shot a second round 67—despite the bad driver — yesterday for a 36-hole score of 130, his best of the season.

He held a two-stroke lead over Miller Barber, 64 for 132, with Bob Lunn and Steve Spray following at 133. Lunn had a second round 68 and Spray a course record-matching 63. Jerry Heard, 69, Al Mengert, 66, and Lee Elder, 68, followed at 134.

Perfect playing conditions and a beautifully conditioned course helped lower the scores. In fact, it took a score of 142, par for two rounds on the 6,677-yard Harding Park Golf Course, to make the cut for the final two rounds.

Arnold Palmer rallied with a 67, including an eagle three on his last hole, for 137, while Billy Casper had a 68 for 138.

Local favorite Ron Cerrudo had a 69 for 141.

Archer, bothered by tendonitis in his left elbow and a questionable starter until moments before he teed off in the first round, put four shots in the woods and another "dead right, almost to another fairway. I hit five absolutely hideous drives," he said.

LUMBERJACK

That made nine bad drives in two days, seven of which were involved with trees.

"I guess we're going to have to change my nickname from cowboy to lumberjack," said Archer, a one-time ranch hand.

"But you can't say I'm hitting the ball badly. It's just the driver. I'm hitting my irons very sharp and I've made a ton of putts. But I'm just lost with the driver. I'm hitting the ball solid—but straight right. Almost everyone has a fault, and when it comes along you know what to do about it.

"But I'm blocking the ball. That's not usually a fault of mine and I just don't know what to do. It just destroys your confidence."

Warriors Welcome Lucas

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jerry Lucas, an all-star in each of his six National Basketball seasons, came to the San Francisco Warriors from Cincinnati today in exchange for foward Bill Turner and guard Jimmy King.

Lucas headed here soon after the trade with the Royals was announced yesterday and is expected to be on hand when the Warriors, 2-1, meet the Milwaukee Bucks tonight in Civic Auditorium.

Alcindor, the Bucks' million-dollar rookie, scored 23 points and had 20 rebounds in Los Angeles last night opposite Wilt Chamberlain, who led the Lakers to a 123-112 victory with 25 points and 25 rebounds.

King, acquired in a 1966 trade from Chicago, and Turner, as a replacement for Clyde Lee, both have been Warrior starters this season. However, Lee's ankle sprain has mended so that he's ready to take his place again on the front line.

LIKE KINCKS

Cincinnati's general manager, Joe Axelson, said the Royals are trying "to get 12 basketball players like the Knicks have" and that in the trade of Lucas "we're strengthening ourselves in two positions."

Lucas, an All-American at Ohio State University, averaged 19.9 points a game and 19.2 rebounds in his career before this season. In four games this year, he has averaged 10.3 points a game and 10.5 rebounds. Despite the statistics, Lucas has been bothered by bad knees throughout his career.

He has also started restaurant chain in the area. It had been reported that he would not play this year because of business interests.

King, 6-feet-2, played for Los Angeles and Chicago before joining the Warriors and averaged 8.6 points a game in six seasons.

Turner, 6-feet-7, averaged 7.8 points a game last year along with 380 rebounds. He played at the University of Akron and was San Francisco's second draft choice in 1967.

Axelson said that "If Turner rebounds as well as we think he can," the trade will not hurt Cincinnati rebounding wise.

"Lucas agreed to go," Axelson said. "I don't know if he would have reported to any club, but he liked the sound of San Francisco."

San Marin Rolls Over Drake, 27-8

By GARY TISCHLER

If anybody told you this story two months ago, you would have called him crazy.

But here we are, the 1969 football season is almost halfway over and San Marin High School, in its first year of varsity completion, is still unbeaten and sitting on top of the Marin County Athletic League standings, priming for a showdown battle with favored Terra Linda next Saturday.

The Mustangs added once proud Drake, twice a champ in the last three years, to their list of victims, soundly thumping the Pirates, 27-8, before a game Drake homecoming crowd of 2,000 fans at San Rafael High School last night.

The ex-champs were chumps last night, as they gave away two touchdowns on fumbles and bobbled the ball away a total of four times. Their passing game was almost zero, with Kevin Peak completing only one of nine passes for nine yards while another gritty San Marin defensive effort limited Drake to a total offense of 79 yards.

When the Mustangs weren't scoring on defense, fiery quarterback Ken Gnoss was gearing up an offense that moved mostly on his rollout options. He sparked a drive that let Urbano Bouscieguez loose for a 19-yard TD in the second period and scored from five yards out for the Mustangs' final score in the last period.

Tom Nelson, a defensive end, put the Pirates in the hole early when he caught Peak for a 20-yard loss, and hopped on the resultant fumble in the end-zone for 6-0. The other superdefensive play came when tackle Dennis Miller wrestled the ball away from Drake halfback Ron Biddle and scooted 78 yards for a touchdown in the second period, giving San Marin an untouchable 20-0 lead.

The win was San Marin's fifth of the season without a loss and 14th straight, counting an unbeaten junior varsity season last year. The Mustangs are 3-0 in league play.

49ers, Spurrier Vs. Colts; Raiders Battle San Diego

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

BALTIMORE — San Francisco 49er coach Dick Nolan has indicated that Steve Spurrier will start at quarterback in place of the ailing, dead-arm John Brodie when the winless and underdog 49ers meet the powerful Baltimore Colts tomorrow.

Veteran conrnerback Kermit Alexander will also be out with a shoulder separation. Unproven second-year man Johnny Woitt of Mississippi State will start in his place. The game will be televised on Channel 5 at 11 a.m.

SAN DIEGO — The unbeaten Oakland Raiders are a touchdown favorite to beat the San Diego Chargers in a key AFL Western Division game tomorrow.

The Raiders will be trying to keep alive a string of 14 straight regular season games without a loss. They are 5-0-1 this year and won their last eight games of the 1968 season. The Chargers ware the last team to beat the Raiders last season. The game will be televised on Channel 4 at 1 p.m.

William Waterman of Detroit said that all the athletes want to file suit. The athletes were dismissed for wearing black arm bands in a racial protest against last week's game with Brigham Young University.

KANSAS CITY — The Kansas City Chiefs restored quarterback Len Dawson and guard Mo Moorman to the active list yesterday and took flanker Otis Taylor and specialist Noland Smith off the list.

Simon was 6-4 and weighed 254 pounds when he fought Louis. During his high school days he was the interscholastic shot put champion. He fought professionally 49 times, winning 38.

He is survived by his widow, Rita; and two children, Alfred and Kathleen Ann.

REDWOOD HIGH DRAWS BLANK IN EUREKA

Redwood high School's football team took a long trip to Eureka yesterday and came back to Larkspur at 6 o'clock this morning, empty-handed.

The Giants dropped a 21-0 non-league verdict to Eureka High School, although holding Eureka to just 104 yards total offense. Eureka broke it open on two end around scoring plays and a 40-yard pass.

Redwood is now 4-2 won-lost on the season. Bob Piper, Jay Lehman and Bob Fox paced a Redwood ground attack that threatened several times, but failed to score.

Tomales Ace Runs Wild

LAKEPORT — Tomales High School's football team, with its super-back going wild again, trashed what was supposed to have been a good Kelseyville team, 48-0, before 500 fans yesterday.

Petroni scored three times on runs of 34 and 65 yards and on a 30-yard pass from quarterback Dennis Rodoni to up his season scoring total to 74 points. He also continued on his way to another 1,000-yard season, racking up 177 yards on 11 carries to push his total to 879 yards with three games left.

Sonoma State Downs S.F. Jayvees, 19-0

SEBASTAPOL — Running true to form, Sonoma State College rebounded from a defeat a week ago to down the San Francisco State junior varsity, 19-0, at Analy High School last night before 300 fans.

It was the second time this season that the Cossacks, playing the Far Western Conference junior varsity football schedule, have been defeated by a non-league foe only to come back for a win over a FWC jayvee team. Last week they dropped a 34-6 decision to Taft Junior College.

THIRD WIN

The Cossacks displayed a rugged ground game, and an airtight defense in picking up their third win in five games.

The Cossacks rolled up 149 yards on the ground with Luther Nelson and Herman Manuel accounting for most of the yardage. Quarterback Bill Cox completed 8 of 18 passes for 89 yards.

Meanwhile the Sonoma State defense, led by rugged Benny Guerra held the Gator offense to 95 yards.

Sonoma High Bows

Sonoma High School's football team dropped a 19-8 verdict to Ukiah High School last night in a non-league tussle at Ukiah.

The only bright spot for Sonoma was a 83-yard kick off return for a touchdown by John Sherman.

'Fred The Fox' Out As Petaluma Loses

VALLEJO — Petaluma High School's football team, missing the most effective part of its attack for a large part of the game, was buried under a punishing Hogan High School ground attack last night and dropped a 28-6 North Bay League game before some 1,100 fans.

Fred "The Fox" Klemenok, Petaluma's and the league's top passer, was forced to sit out most of the game with a hip injury. Meanwhile, Russ Gerig, Theron Grisbie and highly-touted Jim Upchurch sparked Hogan to a 22-0 halftime lead.

But, for one brief moment, there was Klemenok.

Klemenok came off the bench in the third period to spark the Trojans to their only score, tossing to favorite target end Bob Garcia, for a five-yard touchdown after a 26-yarder on the same combination set things up.

Hogan's win, coming after two straight losses, gave the Spartans a 1-2 NBL-I mark, same as Petaluma's.

Klemenok, when he was in there, completed four of five passes for 57 yards.

H—Upchurch, 35-yard run (run failed)

Rancho Cotate Bows To Newman

PETALUMA — Cardinal Newman High School's Percy Grogans continued to storm North Bay League Section II opposition last night as he scored 14 points and picked up over 200 yards rushing to spark the Santa Rosa school to a 30-14 win over third-place Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park.

Grogans carried the ball 22 times, picking up 222 yards. He scored on runs of 79 and 42 yards and had one 61-yard scoring run nullified on a clipping penalty.

Rancho Cotate	0	8	6	0	—14

CN — Grogans, 72-yard run (Grogan run)
CN — Lorenzini, 29-yard run (Bonfigli run)
CN — Wilkie, 26-yard pass from Bonfigli (Price, pass from Bonfigli)
RC — Stephens, 58-yard pass from S. Wlodarczyk (Stephens run)

By DAVE DIETZ

OAKLAND — Filing out of the Oakland Arena, where the undefeated Boston Bruins had just beaten the Oakland Seals, 4-2, before one of the largest crowds in the Seals' National Hockey League history, a woman turned to her husband and said it all: "Their guys just banged our guys around more."

Muscle is the rudiment of the Bruins' game, and they flexed a lot of it against the smaller Seals. Consider this mismatch: Boston's best center, Phil Esposito, is 6-1, 208 pounds. The Seals' best center, Ted Hampson, is 5-8, 170. Or this one: the Bruins' highest scoring right wing last year was Ken Hodge, 6-2, 212. Bill Hicke, highest scoring right wing on the Seals, is 5-8, 176.

A crowd of 9,149 saw an overwhelming Boston effort. Except for a brief time in the second period when the Seals tied the game, 2-2, the Bruins were in control. Only superior goaltending by Oakland's Gary Smith stopped a rout.

Oakland coach Fred Glover felt cheated by the officiating.

"They (the Bruins) have a license to go out and do what they damn well please," he said.

"Aw, come on," roared Boston Gen. Mgr. Milt Schmidt when told of Glover's remark. "I'm sick and tired of hearing that bullxxxx. What did we do out there? We didn't hurt anybody."

How did he feel about the officiating?

"I thought it was great."

The Seals were vehement that Boston's final goal, which came at 6:26 of the third period and put the game out of reach, should have been disallowed. Glover protested that the Bruins, shorthanded at the time, were offside on the play and Smith complained that the player credited with the goal, Jim Harrison, nudged the puck into the net off his skate.

Boston opened the game briskly, taking a 2-0 lead on goals by John Bucyk and Esposito. The first came on a power play after Bobby Orr, the sensational defenseman who assisted on three of the four Boston goals, had brought the puck the full length of the ice. Esposito's tally was a five-footer on a feed from Hodge.

The Seals tied the game within 34 seconds during the second period when Joe Hardy tapped in a pass from Bob Dillabough, who had made a dash similar to Orr's, and Mike Laughton converted a Bill Hicke pass.

On another power play, Esposito got what proved to be the winning goal six minutes later when he poked a rebound over the fallen Smith.

He'll Play More Golf With Wife After Ace

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) — Richard Thomas may be playing golf with his wife more often after getting his first hole-in-one here this spring.

A golfer for 40 years, Thomas aced the seventh hole on the Greenbrier course. He used a 2 iron on the 205-yard hole and his wife was there to see it. They are from Akron, Ohio.

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Gino Marchetti, former defensive standout with the Baltimore Colts, now heads a chain of hamburger grilles in the Baltimore area.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

11 EDITORIAL PAGE San Rafael, Calif. Saturday, Oct. 25, 1969

The Editor's Notebook

Just What Is This Thing Called Fair/Marin?

ASK THE MAN in the street what Fair/Marin means and in all likelihood he will guess, erroneously, that it is some kind of chamber of commerce slogan.

Ask a fairly well informed Marinite what Fair/Marin means and he will probably tell you, somewhat incompletely and inaccurately, that it is the name of the organization set up by the county to run the Art and Garden Fair when it moves to the Civic Center fairgrounds in a couple of years.

Look at the information brochure on Fair/Marin and you will find it said that, "Fair/Marin was conceived as a year-round cultural, recreational and community center for the use and enjoyment of all residents of Marin County, serving also as a major visitor attraction."

Read on and you find that "a primary function of Fair/Marin is raising funds, on its own initiative and possibly as a coordinator of other fund drives directed to development of the Civic Center . . .

"The staff and board of Fair/Marin have begun development of plans for a yearly fund-raising drive, with the beginning of the first campaign scheduled for September 1970."

Read farther and you will learn that after the Veterans' Memorial Auditorium is completed, it will, in the opinion of Fair-Marin, need an additional half million dollars worth of equipment and furnishings to be usable.

The county's Art and Garden Fair receives scant mention in Fair-Marin's informational brochure. It is not mentioned at all in the Fair-Marin president's year-end report and review of accomplishments.

What, then, is Fair/Marin?

The FAIR in Fair/Marin is an acronym for Foundation for Arts, Industry and Recreation. FAIR does not stand for Fair, as in Art and Garden Fair, at all.

What, then, is the Foundation for Arts, Industry and Recreation?

About all the informational material has to say directly on this point is that Fair/Marin is "the opportunity to excel . . . the challenge to excel."

The first conclusion one can draw from this is that Marin's time-honored Art and Garden Fair may have a long life ahead of it at the same old stand in Ross, under the same management which has brought it to its present eminence.

Fair/Marin unquestionably will want to take away from the Art and Garden Fair the subsidy it gets in the form of state funds allocated for county fairs. But Fair/Marin shows not the slightest indication of wanting to shoulder responsibility for continuing the fair.

A good guess would be that this will lead to some considerable controversy, since supporters and admirers of Marin's traditional Art and Garden Fair will not want to see it jeopardized by loss of funds — or see those funds diverted.

A second conclusion would be that there is a big row ahead.

FAIR/MARIN'S FIRST PAID general manager, who took over June 1, Leon Kalimos, appears to see the situation in clearer perspective.

He sees the opportunity to develop a year-around performing arts program, augmented by recreational and possibly other kinds of events, centered at the Civic Center on the so-called fairgrounds property.

He has had considerable experience and opportunity to observe what goes into the making of a successful performing arts event.

He probably didn't win many friends when, less than a month after his employment June 1, he leveled some public criticism at the Veterans' Memorial Auditorium now being completed. He pointed out design deficiencies which, in his opinion, would make it uneconomic to operate and unattractive to professional performers in some fields.

Most of the half million dollars which Fair/Marin proposes to spend on the auditorium after it is completed would go toward equipment and furnishings aimed at making it more ecomomic to use and more attractive to performing artists.

Obviously, as Kalimos observes, you can't have a successful year-around program of performing arts if inefficiencies in staging events put them all heavily into red ink. Nor can you hope to succeed if the artists you need to draw crowds refuse to perform in your auditorium.

That's not all.

Kalimos' considerable experience evidences itself when he talks of "audience development."

A promoter of non-cultural events would call it publicity and promotion.

By any label, it means attracting people to the box office.

You have to do much, much more than just hire the performers and open the doors on performance night.

You have to induce people to spend their money, to pass up alternative uses of their time, to come to your production in preference to alternatives.

Kalimos appears to have an understanding of the need for considerable effort to build audiences.

A COUNTY FAIR at the Civic Center? Kalimos seems to think that will be a long time in the future and it is not likely to be an Art and Garden-type fair. The Art and Garden Center in Ross in an unexcelled setting for that. Apparently Kalimos thinks it should continue there — perhaps without state subsidy. When a fair is planned at the Civic Center, it should be a different pattern.

Meantime, in Sacramento, Governor Reagan has made public statements recently which appear to put future handouts of state funds for subsidizing county fairs in considerable jeopardy.

Fair/Marin would be well advised to proclaim another, additional goal: To make itself self-supporting.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A stranger presented himself at a theatrical booking agent's headquarters and announced that he could juggle 38 different objects while balancing himself on one leg on a tightrope. The agent was ecstatically pulling a contract form out of his desk when the applicant added, "I'm not interested in any of that night club or vaudeville circuit stuff, you understand. What I want is a recording contract."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Why Pay Television Threatens Theaters

The editor and publisher of the I-J are to be commended for having the guts (spell it gut$$$, if you will) to incur the self-righteous wrath of those Marin moving picture exhibitors who have been I-J advertising buyers for many decades by championing the idea of subscription (i.e. pay) TV.

You probably reminded us that TV has threatened the profits of the I-J and all other newspapers and other print media. What you failed to remind us is that the for the price of a single admission ticket to a Marin movie, we can pay for a whole month's delivery of the I-J to our front doors.

And what you editorially failed to do is to remind your Marin theater owner advertisers that if they had any good sense at all they could learn something by using their imaginations as to what would happen if the I-J had jacked up its price of admission to a quarter a copy or even $10 a month for carrier delivery.

You might have reminded your Marin theater owner advertisers that they could win friends and influence people if they chose to lure back capacity audiences for every performance at four bits or six bits per ticket. You might have reminded our Marin movie theater establishment to take a look at what your super-market advertisers are doing to lure customers to their "box-office."

To back up your editorial pitch about pay TV you might tell all of us that for the price of one admission to a Marin movie in this day, the day is ahead that for that same price six of us in my own family will get entertainment and pleasure in our own living room—with big bowls of popcorn for all of us as a bonus . . .

Redwood Vietnam Role Applauded

I just attended a meeting of the board of the Tamalpais High School District and I would like to comment on one of the issues discussed.

I would like to commend Mr. (Donald) Kreps' handling of the Vietnam Moratorium. He realized that this is an issue of great concern to students and provided a forum in which this issue could be discussed within the framework of the school. I feel this was more advantageous than either ignoring the issue or having a large number of the student body absent as was the case in other schools.

I can appreciate concern over the district, a school or a teacher either advocating or indoctrinating their belief, however I do not believe this was the intent or the case at Redwood High School. There were accusations of "un-American." I feel it is American to discuss issues of grave concern.

Thanks For Assists On Moratorium

This is an open letter of thanks to the many people who helped make the Mill Valley Vietnam Moratorium Day march a success.

We wish to extend our gratitude to the Mill Valley businessmen who closed their shops; to Police Chief (Dan) Terzich and the Mill Valley Police Department for their fine co-operation; and especially to the 700 people who marched despite the rain, knowing that in Vietnam, people are dying in the rain.

What's That Noise Out At College?

For the past few days now, I've been hearing very loud, disturbing banging coming from the College of Marin.

Could you possibly tell me what's going on?

LINES ON LIVING

Can Peace Be Made By Marching Children?

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

If the Vietnam moratorium proved anything, it proved above all that America needs peace desperately, peace within its borders.

Above the echoes of protestation and demonstration, one could clearly hear the more disturbing muted voices and gestures of division and silent brooding.

We are a nation of two distinct peoples: one that says now or never; and one that says never now. It is more a confrontation of moods than a civil war. It is expressed in the two opposing and what seem irreconcilable attitudes of those who counsel patience as a time-honored ingredient in healing and solving problems, and those who say we have waited long enough, we want peace now or it will never come.

THE PITY OF IT all is that while this nation searches its heart to bring peace abroad, it finds its own inner peace and tranquility elusive and unfulfilled.

Biblical prophecy speaks of "peace for the near and the far." Indeed, the peace makers, who are the meek and blessed, must start with peace at home for the near before they can establish peace abroad for the far.

Perhaps what we need is a national "moratorium on peace" in America; peace that will unite the hearts of its children to live in a diversity of thought and opinion without the adversity of malice and rancor; peace that will secure the right of all to dissent but not the right to shout down a person; peace that will become a way of life and love, with charity toward all.

That kind of peace is a dynamic peace. It is not merely the absence of war and of conflict but rather a positive quality of human comprehension and appreciation, compassion and communication.

WE REFER to those who bring peace to the world as the peacemakers. The reason is obvious: peace is an achievement of the industrious hand and the patient heart. You make it, or it won't be there. You've got to work at it, cultivate it and protect it, often from your own mischieveous temper and disposition.

Have we grown too arrogant in power and wealth to attain the meekness which is the prerequisite for the blessed peacemakers who inherit the earth?

America today is perilously close to the brink of a war far more destructive than can be seen by the naked eye. It is not a physical civil war but an intangible war in the hearts and minds of its children. There is too much traumatic agitation in the adult community that deprives our children of their already shortened childhood.

Those of us who have seen public school children carrying placards and gesturing signs of protestation cannot but feel disturbed and saddened. Said a young girl in her tiny teens: "It makes me feel good to carry a sign. It shows that I am involved."

The question that comes to mind is plainly alarming:

ARE WE REALLY so desperate that we have to involve our younger children in demstrations and in shouting slogans and platitudes? Isn't it just possible that by involving children in public demonstrations — noble as the intent may be — we are using them selfishly and plunging them immaturely in experiences for which they are not prepared?

The hundreds of thousands of children who stayed out of classes on the Moratorium Day (many of whom took to the streets) may well get into the habit of running with stick and placard to solve their problems. Is this any way to bring up a child in beautiful America?

It is high time that we ponder the deeper meaning of peace and evince its charity by beginning at home: by making it a living reality of the heart to heal us from envenoming wounds of brotherly malice and hatred: "Peace for the near and the far."

Greece Puts State Department On Horns Of A Dilemma

WASHINGTON — NATO'S unruly child, Greece, the first military dictatorship in Europe since the end of the second World War, is an acute pain for State Department policy makers. Whether in the interest of alleged security the brutalities and stupidities of a crass dictatorship can be ignored and the program of American Military aid continued is the still-unanswered question.

As so often in the past, the military are insisting that there is no choice. If the southern pivot of NATO is to be held, the United States must not only continue but expand the flow of arms to the colonels ruling that tragic and beautiful repository of so much of the heritage of the West. Any other course will enhance the drive of the Russians in the Mediterranean and beyond.

LOOKED AT from the practical and pragmatic view, this is a doubtful proposition. In the aftermath of their coup overthrowing a duly elected government, the colonels purged some 2,000 officers. Many of them, particularly in the air force, were high-ranking officers, and key figures in the NATO defense system. The purge has left that system greatly weakened.

Underscoring this weakness is the growing evidence of unrest and disaffection in Greece. At great personal risk, political leaders hitherto silent are letting their dissent be known. The latest proof is a letter signed by 30 former ministers and 50 former members of parliament calling on the United States to follow a policy that will mean the restoration of freedom.

The parliamentparians' letter was in response to a statement addressed to Secretary of State William P. Rogers and signed by 50 members of congress. The statement called on Rogers to give clear sign of American disapproval of the dictatorship.

"As elected representatives of the last Greek parliament," the letter sent sub rosa out of Athens declared, "we accept your manifestation of solidarity and declase that the strug-divisible and knows no geographic barriers or national borders. . . We do trust out people but they have no chance to decide their destinies and they are being terrorized."

FROM MEN subject to the midnight knock on the door and the torture so pervasive that the Council of Europe will probably expel Greece, those are brave words. They show that, beneath the stern exterior the tourist sees, the fires of freedom still burn.

Asst. Secretary of State William B. Macomber Jr. frankly confessed to the dilemma the department faces in policy toward Greece. We think such an internal order, Macomber said of the dictatorship in a letter to Rep. Don Edwards, D. Calif., does not coincide with the best interests of Greece whose stability in the long run depends upon the free play of democratic forces.

Of the power of the Soviet Thrust to the south there can be no doubt.

The relevance of Greece to this thrust is demonstrable. But it is not enough to speak, as Macomber did, of a "loyal NATO partner." The issue is not a superficial loyalty. It is whether against a mounting tide of disaffection and the not-too-distant threat of terrorism and bloodshed Greece under a dictatorship can be an effective partner.

Americans Eliminate Selves, And It Hasn't Cost A Ruble

WASHINGTON— A top-secret meeting of Kremlin officials was held last week to discuss the latest defense strategy against the United States. Comrade Alexandrov Potomski, in charge of the Third Bureau in the United States, was the first to make his report.

"Comrades, I am happy to report that air pollution in the United States has risen more than 140 million tons, which is 10 million tons more than last year."

There was applause from everyone in the room.

"HOW DID YOU manage this, Comrade Potomski?" one of the members of the Presidium asked.

"I wish I could take the credit, but the Americans have done it themselves. At the present rate of air pollution everyone in the United States should be dead in 20 years."

"But surely," a marshal said, "the Americans must be aware of what air pollution is doing to them."

"They are, but it doesn't matter. They have many pressure groups who scream that if something serious were done about air pollution it would hurt their businesses. So the government leaders talk about the problem and do nothing."

"Then we can count on air pollution in the United States for the foreseeable future?"

"I cannot see the Americans doing anything serious about it for a long time to some," said Comrade Potomski.

COMRADE REDHEVNOV of the Fifth Bureau got up. "Comrades, I also have good news. The Americans are polluting their water at such a rate that in 10 years they will make every river, stream and lake undrinkable, unswimmable and uninhabitable for fish."

There was more applause from everyone in the room.

"Why are we spending money to pollute American waters?" the first secretary of the Communist Party of Leningrad asked. "If the Americans found out, they could take serious action against us."

"We are not doing it," Comrade Redhevnov said. "The Amernicans are doing it to themselves."

There were cries of derision.

The president of the Presidium asked, 'Are you trying to tell us that the Americans are poisoning their own water?"

"Exactly, Comrade President. They pour sewage into it. Factories spew out every kind of chemical and detergent and put anything you can think of in the water supply."

"But surely the Americans are not stupid people. If they knew they were poisoning their own water, they would demand a stop to it."

Comrade Redhevnov said, "I know it's hard to believe, comrades, but even through they know what they're doing, they still keep doing it. If they stopped pollution, the pollutors say, they would stop production of goods the Americans need. So no one is going to give the pollutors any serious trouble."

"Excellent," said the Kremlin planners. "So far it hasn't cost us a ruble."

COMRADE SOKOLOV of the Sixth Bureau, charged with studying American transportation, got up to make his report. "I have the best news, comrades. The American transportation system is breaking down. The railroads are shot, the roads are impassable and the airports are so congested that flying is nearly hopeless.

"In five years the crisis will have reached a point where nothing in the United Stated can move."

Once again there were cheers.

"Comrade Sokolov, you have accomplished the impossible dream."

"Comrades, the Americans have done it all by themselves. They are so intent on selling cars, moving freight and booking airplane seats that they refuse to face what they're doing to the country."

There were murmurs all around the conference table. Finally the chairman said, "From what you have told us, there doesn't seem to be any sense in the Soviet Union spending vast sums of money for new weapons against the United States.

"Therefore, I make the following recommendation."

Everyone held his breath.

The chairman said, "We all sit tight."

Youth Coffee House Closes Temporarily

Norman Leach, manager of the Third Rail coffee house in San Anselmo, announced yesterday a temporary closing of the facility, effective immediately, because a "small group of kids were disrupting the atmosphere."

Although the coffee house had welcomed visits from youths who were on drugs, Leach denied that this was responsible for the trouble. He said fights would erupt in apparent frustration over the lack of "real, ongoing programs at the coffee house other than dances."

Leach said a meeting would be held at 8 p.m. Nov. 1 in Duncan Hall at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo to discuss a "new format" for the coffee house.

The facility, which has been open weekends, is in the basement of the church.

Leach said lack of operating funds also contributed to the closing.

The coffee house still plans to hold its Halloween dance at 8:30 p.m. Friday at Duncan Hall, Leach said.

Council's Agenda

A priority list of street projects to be completed with 1969-70 gas tax funds will be established at a study session of the Petaluma City Council at 7:30 p.m., Monday.

Planners Face Dogfight Over Smith Ranch Airport

Operators of Smith Ranch Airport will meet head-on with residents of Gallinas Village Monday afternoon in their running dogfight over expansion of the private airport north of Santa Venetia.

The hearing is set for 2:30 before the Marin County Planning Commission on the third floor of the Civic Center administration building.

The airport hearing is the last major item on the planning commission's all-day agenda.

In the morning, planning commissioners will discuss policies on annexation and rezoning, then resume a hearing on a proposed ordinance to control fill in all Marin tidal waterways.

Other items on the agenda are these:

A hearing on the future width and building lines of Merrydale Road in Los Ranchitos.

A tentative subdivision map of Spanish Bit properties, 15 lots proposed by Sherman Smith on 20 acres in Bolinas, at Mesa and Bolinas-Olema roads.

Motel Room Looted

A portable television set, sheets, blankets, drapes and a waste basket valued at a total of $217 were stolen from the Marin Motel, 4136 Redwood Highway, between 5 p.m. Tuesday and 10 a.m. Wednesday, San Rafael police reported.

Nude Sunbathers Fined $50 A Person

Two persons have been sentenced in Marin Municipal Court by Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. for nude sunbathing near Muir Beach.

After pleading guilty to disturbing the peace, Bruce Edmond Boyd, 21, of Los Altos Hills, and Tanya Doreen Rentz, 20 of Stanford University were fined $50 each.

This choice property is sandwiched in between 2 new ski lifts, and offers unlimited opportunity for year around operation. The price of $125,000 would not replace the improvements alone. Bishops Synod To End Monday With Ballots

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The world synod of bishops will end Monday with a vote on 13 proposals for giving bishops greater authority in the Roman Catholic church, it was announced today.

The key proposals calls on Pope Paul VI to consult bishops in preparing documents on major importance to the church, but also states that bishops should consult the Pope before making important statements of their own.

OBJECTIONS HEARD

Some liberal bishops objected earlier in the Synod to the second part of this proposal.

The two proposals are linked together in the second item on Monday's ballot, but liberals who object to giving the Vatican veto power over their statements can vote in favor of the item with reservations.

A Vatican spokesman said a document containing the 13 proposals was distributed to bishops today.

Other main points call for greater cooperation of the Roman Curia with bishops, bringing bishops into an active role in the work of the permanent synod secretariat at the Vatican, holding general synods once every two years in addition to extraordinary and special synods, giving bishops' conferences and eastern rite synods the right to propose items for synod agendas and allowing experts to assist bishops during synods.

INTERNATIONAL AIMS

The Synod also votes Monday on proposals for closer cooperation among the various national bishops' conferences of the world. These proposals are generally noncontroversial and will be distributed to bishops tonight.

In today's session two bishops gave their backing to a proposal by Cardinal Francois Marty of Paris that the next synod take up problems of the priesthood, including the question of marriage for priests. They were Cardinal Franziskus Koening of Vienna and Cardinal Mafimos V Hakim, Melkite patriarch of Antioch.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Everyone Over Age 40 Needs Spirogram To Check Emphysema

VAN DELLEN

Everyone over 40 should have a spirogram of the lungs to determine whether emphysema is developing. This is true expecially of men who smoke or suffer from coughing, wheezing, or shortness of breath

The test takes less than five minutes and consists of breathing into a machine that records the volume of air and the time used to complete inspiration and expiration.

OBSTRUCTIVE EMPHYSEMA is the most serious form of the disease because it is progressive and disabling. It is preceded by years of bronchial allergy or infection that usually stems from inhaling irritants such as tobacco smoke or polluted air.

The large and smaller bronchi narrow when the inner lining thickens and the smooth muscle fibers encircling the tubes weaken. The irritation and inflammation also lead to an increase in mucus secretion.

As the wall thickens, the cough becomes less efficient and the excess sputum is retained. More force is required to produce an ample flow of air that will provide ventilation, especially during expiration.

MEANWHILE, THE TINY air sacs become distended and, like an old balloon, develop wrinkles that interfere with their elasticity.

Normally, expiration is a passive act. Air leaves the lungs because of elastic recoil as it would from a tire after the valve stem has been removed. Those with emphysema must literally squeeze out the air from the chest. The greater the effort to expire, the greater the compression on the bronchi.

These individuals are soon fighting for every breath trying to force air through flattened air passageways.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J)

DIETER PUTS ON POUNDS

A reader writes: Since going on a low fat diet I have gained six pounds and my blood cholesterol has gone from 350 to 398. Can you explain this odd situation?

REPLY

Yes. The best diet to lower cholesterol is low in animal fats and more liberal in vegetable (polyunsaturated) oils and spreads. It is well to remember that all fats are high in calories regardless of source. But there is more to cholesterol than food. It is lowered by exercise, losing weight, certain hormones, and clofibrate. Stress and anxiety raise the level.

RELATED TO CYST

P. L. writes: Is pilonidal cyst considered a birthmark?

REPLY

No. It is however, a close relative, in that the lesion represents a developmental defect that is present at birth. This little pocket at the base of the spine stems from imperfect closure of the tissues in that area. It may escape detection until the lower spine is jarred, such as occurs when riding in a jeep that hits a rut in the road.

ABDOMINAL MIGRAINE

T. W. writes: What is the cause and treatment of abdominal migraine?

REPLY

This is a migraine equivalent manifested by periodic attacks of abdominal distress. There is no headache. The pain probably stems from a spasm of a cerebral artery. The condition may be difficult to extinguish from abdominal angina due to a circulatory disturbance of the abdominal vessels.

BELCHING AND PREGNANCY

Mrs. R. A. writes: Is belching common in women who are expecting?

REPLY

Yes — also in those who are not pregnant.

Today's Health Hint—

The tendency to diabetes is hereditary.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Oct. 25, the 298th day of 1969 with 67 to follow.

The moon is full. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars.

On this day in history:

In 1854, in the famed Charge of the Light Brigade, some 670 British cavalrymen fighting in the Crimean War attacked a heavily fortified Russian position and were wiped out.

In 1936, the Fascist government of Germany and Italy formed the Rome-Berlin Axis.

In 1966, a fire aboard the American carrier Oriskany off Vietnam killed 33 men.

In 1968, 32 persons died in the crash of a Northeast Airlines plane near Hanover, N.H.

Thought for the day: American author Ridgley Torrence said, "God gave them youth, God gave them love, and even God can give them no more."

New Look For Coffee Tables

CHICAGO (AP) — A coffee table with spray-on graphite-based coating on its glass top can be plugged into regular electrical wall outlets for cooking food or keeping it warm.

The unit was created by Acheson Colloids Co., Port Hiron, Mich., inventor of the coating, to demonstrate how it can be used in residential heating, trailer-truck heating units, and other consumer industrial applications.

The company said the sprayed circular "burners" represent a startling breakthrough in conducting electricity and generating heat.

Temperature can be thermostatically controlled to a maximum of 500 F.

Sometimes One Of The High Counters Really A Low Card

"Things are seldom what they seem," said a famous satirist, but he was just indulging his bent for exaggeration. A seven or eight is usually a high card, meant to encourage you to continue the suit you have opened. But there's no harm in looking around to make sure that your partner's card is exactly what it seems to be. Even satire isn't always wrong.

DIAMOND LEAD

West led the king of diamonds, and East followed suit with the eight. It was the lowest diamond East could play, and it was meant to be discouraging. East hoped his partner would think of switching to hearts before dummy's clubs could furnish discards.

West was a very serious, literal soul. An eight was a high card, and no nonsense about it. If East didn't want a diamond continuation, it was his business to produce a low diamond.

So West led the ace of diamonds at the second trick, and there went the defense.

DEVELOPS CLUBS

South ruffed the second diamond, drew one round of trumps with the queen, and then led a club to dummy's king. He returned to his hand with the jack of trumps to lead another club.

West played low again, and dummy's queen of clubs won. South got back with a third trump to lead a third club, and now West had to take the ace. Nothing could stop South from discarding a heart on one of summy's high clubs, so that South lost only one heart, one diamond and one club.

CAN DEFEAT

West defeats the contract if he switches to the jack of hearts at the second trick since the defenders can get two heart tricks before South can develop the clubs. West should have seen all of the low diamonds at the first trick and therefore should have known that East's eight was the lowest diamond available.

DAILY QUESTION

Dealer, at your right, bids one diamond.

You hold:

♠—K 9 6 2
♥—A Q 7
♣—K Q J 5

What do you say?

ANSWER: Double.

This takeout double asks your partner to bid his longest suit and promises fine support for any suit he may name. You would prefer to have one more heart instead of one of the diamonds, but the hand is worth a double even as it stands.

PART OF CENTENNIAL

Choirs To Perform Bloch Work

Ernest Bloch's "Sacred Service" will be presented in two free public performances tomorrow, one at 9:30 and the other at 11 a.m. at the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael.

This is one of the events in the church's eight-week centennial celebration. The performances will be lieu of a sermon at the services.

Performing the "Sacred Service" will be the combined Chancel and Westminster choirs and some members of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra conducted by Hugo Rinaldi. Baritone Byron Jones will be the cantor, and Doris Goldberg will be the organist.

Jones will sing the cantorial solos in Hebrew, and the choirs will sing in English.

Nationally-known artist Lucienne Bloch Dimitroff, one of the composer's two daughters, who lived in Mill Valley many years before moving to Mendocino County, will speak briefly on the significance of this work to the composer. Her daughter, Mrs. Boyan Milcev of Mill Valley, will sing in the choir.

While Bloch was director from 1925 to 1930 of the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, he spent much time in Marin County, especially in Mill Valley, and composed some of his music there. A Bloch festival was held at the College of Marin in 1965.

"Bloch composed this music as his supreme exaltation of the Jewish faith, "Jones said. "In it he expressed the ardent desire that men will at last recognize that they are brothers and live in harmony and peace.

"This message of brotherhood transcends the boundaries of religious faith and is heard through the universal voice of music."

The church is located at Fifth and H streets.

DISCUSS WORK—Baritone Byron Jones and conductor Hugo Rinaldi look over the score of Ernest Bloch's "Sacred Service," which the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael will present tomorrow as part of its centennial celebration. Draft Stand By Bishops Causes Shock

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The bishops of the Episcopal Church have caused considerable distress to some members of their fold who are still old-fashioned enough to believe in such things as honor, duty and the necessity of obeying the law even when you don't like it.

In a resolution adopted last week at South Bend, Ind., the Episcopal bishops called on the government to grant amnesty to men who have evaded the draft or deserted from the army rather serve in Vietnam.

I'm sure the bishops regarded their action as an expression of Christian compassion for courageous young idealists who are conscientiously opposed to what the United States is doing in Vietnam.

THE OTHERS

But what about the other courageous young Americans who have gone to war on distant battlefields of southeast Asia, not because they approved of our commitment there, but simply because they have been brought up to believe it is wrong to cop out on your country, even when you think it's making a mistake?

Bishops threw them a sop by adding to the resolution at the last minute an expression of "loyalty and devotion" to men in uniform. But this was plainly an afterthought.

It would have been enlightening for the bishops to walk through Ward 32 of Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington on the morning that the Washington Post gave prominent display to a story about their amnesty resolution.

WARD 32

Ward 32 is a long, grim room with a row of beds along each wall. Most of the beds are occupied by soldiers who have been badly wounded in Vietnam. Some of them are crippled for life. But they count themselves lucky. At least, they will tell you, they didn't come home in a box—as many of their buddies have.

If the Episcopal bishops talked with these young men—or others like them whose battle scars are psychological and emotional rather than physical—they would discover that very few had any illusion they were waging a noble crusade in Vietnam. They went because they felt they had to—which is to say, because they could not stomach any of the alternatives. And they are bitterly aware that there are several alternatives.

One which appears to have dominated the thinking of the Episcopal bishops, holds: "I consider this war immoral and therefore I refuse to serve in it, regardless of what it may cost me to take this stand."

FULLY PREPARED

Beyond doubt there are many young men who sincerely feel that way and who are fully prepared to accept the consequences—imprisonment or self-exile—which society has prescribed as the price of such an act of civil disobedience. The men in Ward 32 respect that.

But they will tell you about other motives for avoiding combat duty in Vietnam—such as an ardent desire to preserve a whole skin—and they can also list methods which have been successfully employed by their friends and acquaintances.

One easy out that is frequently used, they say, is to fake a disability that will make you 4F. There are a number of ingenious ways of doing it. If all else fails, you can tell the ingenious ways of doing it.

Another popular alternative—flight to Canada or Sweden—has hitherto had one great disadvantage: you couldn't come home again without facing trial and possible imprisonment.

The amnesty urged by the Episcopal bishops would, of course, remove that difficulty.

Greek Orthodox Church Of Marin Seeking New Status

The Greek Orthodox Church of Marin reached a milestone two Sundays ago when 65 families formally applied to the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of North and South America for recognition as a congregation.

On hand for the event at St. Anselm's Parish Hall was Bishop Meletios, prelate of the Western United States.

The action was necessary, according to Dr. Ted Preovolos, president of the congregation, before the church can be assigned a permanent priest. The church is presently being served by Rev. George Bogdanos of Oakland.

The church, which was organized in February, holds Sunday services in Montgomery Chapel on the San Anselmo Theological Seminary campus.

Seminar Set On Family Communication

Dr Cecil Osborne, auth0r ot "The Art of Understanding Yourself" and senior minister of hte First Baptist Church in Burlihgame since 1936, will lead a seminar on family communcation next Saturday at the Church of All Faiths (American Baptist Convention) in Corte Madera.

The session will begin at 1:30 p.m. with Dr. Osborne speaking on the theme of family communication involving parents, children and friends. Small group sessions will follow at 2:45 p.m. and the last hour will be devoted to a question and answer.

The seminar is under direction of the church's evangelism committee headed by Dr. James Anderson.

In announcing plans, Dr. Anderson emphasized the program is designed for teen-agers and parents who seem to have great difficulty in communicating.

Dr. Osborne has been associated with this type of program for the past 10 years. Since 1958 he has served as west coast director of Yokefellows, which has done experimental work in the field of communication.

Concert Will Benefit Church

A concert "An Evening to Remember," will be presented by nationally-known baritone Robert Peterson at 8 p.m. next Saturday at the Novato Ward Cultural Hall at Center Road and Kenyon Lane in Novato.

The concert is a benefit for the building fund of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.

Peterson starred on Broadway when he replaced Robert Goulet as Lancelot in the musical "Camelot." He has appeared in numerous television shows. He has starred with the American Opera Society in "La Boheme", "Aida," and "La Traviata." He has also starred in summer stock productions of such musicals as "Brigadoon", "South Pacific," "Pipe Dream," and "Pajama Game."

Theological Study No Longer Cloistered

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Theological study, once carried on mostly in quiet academies apart from the technological and social sciences, today is increasingly pursued in close conjunction with those fields.

The shift has set off, some physical, as well as mental, readjustment.

Besides moving to keep in touch with secular disciplines, theology also has generally broken out of its denominational orbits, and now goes on mostly in a context of various approaches to faith.

"There's an expanded awareness that theological work has to be done in association with various religious traditions and also with other areas of knowledge," says the Rev. John Gallen, a Roman Catholic theologian.

INVOLVES ALL

"It involves the whole human experience, not just part of it."

That quest for wider horizons was symbolized here when the 100-year-old Jesuit seminary, Woodstock College, this fall completed the first stage of a move from its rural, woodland setting in Maryland to a cosmopolitan educational complex in Manhattan.

Here, the once-sequestered Catholic classes go on in cooperative interchanges with Protestant Union Theological Seminary, the Jewish Theological Seminary of America and Columbia University, all in the same uptown area.

Ceremonies formalizing the new Protestant-Catholic academic ties were held this week.

"It's not enough to study only theology, or only Catholic theology," said Father Gallen, a Woodstock professor and director of the college's new research Center for Religion and Worship.

"We need to examine other traditions as well, both Protestant and Jewish thought, and we've also got to keep abreast of the university sciences, the whole world of man—it's all in God's province."

And that inclusive divine sphere is the business of theology, sometimes called the "queen of sciences."

THROUGH SCIENCE

Through other scientific and intellectual disciplines, however, "we know much more about man and his world than in the past," Father Gallen noted.

"And theology has to take this knowledge into account if it is to deal fully with reality, as we now understand it."

Woodstock's move here, from its 687-acre tract in the hills 20 miles west of Baltimore, is part of a trend that has involved many seminaries in moves for closer links with a broader educational spectrum.

Among the major new cooperative arrangements are the Boston Theological Institute, involving seven Protestant and Catholic seminaries in that area, and the Graduate Theological Union at Berkeley, Calif., involving 10 seminaries.

In Dubuque, Iowa, representatives of Presbyterian and Roman Catholic seminaries this fall completed agreement on plans for sharing classroom, office and dormitory space.

In Dayton, Ohio, four Theological seminaries—Lutheran, Methodist, Catholic and United Church—are considering a "cluster" arrangement there for sharing faculty, curricular resources and other facilities.

OTHERS FORMED

Similar new theological groupings have formed elsewhere, in Atlanta, Philadelphia, Chicago and Rochester, N.Y.

In Woodstock's transfer to the new Manhattan scene, about a third of its faculty and study body — 68 students and eight professors — moved this fall, while 130 students and 15 professors still are at the Maryland campus.

The rest will move in the fall of 1970, completing the shift.

"It's an exciting new atmosphere, with tremendous possibilities." Father Gallen said. "We're all very enthusiastic about it."

The Jesuit faculty members here rent office space in a Union seminary building, Reed House. and have classrooms rented at Union, at nearby Riverside Church and the Interchurch Center, an interdenominational office building.

There are library and instructional exchanges among the different religious schools, Jewish, Protestant and Catholic. Four ordained Jesuit seniors are enrolled in the Protestant seminary working on advanced degrees.

LIVE TOGETHER

Most of the students and faculty live in a newly renovated apartment building where they did much of the painting and wall-papering themselves.

The school's newly opened Center for Religion and Worship conducts research into patterns of American religious life, and is working to produce new liturgical rites especially suited to the American people.

Branches To Print New Periodical

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI)—Rerpesentatives of the Church and Society agencies of the Presbyterian Church in the United States and the United Presbyterian Church have announced plans to publish jointly a new magazine entitled Church and Society.

According to spokesmen, the publication date for the new magazine is January 1970.

Minister Is Named For Church Youth

Wallace Kuroiwa, who is working on an advanced degree at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry, has been named to the new office of minister of youth at the First Baptist Church in San Anselmo.

As youth minister, Kuroiwa will develop an active youth program within the church and community.

A native of Hawaii and a graduate of the University of Hawaii, he is completing his master's degree in philosophy at the Baptist seminary.

Kuroiwa was introducted to the youth of the church at an informal gathering last Sunday at the San Anselmo home of the church's pastor, Dr. Ralph J. Fortune.

Secretary Named

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (UPI)—Miss Elizabeth Chambers has been named interim field secretary for the Philippine Baptist Mission. Miss Chambers, a missionary of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society, will continue as head librarian for the Central Philippine University in Llolio City.

Cedars Aids Retarded For 50 Years

By VIOLET RYAN

The first school in the west for the retarded, founded in 1919 as the Cedars School, is still going strong at its original site a beautiful woodsy estate in Ross.

The school, now known as the Cedars Development Foundation, was founded by Gabrielle Renshaw and Cora Myers, a contemporary and friend of Maria Montessori and Helen Deveraux.

They were among the earliest pioneer in recongizing that the mentally retarded have a place in society, that with proper training they can lead secure and happy lives and that many less severly retarded can make a meaningful contribution.

WHEN THEY founded the Cedars School, there were four children, two teachers and four housemothers, and two of the original students are still there.

The school now has 75 boarders and 20 day pupils, varying in age from four to 61, a full school program from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and counselors working from 3 to 8 p.m. with a varied recreation program.

Miss Myers and Miss Renshaw retired in 1938, and Mrs. Marie Tappendorff, who had been working at the school since 1936, bought an interest in it,

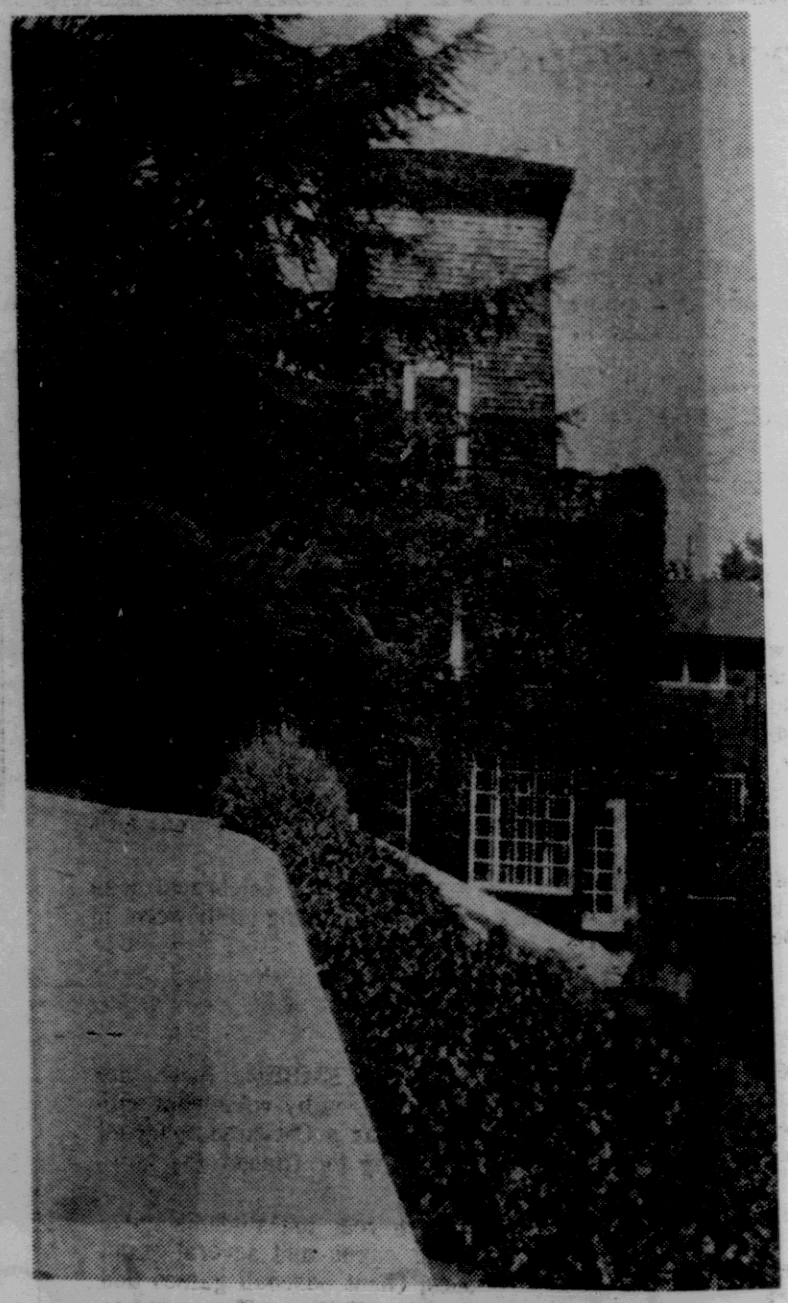
GIRLS DORMITORY at the school are homey and gaily decorated with rooms for one, two, three or four congenial children in the same age group.



A WOODSY setting and homey atmosphere at the Cedars Development Foundation in Ross provides the most effective background for helping retarded children achieve to the best of their ability.

SWIMMING AT the ranch pool, north of Sunny Hills in San Anselmo, is a popular summer exercise with teacher Mrs. Frances Coutandin, in white bathing suit, giving a few pointers to the children. and became director.

A NEW dormitory was constructed in 1940 and another in 1946, rooms were added to the school and the teaching staff was increased to 10.

After making the school a non-profit foundation in 1965, Mrs. Tappendorff retired and John McIvor became the top administrator.

The foundation also operated a 22-acre "ranch," north of Sunny Hills in San Anselmo for older males, which is staffed by a house mother and father.

During summer vacation there is supervised swimming every day, horseback riding, crafts and an outdoor play and summer camp area. Children participate in bowling, roller skating and cub scouting. The foundation is still looking for a Girl Scout leader for the girls.

EACH STUDENT is assigned some small task within his ability with each encouraged to do his best and to be proud of his accomplishment.

While the program at the school is structured, it is not rigid — if there is an unexpectedly beautiful day, books are put aside, a picnic lunch assembled and there is an outing to a beach or park.

More recently the foundation purchased a main home and ranch house in Los Ranchitos, where five girls of teen-age live with house parents and attend special classes in public schools.

It is considered a "halfway house" where the girls learn home-making skills preparatory to going home to parents or foster parents. A similar home for five boys of teen-age is in the planning.

AT THE school the aim is to make the students, young and old, happier, healthier and more self-reliant.

There are gaily decorated dormitories with rooms for one, two, three or four congenial children in the same age group. The home-making room is often filled with the delicious aroma of cookies and the crafts room seems to be always busy, and about now there is increased activity in making Christmas gifts for parents.

Holidays are celebrated with parties including Halloween in costume and a birthday party for each at a decorated table with the cake of his chosing that he helped to ice.

IN DECEMBER, there are parties given by volunteers with the climax a Christmas pageant and party for friends and family.

Each year the students go to a big circus and several small ones, Giant baseball games and the Ice Follies. The summer program usually is concluded with a special treat, and this year it was a trip to Marine

"Why Did My Dress Pucker and Shrink?"

The other day we discussed heat-sensitive adhesives and the stains they cause. This time your problem is caused by a heat-sensitive fabric. We find more and more of this as certain synthetic fibers are combined in fabric construction.

Your dress contains a polyvinyl chloride fiber which shrinks excessively in normal drying and steam finishing. This causes the shrinkage which brings about the size change and puckering.

A dress containing this fiber should carry a label stating, plainly, that the dress should have special handling. Nothing can be done to restore the size of the dress or to reduce the puckering. Shrinkage of heat-sensitive fibers is permanent. The fault lies with the manufacturer who uses such a fiber and fails to label the garment for special handling or with the customer who removes the warning label.

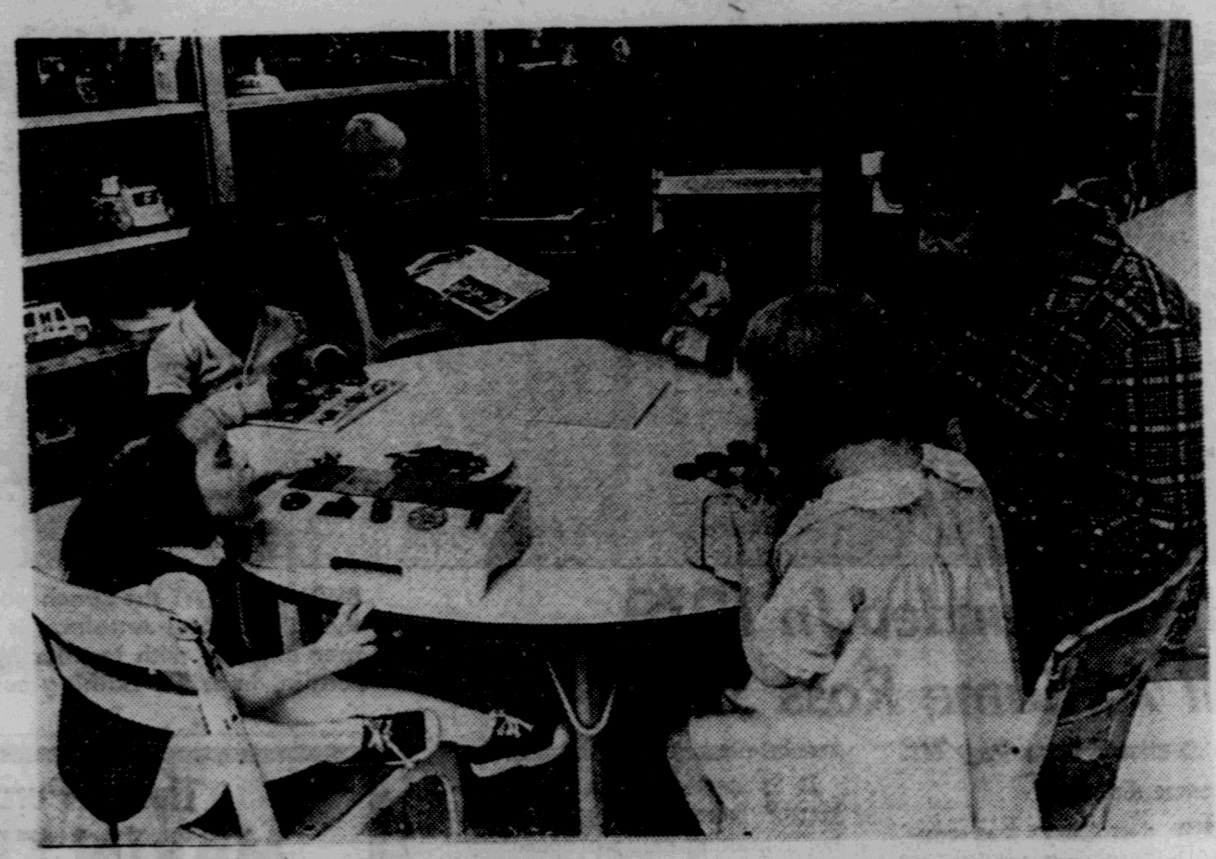
During the school year there is a dinner dance once a month for those older than teen-age, and an afternoon dancing party for juniors, with social graces and good manners stressed.

There has been a large group of volunteers, coaching in classrooms, helping in recreation, taking children to their homes for lunch, dinner, overnight and sometine for weekends.

Fifty years ago the retarded were hidden away through lack of understanding of their potentials, but now it is known they can live busy and happy lives, and Cedars is doing its best to bring this about.

LIVING ROOM at the school in Ross has the flavor of home life, a cheerful environment and the pleasures that ease the strain of living for the retarded.

THE HOMEMAKING ROOM where girls learn simple sewing and both boys and girls try their hand at cooking is a place where learning comes at a practical level. This scene is busy with teacher Clara Griffin presiding over the making of cookies and some girls at their sewing.



NURSERY CLASS is one of the special areas at the school which meets the needs of the younger group in an attractive, warm setting lending a relaxed atmosphere. Teacher Mrs. Myrtle Heinecke holds the attention of several students while one boy in the background is enjoying himself by following the story of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs along with the record.

HALFWAY HOUSE in Los Ranchitos for teen-aged girls is a step toward going home to parents or foster parents for girls who learn home-making skills and also attend special classes in public school.

Gene Nelson Believes . . . Be Yourself

KSFO Personality Tried Playing Parts At Mike

In a time of youth revolt and upheaval, one Marin man has done much to help and understand today's young by offering them a rather simple philosophy but one that took many years and much experience to learn: "Always be true; always be yourself."

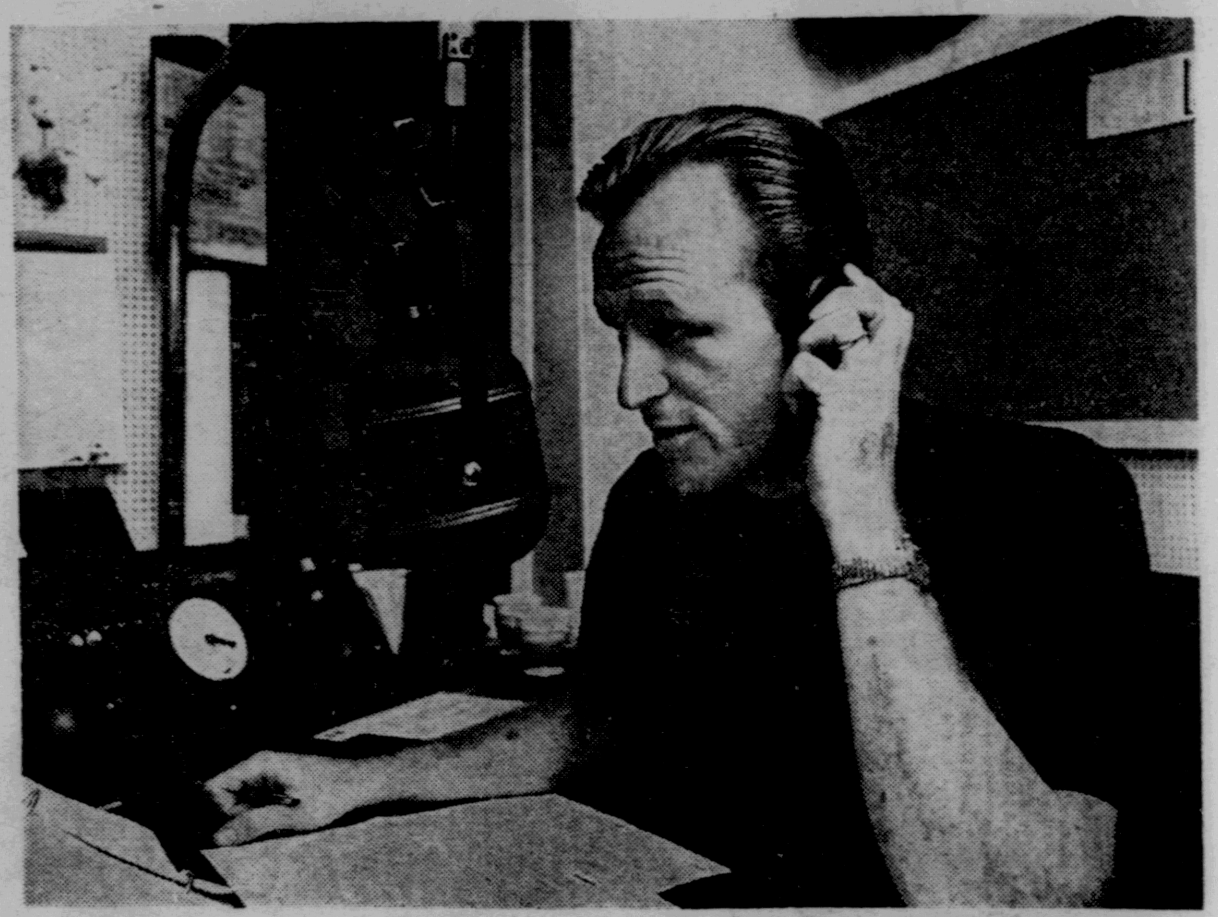
KSFO's Gene Nelson, long time Sausalito resident, is considered one of the country's top radio personalities. As such, he has had his share of celebrity interviews, record pluggers and oddball happenings.

But one of his major interests has always been with the young. Earlier in his career he was with a "top 10" radio station catering much to teenagers.

HIS POPULARITY was so tremendous that he won a number of radio awards, the teenagers dubbed him "Emperor Nelson" — a title which, to some extent, remains with him to this day — and even reached some sort of peak of glory when he was asked to host the Beatles during their first Bay Area appearance at Candlestick Park.

"Only with a top 40 station," Nelson recently explained, "You have to give the impression of being single, under and available. This wasn't me and I never tried to give that impression. I think the kids respected me more because of my just being honest with them."

WHILE HIS range of appeal since joining KSFO has increased to an even wider listening audience, his work and interests with youngsters still remain. As an example, he and his wife, Barbara, working on behalf of their church, recently inaugurated the Sausalito Youth Center which has proven extremely popular. His wife worked there almost constantly until just recently when a full-time director was hired. Nelson is an elder in the Sausalito Presbyterian Church.



AT WORK Gene Nelson of Sausalito follows his philosophy of being himself, after earlier attempts at playing a part while at the mike.

Asked about today's youth with their anxieties and problems, Nelson offers an added bit of philosophy: "I don't ask what are the kids coming to) I ask where are they coming from?"

NELSON'S RADIO career began at Syracuse University and, like most personalities in front of the public, he attempted various styles. "I thought for a time I'd use a comic approach. Then I became "Mr. Sincere." One day I said to myself, "Who am I?" I never felt right playing parts. At that time it hit me like the well known thunderboldt. Just like the old saying: Honesty is the best policy. Since then I've always been just myself."

And, since being just "himself," Nelson's fame and fortune have soared. He has been seen on TV commercials, modeling, often serving as m.c. at anything from fashion to talent shows and even gaining a small role in a Julie Christie movie filmed here simply because, "I'm a Julie Christie fan."

Somewhat unique in broad-

casting, Neslon majored in "being a disc jockey." As he added, "This was almost an unheard of happening.

"Most people think being a deejay is an attempt to find a backdoor into show business. Others majored in radio with the idea of becoming eventually a program director or a station owner."

"IT SEEMS the radio bug hit Nelson early in life, at the age of 13 when he was interviewed on a local station in Zanesville, Ohio. At that moment, he knew exactly his goal.

Nelson worked his way through Syracuse at a local radio station where he served as all night man. "I managed to do my homework while playing some pretty long records in those days," he said. The home work obviously paid off because Nelson graduated Magna Cum Laude in Radio-TV in 1959.

His philosophy of "always be yourself" took shape almost with his first interview. Artie Shaw had come to town and Nelson spent hours reading data on Shaw trying to anticipate the questions he thought his listeners would want answered.

HE TOOK great pride in thinking how original and unusual the questions seemed. Until he started talking with Shaw who had heard all of the questions "at least 10,000 times before."

Nelson, Barbara and five-year-old Christopher Todd — and a family dog appropriately named Dawg — are an active Marin family. Gene recently appeared in a Tennessee Williams play presented by the Mill Valley Performing Art Center and Barbara received acclaim for her recent role in the Ross Valley production of "A Thousands Clowns."

In addition, the family likes to golf, ski and have recently started taking skin diving lessons from Sausalito's Jerry Thompson.

Nelson, who is also an outstanding musical historian, also recently completed an acting course at the University of California and was accepted by the American Conservatory Theater. But his hours at KSFO, 8 p.m. to midnight, conflicted with therir performance schedule.

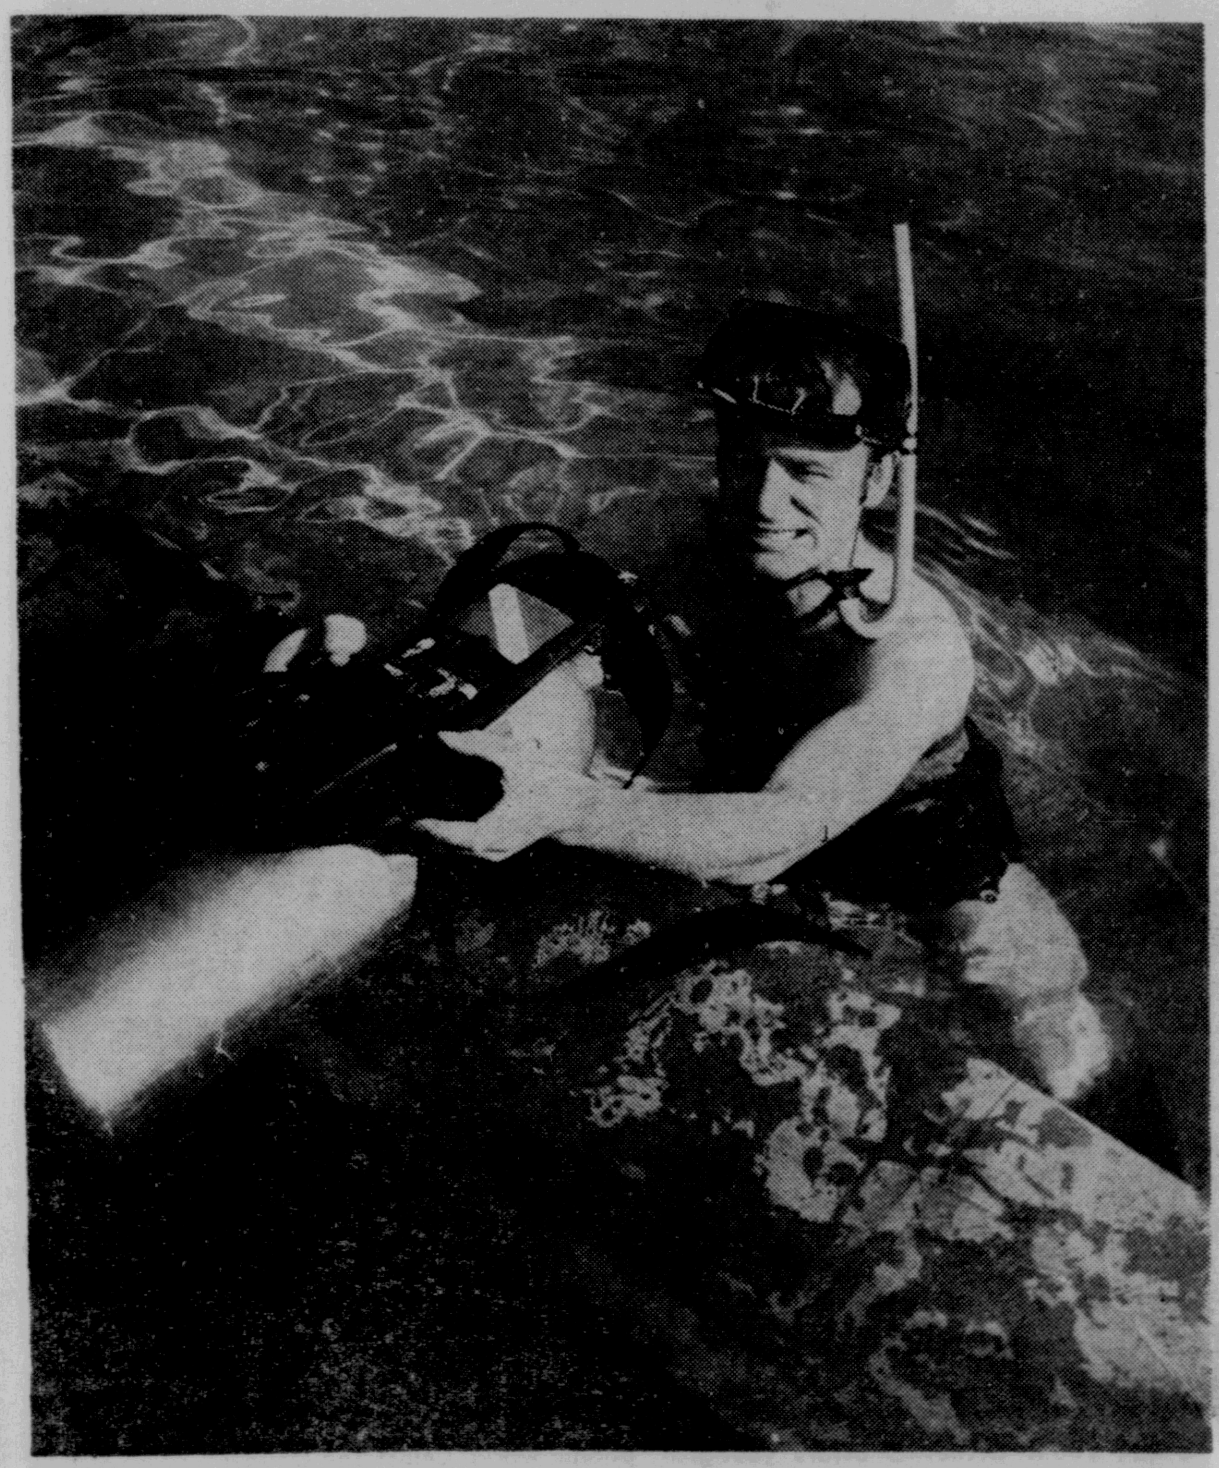
As if his schedule weren't full enough, Nelson has started teaching a course in announcing at the College of San Mateo three times a week.

HE RECENTLY conducted a contest where he "gave himself away" for a day. Among the winners were a Marin woman who wanted him to narrate a movie on conservation, a teacher in Hayward who asked him to teach her sixth grade class on civics, and a group who wanted him to be master of ceremonies at a fashion show.

ONE OF the Nelson families better guarded secrets — although KSFO listeners are aware of it — is the fact that he calls his wife, on the air, "Bubbles." It seems many years ago they both worked at the same radio station in New York where there was a strict rule against employees dating each other. Nelson, on the air, would say, "I'm going out with Bubbles tonight." This was the signal for Barbara to get ready for a date.

But as for working with youth, Nelson summed it all up by saying, "In getting along with the young, always be honest yourself. You don't have to always agree with the kids but be truthful. They'll appreciate your honesty. I've had scores of phone calls from teenagers about music, clothes, language and I've always given them the most honest answer possible."

That might be just the right tip for everyone to follow.



PHYSICAL ACTIVITY doesn't faze Nelson, who is taking skin diving lessons in Sausalito from Jerry Thompson, after trying his hand at golf and skiing.

SELECTING TUNES for his show, Nelson reflects his wide interest in music.

Marin Symphony Guild Scope Broad

Expanded Program Planned With New Auditorium Near

BY MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Few people in Marin, especially newcomers, have a complete understanding of the full scope of activities in connection with the Marin Symphony Orchestra.

While the Marin Symphony Guild is conducting its 18th annual membership campaign, a review is in order of these activities and the history and ambitious plans of the most comprehensive music program in Marin County.

The main purpose of the Guild is the support of the Marin Symphony Orchestra, founded in 1951 when the Orchestra numbered 30 players under the direction of Gaston Usigli, founder of the Carmel Bach Festival.

Since then the Orchestra has grown to 75 professional, semi-professional and amateur musicians under the baton of Sandor Salgo, professor of music at Stanford University and conductor of the Carmel Bach Festival. He also conducts the Stanford and San Jose Symphony Orchestras and is music director of the Stanford Opera. He has conducted the Marin Symphony since 1956.

ORIGINAL FOUNDERS of the Orchestra, Mr. and Mrs. Barry Boland, Mrs. Lucien Mitchell, Mrs. J. Paul Oppenheim and Mrs. Ralph B. Dewey are still active as players and/or supporters.

The governing body of the Marin Symphony is a 30-member board of directors chosen from the Orchestra and the community.

Mrs. Robert L. Schultz, current president, was also president from 1958 to 1960 and founded in 1960 the Marin Symphony Auxiliary, which has charge of all social events of the Guild.

In addition to the Orchestra the Guild sponsors a wide variety of other programs.

THE MARIN YOUTH ORCHESTRA, now in its 15th year, is composed of many talented oung instrumentalists in Marin several elementary schools. Its several elementary schools.Its members are required to leave the Orchestra on graduation from high school so that each year new young musicians are able to participate.

The Orchestra has been directed since its inception by Hugo Rinaldo, one of Marin's outstanding music educators. An accomplished violinist, Rinaldi is director of music for the San Rafael School District and conducts the Marin Chamber Orchestra.

WORKSHOP FOR STRINGS: In order to prepare young string players for admission to the Youth Orchestra a workshop for strings for elementary school and high school students is conducted by Robert L. Jacobson of the San Rafael School District Music Department.

MUSIC FOR MINORS: The Guild's Music for Minors program, inactive last year, will be re-instated this year. This consists of educational and entertaining musical programs for elementary school children, and the purpose is to acquaint the young with symphonic music and demonstrate the structure and instrumentation of symphony, using the Marin Symphony programs as the basis.

SCHOLARSHIP FUND: A memorial scholarship fund has been established to build a perpetual fund for an annual scholarship of $500 for advanced young musicians. The fund is being built and maintained by memorial donations, bequests and special contributions.

POPS CONCERTS: Recent pops concerts have been such outstanding successes that it is hoped they can be scheduled regularly as spring and fall events at the Marin Art and Garden Center. The next one will be presented on Sunday, May 31.

MRS. RALPH B. DEWEY is the president of the Marin Symphony Auxiliary, which is in charge of the social activities of the Guild.

The Marin Symphony guild also has social activities which are the responsibility of the Marin Symphony Auxiliary. Mrs. Ralph B. Dewey is the current president.

MUSIC FOR MAJORS: The Auxiliary holds regular demonstration programs for members. Important events are preview luncheons held preceding the three annual concerts at one of the Marin Country Clubs, and a Symphony Dinner Party will also be held at one of these clubs.

Marin Symphony Orchestra Grows To 75 Musicians

Inspired by critical acclaim of its symphony Orchestra and the magnificent new Veterans Memorial Auditorium soon to be available at the Civic Center, the Guild is undertaking a major expansion program. Expected within five years is a six-concert instead of three-concert series; two annual pops concerts; three instead of two Youth Orchestra concerts; and additional musical offerings for the young.

Among innovations this year is the hiring as part-time manager of Marcelle B. McCoy, manager of the annual Marin Art and Garden Fair, whose office is shared by the Marin Symphony.

For the first time this year, since seating facilities in the new auditorium will be limited, concert tickets are not included with Guild memberships.

ADVANTAGES of Guild membership are (1) first call on season tickets and reserved seats for both the Symphony and Youth Orchestra concerts (2) invitation to the annual Symphony Dinner Party and concert preview luncheons (3) admission to dress rehearsals of the Symphony Orchestra and (4) printing of names of associate members and above on all Symphony concert programs.

Memnership classifications are Friend, $5; Associate Member, $10; Sustaining Member, $25; Sponsor, $50; Patron, $100; and Benefactor, $500 and over. All memberships are fully tax deductible.

Until the new auditorium is available regular concerts of the subscription series will be performed in the College of Marin gymnasium on Sundays at 7:30 p.m. Concert dates are Nov. 30, Feb. 8 and April 26.

YOUTH ORCHESTRA concerts at San Rafael High School auditorium will be presented on Jan. 25 and May 10.

Further information about Symphony Guild memberships, for which the campaign will run through Nov. 3, and series ticket subscriptions may be obtained by calling the Marin Symphony office at the Marin Art and Garden Center.

The Marin Symphony Orchestra is in every sense a community orchestra. While a few players are professional musicians who also play with the San Francisco Symphony (Jean and Lucien Michell, Carl Modell and Michael Gerling), most are non-professionals who live and work in Marin County.

FOR SOME it is very much a family affair. They include the husband-wife teams of Jean(cello) and Lucien (viola) Mitchell; Charles (violin) and Robaline (piano) Meacham; Barry (violin) and Alice (cello) Boland; and Saul (violin) and Mona Cello) Dubman, whose daughter, Madeline, (flute) formerly played and soloed with the Marin Youth Orchestra and now plays with the Marin Symphony.

William Barnes (bass) has two daughters, Emilie (violin) and Julie (harp) who play with the Marin Youth Orchestra, which his wife manages.

Among those who teach music in schools are Lynn Dowdey (tympani) Dixie School District; Marjorie Whittelsy (violin) Corte Madera; Jane Pokorney (violin) Reed School, Tiburon; Robert Greenwood (bass) Tamalpais High School; James Chesnut (trumpet) San Francisco; Tod Fleming (percussion) Mill Valley; Jean Stevens (principal oboist) San Rafael. Charles Meachan, who is assistant conductor of the Marin Symphony, is a music instructor at the College of Marin.

Players can also be recognized in Marin wearing other

ONE OF innovations of the Marin Symphony Guild this year is the hiring of Marcelle B. Schultz, president of the Marin Symphony Guild (identify right to left) look at plans of the Veterans Memorial Auditorium at the Civic Center, where Marin Symphony concerts will be held when it is completed.

THE BOOK PAGES

Writing Animal Characters Takes Tricky Bit Of Doing

By DON KEOWN

WILD GOOSE, BROTHER GOOSE by Mel Ellis; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 159 pages, $4.95.

WINE . . . WISDOM . . . & WHIMSY edited by Sidney B. Taylor; Winepress, 168 pages, $6.95.

One of the trickiest things about writing a novel with animals as the chief characters is the differentiation between instinct and reasoning.

Man at least likes to think of himself as a reasoning creature, and he tends therefore to endow other animals with the same attribute, sometimes to a degree that is injurious to the authenticity of the book.

Even such a skilled practitioner of the genre as Mel Ellis is unable to avoid this fault completely.

Duke the gander, hero of his "Wild Goose, Brother Goose," sometimes seems more human than waterfowl. This, however, occurs only periodically, and for the most part, Ellis is freer than most of his fellow craftsmen from this confusion.

He also avoids sticky sentimentality without in any way diminishing the appeal of Duke and the other wildlife that populate his book.

Duke is a Canada goose, an aristocrat among North America's waterfowl, and Ellis follows him through two years of his eventful life: It is a saga of a whole series of disasters of varying sizes — dogs, traps, guns, wolves, hunger, a tornado, blizzard. They cost Duke his mate and his offspring. But somehow, with an indomitable will, Duke himself survived it all. And in the end he guides a wounded female goose through ice and snow to safety, and in so doing seems to gain some kind of inner release from responsibility that at last wins for him his complete and natural freedom.

Of Duke's many foes, man is by far the most menacing.

Listen to this description of the carnage inflicted on opening day of the season by hunters hiding along the boundaries of a protected refuge:

"As was their habit, the geese began morning flights at dawn, and lead like a blizzard swept the perimeter of the marsh. Armadas of geese wilted, and the voices of terrified birds was a thin violin string of sound across the drum beat of guns. They fell like flies caught in a lethal spray.

"Birds with broken wings plummeted. Geese absorbing fatal body shots set their wings and sailed to burst their breasts on the hard ground. Some came down like rags. Others turned end over end, craning their necks. Geese climbed and dived and sailed and fell in every conceivable aerial attitude as flocks disintegrated.

"Some families rallied, only to be blown apart again. Distraught geese followed fallen mates straight into the guns.

"For 15 minutes shots crackled like the sounds of a fire running through a forest. Then it was as though the geese remembered and the shooting diminished and there were only sporadic explosions, as among the ashes when the fire has passed.

"The great mass of geese settled back into the refuge. Except for the persistently mournful cries of widow and widower, the flock was mostly silent. Only the single geese remained aloft, reluctant to end their search. And sometimes youngsters, with no parents to guide them, flew into the guns."

Sounds like marvelous sport, doesn't it! Great fun!

Ellis, writing for all ages and from a rich background of nature knowledge, has followed his earlier "Run, Rainey, Run" and "Softly Roars the Lion" with yet another animal novel of exceptional merit and meaning.

THE PURPLE Thumb is a bi-monthly magazine for connoisseurs and students of the grape, launched last year at Winepress Publishing Co., Box 4016, Portland Oregon.

The Thumb deals with such subjects as recipes using or to be used with wines, the making of wines and beers, viticulture, wine lore and etiquette, etc.

The magazine does not take itself or its subject at all seriously maintaining a lighthearted tone. Nevertheless, it is well designed and well written.

Now Sidney B. Taylor and Ken Martino, editor and art director respectively of The Purple Thumb, have wrapped up the first eight issues of their publication in their entirety, placed them between some handsome hardcovers, and served them up as a book under the title "Wine . . . Wisdom . . . & Whimsy."

Unquestionably, there is thus included a lot of reading fun, ranging from how to make pineapple and barley wines to the merits of different wine glasses, from wine-buying tips to hors d'oeuvres recipes.

Yet, just bundling up a bunch of magazines, covers, advertisements and all, seems a rather loose way of editing and publishing, no matter how attractive the packaging. What you winde up with is nothing more nor less than the bound volumes of a magazine, although in a somewhat more convenient format.

Taylor and Martino, it would seem, might have gone to the trouble of exercising a bit of selectivity, at least culling out those letters to the editor that simply praise the magazine or subject checks for subscriptions. It would have contributed to the professionalism of what is, nonetheless, a most readable, entertaining and useful book.

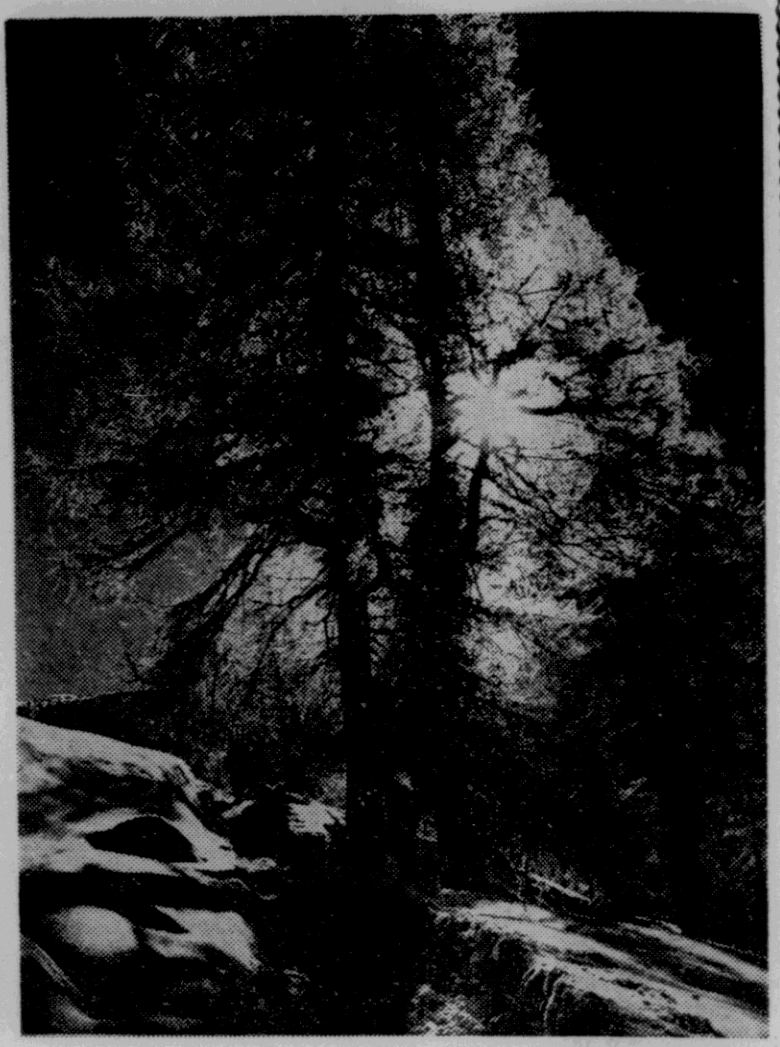
SO YOU'D like to be the local version of Bob Hope at your service club or the life of the party with your social set?

Robert Orben, a veteran author of humor and joke books and a syndicated columnist, has assembled some 2,000 short quips by topics for speakers and others under the title "The Ad-Libber's Handbook" (Doubleday, $4.95)

Zingers like: "I've got only one question about those short dresses. How can you tell if they shrink?"

And: "I've got an idea that's gonna make me a fortune. Sen-Sen flavored booze."

At that, the stuff no worse than the material in a monologue by Hope or most of the other stand-up comedians. But then Hope is a national institution whose public apparently will forgive him anything. The rest of us hardly qualify as such, and we would be letting fly with one-liners like "Things are getting so bad even the muggers won't go out alone" at our won risk, which might be considerable.



A FEELING for light is a photographic must explains renowned photographer Alfred Eisenstaedt in "The Eye of Eisenstaedt" (Viking $6.95). This photograph of St. Moritz in 1947 makes use of natural sunlight to enhance the winter morning scene, convey a mood and atmosphere.

Sleuths & Suspense

HELL'S BELLE by Joan Fleming; Ives Washburn; 224 pages; $3.95. Reviewed by Mary Leydecker.

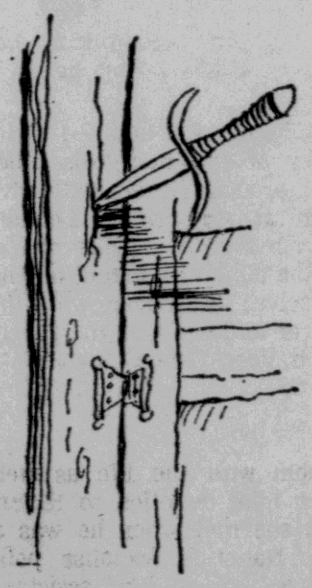
This chilling little tale of an 18-year-old Parisian girl whose main object in life is to find someone to kill her stepmother for her.

Being a lovely young thing, Alexandra has no trouble in ensnaring an Englishman she calls Georges in the real and imagined events of her life.

They met in a Paris bar where Georges steadies her after she downs six Chartreuses.

From there they go on to attempted suicide, murder and all sorts of sordid events interspersed love-making in such settings as a cemetery and attic.

Miss Fleming can certainly write, and her subject matter may be meat for many. The ending is suitably surprising and dramatic, and while the book is pretty sick, it's not as bad as the dust jacket — a hideous thing in orange and magenta.



THE VENOM BUSINESS, by John Lange, World Publishing, 310 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

Not all venom is in the snake business. Charles Raynaud knows about snakes and the business of putting them in false-bottomed boxes so the treasures of Mexico can be smuggled to rich customers.

One rich customer leads to another and to another hazardous job, and for awhile in the world of booze, dope and miniskirts in London, Raynaud seems almost to lead the life of a double agent — and as such he's doubly sure of ending up dead.

On one side is a glamorous former French singer and on the other her 24-year-old playboy step-son each trying to do the other out of a big inheritance. If Raynaud plays his cards right, for one side or the other he's bound to walk away with a chunk for himself. In a novel strewn with sex and narcotics games, cruelty, cowardice and crudity, about the only thing that's worth hanging onto is the suspense and there's plenty of it.

SOLACE WITH SARCASM IN A NEW COLLECTION

"A Calendar of Consolation" (Funk & Wagnalls, $3.95) is a collection of quotations selected by Leonard Woolf from a variety of sources, all dealing with solace, but in a diversity of ways with the sardonic predominating:

Some examples:

"By night an atheist half believes a God." Young—"Night Thoughts."

"Important people call their amusements business." St. Augustine—"Confessions."

"Repentance is but want of power to sin." Dryden—"Palomon and Arcite."

"We always have been, we are, and I hope that we always shall be detested in France." Duke of Wellington—"Letter to Lady Wilton."

"It is a disturbing truth that even undertakers die sometimes." Arnold Bennett—"In a New Bottle."

"I will praise any man that will praise me." Shakespeare—"Antony and Cleopatra."

"Society is now one polished horde, Formed of two mighty tribes, the bores and bored." Byron—"Don Juan."

Some New Books For Junior Readers

"A Baby Starts to Grow" (Crowell, $3.50) is one of a number of "facts-of-life" books to be published in recent months for the very young children.

New York newspaperman Paul Showers begins where he left off with his earlier "Before You Were a Baby," the story of conception, to tell, with the aid of illustrator Rosalind Fry, how the pre-born infant develops in the mother's womb.

The book ends with the delivery of the baby and his start of a life of his own.

It is part of the publisher's Let's Read-and-Find-Out Science Series. The presentation is frank, yet in good taste. The decision as to whether the very young are ready for this kind of information, and whether such a book is the best source, or a helpful tool in making clear the explanation, will have to rest with each set of parents. But if the answer is "yes" then "A Baby Starts to Grow" is well-done, responsible and well executed.

Some other new books for the juniors:

The lighthouse has always been something of a symbol of adventure for young Americans. Robert Carse, seaman, officer and yachtsman as well as writer, keeps alive the romantic aura while also being sound scientifically and historically in his "Keepers of the Lights," the factual story of the lighthouse service since pre-Revolutionary times. Carse spotlights the men who have operated the lights and thus gives his history a human interest base. California stations, of course, figure in the book.

Another history for young readers is "The Hudson" (McGraw-Hill, $5.50) by Manuel Komroff, telling the story of one of America's great rivers. Konroff traces the role the Hudson has played in the development of our East. And perhaps, at the conclusion, he is overly optimistic in assessing the present fondition of the badly polluted stream. But the book makes good reading.

When his widowed mother re-weds, young Toby Steel is left behind in Wyoming to live with a grandfather he has never seen. The old man proves to be a recluse and eccentric. How the lad and his grandparent resolve their differences and find understanding is the subject of Katharine Newlin Burt's well-written "One Silver Spur" (Funk & Wagnalls, $3.25) for boys about 10, 11 and 12. There's adventure to help hold their interest.

"Choicy" (Funk & Wagnalls, $3.50) by Margaret and George Ogan is an adventure yarn flavored by the sea for boys 14 and under. "Choicy" Jones, a youngster who dreams about ships, and his grandfather tackle the herculean task of rebuilding and refloating an old, abandoned schooner. Some schoolmates and eventually the fathers help out. And the tale reaches a rousing conclusion on the High Seas.

An exciting chapter in American history furnishes the background for Margaret Goff Clark's "Danger at Niagara" (Funk & Wagnalls, $3.50). In the war year 1813 young Homan Reed is caught up in the events along the Canadian border. The pace is fast and the setting authentic.

"The Closed Circle" (Funk & Wagnalls, $3.50) by Corinne Gerson is a sensatively told story of a young girl who is determined to bridget he gap between her chums in a Pennsylvania town and young Hope Miller who belongs to a family that sticks strictly to the old Pennsylvania Dutch ways and who has therefore been ostracized. The novel has a moral, but it makes its point against prejudice without becoming too preachy. And it presents an interesting picture of life in an interesting region.

In "Say Something" (Harper, $3.50) by Mary Stolz, with pictures by Edward Frascino, a little boy asks questions about his world, then provides his own answers with the help of his imagination, an easel, paints and brush. For 4 to 8-year-olds, it has strong appeal for the youngster with an inquisitive mind and a creative outlook.

Random House has published two more suspense novels for young mystery fans in its Alfred Hitchcock and the Three Investigators series—"The Mystery of the Moaning Cave" and "The Mystery of the Screaming Clock" ($1.95 each), texts by William Arden and Robert Arthur. With introductions by Hitchcock, the two books follow the pattern of their predecessors in the series, with lots of action and excitement.

"Francois and the Langouste" (Little, Brown, $3.75) by Ethel Sadowsky takes its young readers, 6 to 8, to a different culture — that of Martinque in the Caribbean. Francois, it seems, is habitually late to school. Too many distractions. It provides him with adventures, but it almost costs him the privilege of attending the school picnic. As they follow Francois through his busy day, small Californians will learn a lot about the way of life of their counterparts in a far different setting.

"Goodbye, Dove Square" (Little, Brown, $4.50) by Janet McNeill brings back the adventure-prone young characters of "The Battle of St. George Without." Now the old neighborhood of Dove Square is being razed, and its residents moved to new apartments. Matt is not happy with the change. But before Dove Square is completely gone, there is still time for some new advantures in the supposedly demolished or deserted old houses. Mrs. Janet has made her children somewhat older than in her previous book, and has deepened their emotions accordingly.

In "The Buffalo Soldiers in the Indian Wars" (McGraw-Hill) Fairfax Downey tells for young buffs of western history the story of the 10th U.S. Colored Cavalry that only recently has begun to receive the attention it deserves. Old Remington prints and line drawings by Harold James serve as illustrations. Downey, author of many, many books for juniors, uses a style best suited to children in the upper grades with some knowledge of and interest in military history of the period. For them, the story will be an exciting one.

A STURDY BEAST is the musk ox, one of the many depicted in "The Animal Atlas of the World," a fund of information about animals, common and uncommon, and their behavior.

Animal Atlas An Eye Treat

ANIMAL ATLAS OF THE WORLD by Dr. E. L. Jordan; Hammond, 224 pages, $14.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Here's a treat for the eyes and a tonic for the mind.

A big and beautiful book, "Animal Atlas of the World" should enjoy brisk patronage as a Christmas gift volume. But it is also a most useful and stimulating reference work.

The author, Dr. E. L. Jordan of Rutgers University, also wrote Hammond's earlier "Nature Atlas of America" as well as college texts and other books on ecology.

"Animal Atlas" took him and his camera to six continents to observe both the common and uncommon creatures. He researched extensively. And his findings represent a treasure trove of information about animals and their behavior, exploding myths but giving new factual substance to other habits and attributes just as marvelous. In transmitting his data, he has avoided the professional tone and has written in an engaging and entertaining manner.

A roster of gifted nature artists have supplemented his efforts by supplying some absolutely splendid color illustrations. New, up-to-date maps and charts are also included.

It is a hefty book and a showy one. But it is much more than just a superficial volume loaded with pretty pictures. It should stand for a long time as a sound, reliable resource tool for students and adults alike who are attracted by animals and who are interested in learning more about them.

Eva Braun Sometimes Bored During Life With Hitler

EVA BRAUN, Hitler's Mistress, by Nerin E. Gun. Meredith Press. 300 pages. $6.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

In recent years much has been written about happenings behind the scenes in the Nazi high command and now comes a book on the life and times of Eva Braun. The author, a European journalist who spent some time in the concentration camps, has interviewed many of the living who had known both Hitler and Eva, as well as her relatives who are still living in Germany.

The result is a detailed social history of the bourgeois inner circle around Hitler, with Eva Braun at its center. Leading far from a glittering life of luxury, the top Nazis fought among themselves for favor with the Fuehrer and endured the poorly cooked food when invited to Berchtesgaden. Eva's diaries and letters and the memories of her sisters bring out her boredom with the life as well as her total devotion to Hitler, whom she met when he was a rising National Socialist politician and she a shy assistant to photographer Heinrich Hoffmann in Munich.

Hoffmann became the official Nazi photographer and Hitler met the young Eva, fresh from convent schooling, on his visits to the studio. The story gives a vividly intimate picture of her unusual, sometimes isolated life to the time when both perished together in the Berlin bunker while the Russian Army surged forward.

Photographs include many from Eva's own scrapbook, previously unpublished.

THE FRIENDLINESS of New Zealanders, noted by travel writers and tourists alike is evident at the South Fiord, Lake Te Annau, Southland as they gather at lakeside to chat with visitors. The scenery is impressive, but most travelers remember the warmth of the people.

New Zealand's Attraction—People

By MERVYN CULL

What is the greatest tourist attraction in New Zealand? Rotorua? The Bay of Islands? Mt. Cook? Milford Sound?

None of them! The answer — and a wealth of evidence gathered over the years supports the view — is New Zealanders themselves.

No matter what reservations they may have about other facets of New Zealand, few overseas visitors seem to leave without taking with them an almost embarrassingly favorable opinion of New Zealanders, their friendliness and their hospitality.

IN A recent interview, the U.S. Ambassador to New Zealand, J. F. Henning, was asked: "What aspects of life in New Zealand do you consider would influence Americans who might be deciding whether to visit, or to emigrate to New Zealand?"

He replied: "Your free society. Your social equality. Your scenic glories. Your people. Above all your people."

If Mr. Henning likes New Zealanders, we have certainly given Americans the impression that we like them.

FOR EXAMPLE, Eldon Landback of Sacramento, who recently led a Second Marine Division Pilgrimage to New Zealand, made the following comments during a reception: "The written history of the Second Marine Division has one chapter entitled 'The Land They Adored'. One sentence in that chapter clearly states our thoughts when it says 'It is doubtful if any alien troops ever received a warmer or more sincerely friendly welcome than the Second Marine Division got in New Zealand'."

The Marines are currently planning another pilgrimage to New Zealand in 1973, which will be the Division's third.

In his book "All the Best in the South Pacific," the American travel writer Sydney Clark says: "If hospitality is a gauge of character, the Kiwis rate very high, for their welcome of foreigners is warm, sincere, unquenchable ... I am happy to say also that unless New Zealanders are a nation of skilled actors, they like Americans. This I mention because it is not ever thus in all lands."

ANOTHER AMERICAN travel writer, Myra Waldo, writing in "Myra Waldo's Travel Guide to the Orient and the Pacific," says of New Zealand: "There is no hint of servility in the bearing and manner of a waiter at a restaurant, a taxi-driver or the clerk behind the shop counter."

"Instead there is a feeling of friendliness, in meeting as an equal, and then, as a natural outgrowth, the desire to please you."

Dr. Richard Pilant, historical specialist for the Canadian Tourist Association of Brantford, Ontario, said in Wellington recently that the friendliness of New Zealanders should receive much more emphasis when the other aspects of the country were extolled.

NEW ZEALAND, he said, did not blow its horn enough. "People here seem to be genuinely interested in meeting and talking to people from other countries." In other countries, people were more concerned with extracting the tourists' dollars.

It may be argued, of course, that diplomats, travel writers and tourist officials would, in the normal course of events, receive a degree of preferential treatment not accorded to Joe Doaks, the storekeeper from Greengrass, Wyo. or to Mrs. Freda Smith, retired postmistress from Little Muddling-on-the-Moor, Yorkshire.

But the experiences of tourists and visitors from many countries and from all strata of society, and the impressions of New Zealand which they take away with them, seem to be remarkable similar.

FOR INSTANCE, in a recent letter in the New Zealand Herald, Eva B. Laker, of Brighton, Sussex, said: "I have enjoyed the hospitality of the New Zealand people, but it is difficult to find adequate words to express thanks and praise for such genuine kindness and sincerity. All have received me into their homes and families as naturally as if I were their own relatives."

As part of his personal philosophy on the tourist industry, the general manager of the Tourist and Publicity Department, R. S. Austin, has long recognized the value of human relationships.

"To the majority of travelers," he says, "the most rewarding and enjoyable part of visiting another country is meeting the people of that country."

"I DO not mean so much the idea of host panels at every point, although this does have great merit. I mean the friendly and personal contact with people the tourists deal with during their stay. People like you and me."

Tourist officials believe that by telling New Zealanders just how much spontaneous gestures of friendliness and hospitality mean to overseas visitors, they are helping fully to realize our greatest tourist asset.

Oroville Dam Spot For Fun

Motorists and sportsmen have a new place to go this year Oroville, the historic Gold Rush town at the foot of the fabulous upper Feather River country, 70 miles north of Sacramento.

The attraction is the big, new Oroville Dam and the various boating, fishing and camping playgrounds that have sprung up around the dam and the huge reservoir nehind it, reports the California State Automobile Association.

Everything about this dam is monumental. It is the highest earth-filled dam in the world, the highest dam in the United Statesl and the keystone of history's most ambitious water development project. At 770 feet—44 feet higher than giant Hoover Dam—it is as tall as a 62-story building and as imposing as any of the nearby hills.

WITH MORE than 167 miles of shoreline and a 15,500 acre surface, Lake Oroville is a recreational bonanza. Stretching back from the dam, the blue waters of the lake lap at wooded slopes and surge against rocky canyon walls that occasionally soar up likethe sheer walls of a fjord.

Already boatmen have found the waters of the lake ideal for sailing, motorboating and water skiing, and campers and hikers have found new shores to breathe the sweet, pure air of the great outdoors.

Three recreational areas and a 13-lane boat ramp and boar service area at one end of themile-long crest of the dam are completed.

ONE OF the recreational areas, a grassy picnic park, complete with two-lane boat ramp and dressing rooms for swimmers, is located on the shore of the North Forebay (reached by driving north from Oroville on Highway 70 and turning off at the Garden Drive interchange). Another with a four-lane boat ramp and picnic area is on the South Forebay, three miles west of Oroville on Grand Avenue.

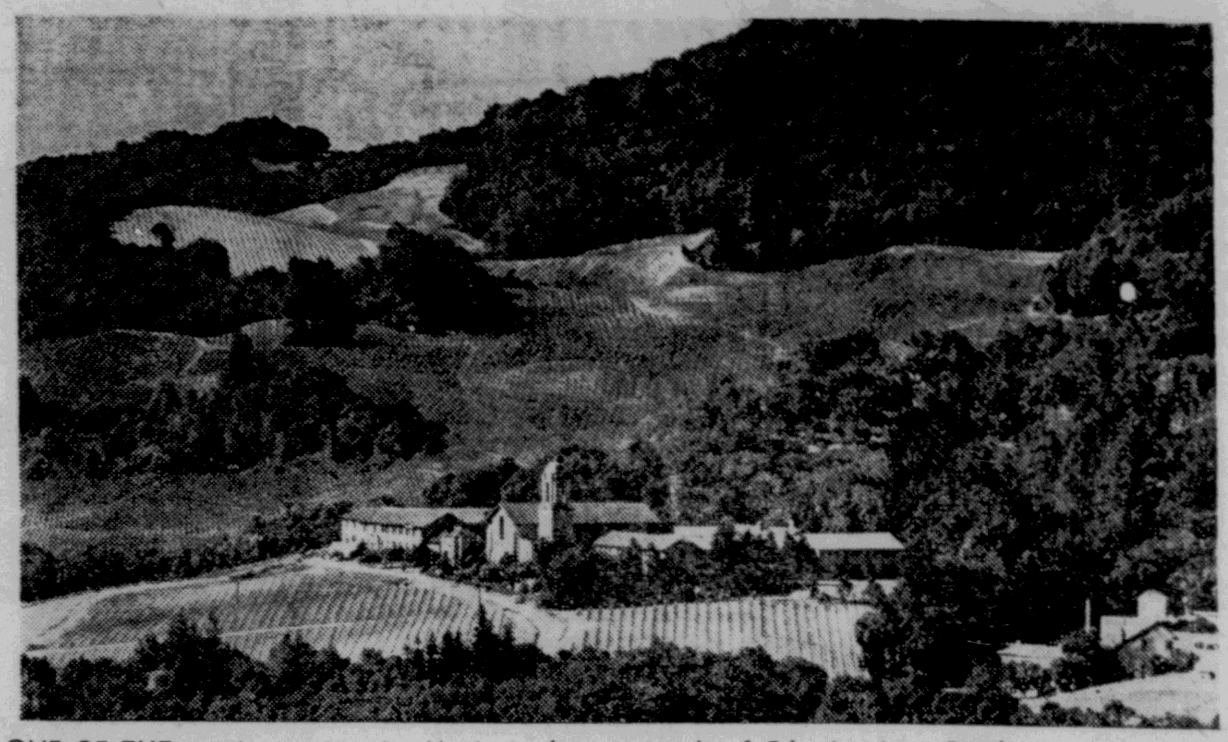
The third, Loafer Creek, is the largest, and the only one do far located on Lake Oroville. It is also the one with the most facilities—33 camping sites. Located in historic, thickwooded Bidwell Canyon, Loafer Creek is reached via the Oroville-Quincy highway.

ALTHOUGH most all outdoorsmen will find something enjoyable about Lake Oroville, fishermen in particular will be enthusiastic. Over a million fish, including sturgeon, rainbow and brown trout, red eye, large mouth and black and spotted bass, have been stocked in the lake. Visitors who care to see the techniques of artificial spawning should plan to visit the hatchery in October when the salmon run is at its highest.

While at Lake Oroville, plan to visit the twon of Oroville, which has a long and dostomgiosjed jhistory. Several reminders of its past are the Chinese Temple on Broderick Street next to the Feather River levee; the Pioneer Relics Museum, Montgomery Street near Memorial Hall; and the old rambling white C.F. Lott Home on Montgomery Street at 3rd Avenue.

ANOTHER attraction that draws visitors is thew Bidwell Bar Suspension Bridge, 12 miles northeast of town on the Oroville-Quincy highway.

VINEYARDS NEARBY



ONE OF THE scenic areas near Marin is the Napa Valley where the Mont LaSalle vineyards of Christian Brothers stand on the western slopes.

TOMALES INDIANS

Near Marshall,
There is this small graveyard,
Near the road,
And little wooden crosses;
A fresh bouquet of flowers,
Somewhere there in,
Almost every day.

Few are they,
The pure,
Like flowers, plants,
Originating here;
Belonging,
But never knowing where else;
Their big brown eyes;
Quiet intelligence,
Capable,
But at times reserved,
Always there;
You have to meet one,
To know these things;
Courteous,
Welcomed and worked
In the best of homes;
Interesting to talk to;
The few I knew,
Appreciation and equality,
Were easy and acceptable;
And married,
Mexican, Italian, Irish,
Racial mixtures,
Next of kin.

Indian bones are shells,
Of life and earth,
Like all souls,
Mutable into everything,
From the silence, thought,
Wind,
Tomales Indians,
Graves by the Bay!

POINT REYES — C. B. GEARHART

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

THE GARY BURTON QUARTET — "In Concert" — RCA LSP-3985; "A Genuine Tong Funeral" — RCA LSP-3988; "Country Roads & Other Places" — RCA LSP-4098:

Vibist Gary Burton and his group play jazz chamber music in the tradition of the Modern Jazz Quartet, though perhaps slightly more modern. Yet through some fluke he has become a hit with strickly rock fans. It's hard to understand, but more power to him, because this is a beautiful, cohesive and inventive jazz group.

The first two albums featured guitarist Larry Coryell, who on the thimrd has been replaced by San Francisco guitarist Jerry Hahn.

The live Carnegie Hall concert reminds me very much of the MJQ, though some of it is much less structured.

The Tong Funeral is the best of the bunch — a "Dark Opera Without Words" by Carla Bley, based on emotions toward death. While strictly instrumental, its ideas, both musical and literary, reminded me of the Brecht-Weill collaborations.

The third LP shows a bit of the country music influence.

CAGE: "Variation II;" POUSSEUR: "Three Faces of Liege;" BABBITT: "Ensembles for Synthesized" — Columbia MS 7051:

This disc in Columbia's "Music of Our Time" series presents recent electronic music by three leaders of the avant-garde in serious music.

In the Cage work, each of four amplified channels on the original tape were fed by both a contact mike attached to David Tudor's piano and a phono cartridge with items such as pipe cleaners and toothpicks inserted where the pickup stylus usually goes.

The variety of sounds drawn from this wired-up piano are surprising. The Henri Pousseur work might be considered a sort of modern-day Respighi tone-poem, describing three aspects of the Belgian city of Liege. It was commissioned by the city to accompany an outdoor light show by an artist,, but when the officials heard the far-out music they blew their stacks and opted for Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" instead! Babbitt's short piece has more life in it than most of this synthesizer-created music.

"THE GREAT TCHAIKOVSKY SYMPHONIES" (Nos. 4, 5 and 6) — Leonard Bernstein / The New York Philharmonic — Columbia D 3S 781:

There are now four packaged sets of all six Tchaikovsky symphonies, but no others of the famous last three in one box. This effort is somewhat in the nature of the Vox-Box series, except that Vox doesn't have old Lenny Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic. The price savings is similar, and if you already have the first three (especially in Dorati's fine Mercury packaging) this new album would be ideal to complete your set.

Now I feel I can finally retire my old mono discs of these three symphonies by the Leningrad Philharmonic. Nobody agrees on definitive - performances of these oft-heard works, but Bernstein stands up with the best of them except perhaps for No. 5 which is a bit dull. 4 and 6 have moments that on good equipment will stand your hair on end. Hey, that sounds like a criticism, but it's not.

Now Is Fall Planting Time

Fall is a big planting season in the Golden State.

Not only do Californians put in their spring gardens — the bulbs and annuals that will burst into bloom early next year — but they do as much permanent planting as possible.

THERE ARE many reasons for this, according to the California Association of Nurserymen. First, shrubs planted now can get a good head start. In October and November the soil is still warm enough to encourage vigorous root growth.

At the same time, cooler daytime temperatures make it easy on the plants. Winter rains eliminate the need for much watering, and by the time spring arrives you have established plants ready to support the vigorous new growth.

ANOTHER GOOD reason for planting now is that a good selection of landscape material is available. Your nurseryman is receiving shipments of conifers and broadleaf evergreens, some of which are obtainable only at this time of year.

Among them you'll find collector's items in rhododendrons and azaleas. These blooming beauties benefit greatly from fall planting, establishing themselves during the winter for a burst of glory in the spring.

MANY outstanding conifers (junipers, yews, cypress, pines, firs and cedars) are shipped to nurseries at this time. Hobbyists await this season to obtain harder-to-find specimens.

Other fine shrubs available balled and burlapped, or in containers — depending on the area in which you live — include fragrant daphnes, berried holly plants, camellias and mountain laurel.

With the exception of certain frost-tender plants, most all the trees and shrubs available can be planted now. Trees set-out this Fall will pub on up to several feet of growth over identical varieties planted next spring. This should be an inducement for the gardener who wants to shade an area of his home or patio.

Overshading Creates Problems

That tree providing abundant shade from the hot sun may be giving too much shade for its own good.

A tree expert says "if a tree's crown is too thick, twigs and branches die for lack of sufficient sunlight. And a top-heavy tree is a push-over when gale winds strike."

Overshade cuts off needed air and light to grass and plantings nearby.

TOO MUCH shade induces growth of mildews and molds on leaves of plants and garden furniture. Gray mold, fostered by heavy shade, attacks lilacs and other shrubs, causing leaves to dry up, stems to curl and twist.

To correct overshading, prune to open the crown of a tree to sunlight. Thin out excessive branches, cut back wayward ones, eliminate cross-over branches rubbing against each other, and eliminate hazardous branches overhanging sidewalks, drives or buildings.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Top dress rhododendrons, camellias and azaleas with an acid plant-type mulch recommended by your nurseryman.
- Use pots of blooming chrysanthemums to brighten the porch or patio — and to bring festive fall colors indoors.
- Top quality lily bulbs are available this month at G.A.N. nurseries. These modern hybrids perform beautifully in pots or in the ground. Give them a well-drained soil in partial sun or filtered shade.
- When shopping for daffodils, be sure to include some of the novelty types with two-tone cups or double, ruffled flowers.
- Remove fallen leaves and other debris from the garden. They serve as breeding places for garden pests and diseases.

DWARF CITRUS POPULAR

Interest in dwarf citrus continues to increase and this popularity is a tribute to the desirable features of the trees, rather than the result of any organized advertising campaign.

The desirable features are many. For the homeowner, the most happy feature of the dwarfs probably lies in the fact they bear orchard-size fruit, almost immediately.

In many nurseries, in fact, it is possible to obtain dwarfs in containers that will be in bloom or bearing fruit!

THIS INCLUDES several kinds of oranges, lemons, and grapefruit in addition to many other tasty edibles such as tangerines, tangelos, limes and kumquats. All are identical in size and flavor to standard size trees.

Another important advantage of dwarf citrus is the very fact of their dwarf size. Their compactness fits nicely into today's landscapes, including use on patios where the trees may be grown in containers, to add to the enjoyment of outdoor living.

THE DWARFS grow about one-fourth the size of orchard trees, yet many produce up to 75 per cent as much fruit. True dwarfs are created only by budding or grafting on dwarfing rootstocks.

The trees will grow to about eight feet in height and width. Those grown in containers tend to be smaller than those planted in the ground.

Dwarf citrus makes it possible for the city-dwelling gardener to have an evergreen orchard — to provide a wide range of flavorful fruits. The small space they require can be modified to provide optimum growing conditions.

If ground-planted, a location can usually be selected near a fence or wall to furnish reflected heat, if warmth is a factor in your area.

If grown in containers, they obviously can be given the most advantageous climactic spot during the four seasons.

In brief, they require sunshine, moisture, and plant food in amounts that are quite easy for home gardeners to supply.

Red On White

For a striking color accent against a white house, frame a wooden terrace or patio bench with two 10 or 12-inch clay pots of brilliant red-flowering geraniums.

FIRST PRIZE in the All-America Rose Selections competition this year went to a Hybrid Tea with shading from a deep rose-pink to light red. Its extra long buds, three to four inches, and its satiny open flower received acclaim.

Compost Pile Easy To Make, Helps Sandy And Heavy Soil

BY EARL ARONSON

A compost pile is a valuable addition to almost any garden Compost helps the soil. As does any form of humus, it gives body to sandy soil and retains moisture. It improves heavy soil by loosening it and discouraging compacting.

Compost spurs growth of bacteria, which help make fertilizers available and slowly release a small amount of plant food.

IT IS easy to make compost. Collect leaves, stems, vegetable tops from the kitchen and garden waste that does not harbor insects or diseases.

On a level site—preferable out of sight—make a six inch layer of this material, keeping the pile flat on top. Sprinkle a cupful of all-purpose fertilizer per bushel of waste and a bit of limestone.

ADD ANOTHER layer, as before, repeating the fertilizer sprinkling. At the same time, or as you gather material, add to the pile in the same way until it is four to five feet tall, keeping the top slightly hollowed to help retain rain and other moisture.

No cover is needed in warm weather. In winter, a sheet of black plastic tossed over the pile keeps in heat and moisture, and encourages decomposition later.

AFTER THREE months, if your heap was begun in spring or summer, turn over the pile. This mixes all the layers and materials. You can put this in a new pile, ready for use in two or three months. Water from time to time if the weather is dry.

For acid-soil plants, such as rhododendrons, keep the compost pile acid by using oak leaves and omitting lime.

Wax Plant Pleases When Grown Indoors

You'll take a shine to the glossy leaves and pink-white flowers of the Hoya carnosa or wax plant. It's one of many foliage plants that do nicely indoors.

The wax plant likes to dry out a bit between waterings, so keep it in a porous clay pot to provide even, natural drainage and prevent over-watering, cause of most house plant failures.

MAKING THIS Nativity Scene can spark many pleasant hours of complete relaxation for the entire family. The pattern shown above provides full size cutting guides for making the creche and the entire group of 11 figures. The stable, measuring 16 inches wide by 14 inches high is ideal for use on a table or below Christmas tree. Each figure is first traced on panelboard, then cut to exact shape of pattern. Painting guides on pattern can be traced, then painted colors pattern specifies. To add a realistic touch, spread straw or moss on the floor of the stable and on the platform outside. A colorful lighting effect can be achieved by concealing a single Christmas tree bulb in back of stable. Just send 75 cents to Independent-Journal P. O. Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y. 10510 and ask for Nativity Scene Pattern No. 31.

Tot's Toy Chest Easily Built

Decorative and versatile containers for toys, extra linen, blankets or what-have-you are easily-built foot lockers. Little space is needed for a locker at the foot of a bed, yet it nicely ends a clutter problem.

The rectangular boxes are especially good for children's rooms, but win places for themselves elsewhere, too. They'll blend right in with most decors, simply through choice of wood, finish and decoration.

PINE IS a prime selection, but fir, hemlock and cedar are suitable also. Building with lumber may involve a litle more fitting; results, however, will more than make up for a bit more effort.

Size may be tailored to needs and location. For the foot of the bed, a good size is 36 inches long, approximately 19 inches wide and 20 high.

A MODEST inventory of materials is required. The skeleton of the locker is formed with 1x2s, and sides, lid and bottom use 1x4s and 1x2s. Hardware includes two three-inch hinges, a latch, also handles and furniture gliders, if desired.

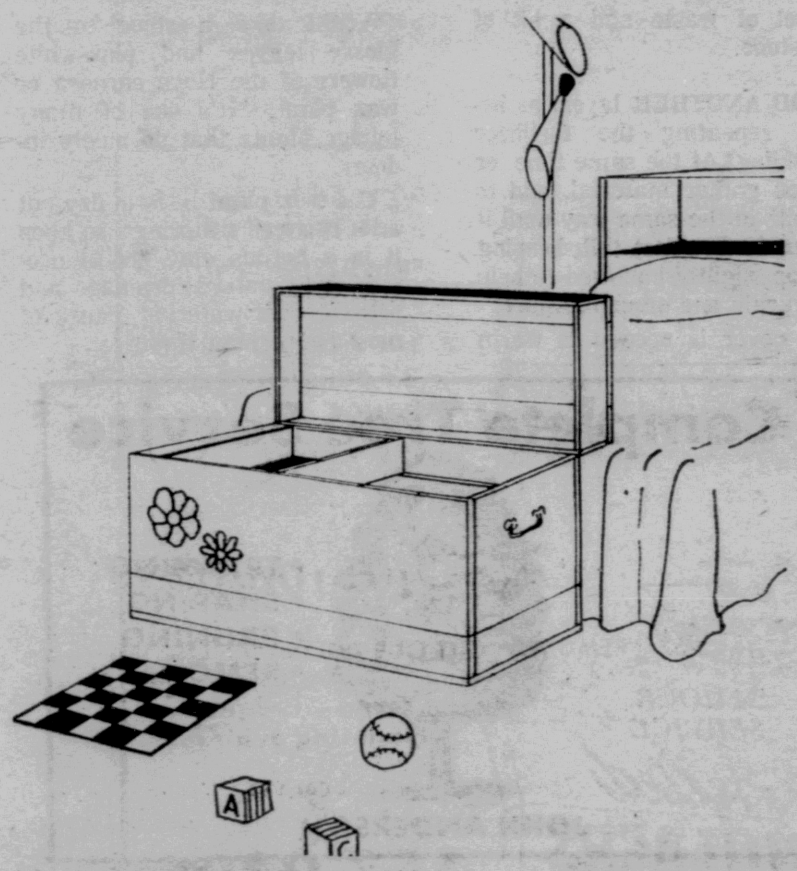
A box tray can be made of the same or thinner material, and installed to slide on two 1x2-inch strips fastened across front and back of the chest.

IF POSITIONED so that the top of the tray meets flush with the top of the chest sides, there will be clearance for the lid to close down, even when items stored in the tray are heaped.

Apply the first coat of stain to the locker before filling nail holes. Smearing plastic wood or putty on the unfinished sufface prevents stain from penetrating and results in an uneven finish.

The inside of the lid may be dressed up with a colorful contact paper, gaily patterned fabric or other decoration. At a final touch, cover a foam or padded seat cushion for the top to match the bedspread.

For detailed plans of toy chest write to Western Wood Products Assn., Dept. P-510, Yeon Bldg., Portland, Or. 97204 enclosing 15 cents in coin.



A FOOT LOCKER can be multi-purpose, serving for children's toys and other storage. A sliding half tray is convenient for small items, and the locker can be topped with form or padded cushion covered to match bedspread.

A Pencil Holder

For a pencil well in the home or office, paint a coffee can or a similar container. Wedge it into a piece of Masonite quarter-inch Peg-Board, cut to size with a keyhole or coping saw. Then prime and paint the perforated hardboard. The sharpened points fit into the holes, making pencil selection easy.

SELLING HOME?

Minor Improvements Could Hike Price

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — If your family is one of some 2.5 million Americans who will sell their homes this year, judicious investment of $100 or $200 and a little time and effort could add an extra $1,000 or more to the sale price.

While, generally, any major renovation is unwise if undertaken solely in the hopes of boosting the selling price of a house, there are numerous minor improvements that can make selling easier and bring a higher price.

FIRST impressions are lasting and, often, little things do count — far out of proportion to their real importance. Many people have a way of seeing things as they are, not as they could be.

If your kitchen, for instance, is a bit the worse for wear, pointing out to the prospective purchaser the really good appliances, the excellent work pattern and the good location for supervising the children won't do nearly as much as a fresh coat of paint or paper, crisp curtains at sparkling windows or a gleaming, waxed floor.

The Armstrong Cork Co., which makes building and home improvement products, says company research has shown the value of small amounts of money spent wisely for projects such as new shrubbery, a freshly painted front door and shutters, new flooring in kitchen or bath areas.

John R. Baldwin, manager of contract development for the company, says his personal experience bears this out. He has moved his family nine times in less than 18 years. Baldwin has some pertinent suggestions.

HE RECOMMENDS, first, that you try for "curb appeal" as the realtors refer to it. Be sure the lawn is cut and trimmed neatly, that shrubbery looks the way it should. Look at the property with an eye to little things — a mail box that needs painting or replacing, a fence that needs straightening, a gate hinge that needs tightening. Outdoor living areas should be "policed" and kept free of trash and clutter. Garage doors should be closed — and the inside neat.

Before you put a house up for sale is the time to weed out collections of "junk" in garage, basement and attic — and even in closets and cupboards. You might even do a little packing of unessentials ahead of time.

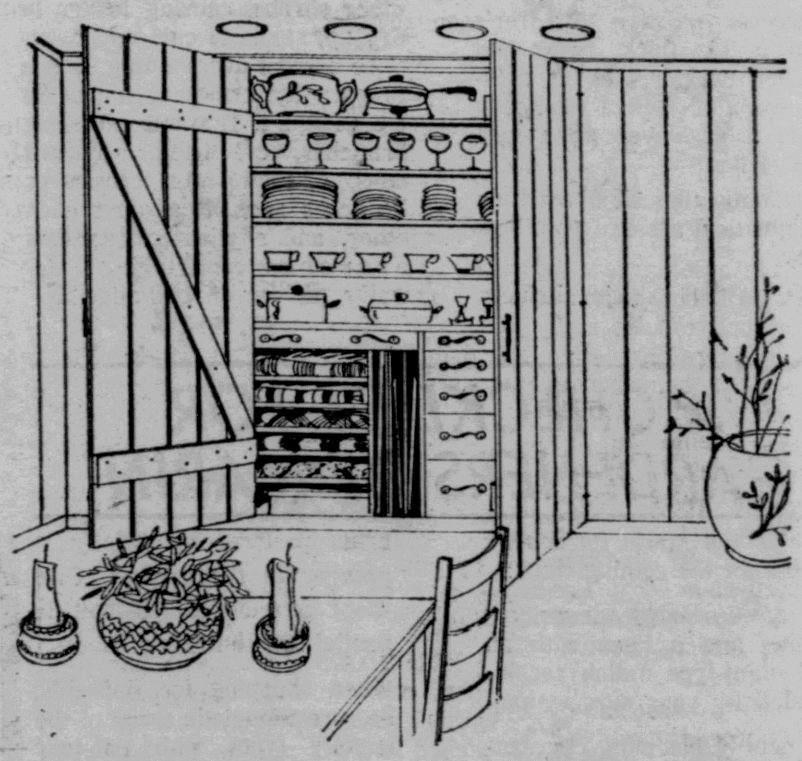
HOW IS the house exterior? Often fresh paint on doors, windows and trim such as railings can make a big difference. Screen doors and windows should be in good condition.

Inside, Baldwin suggests, go through the house with an eye for loose door knobs, sticking doors and windows, dripping faucets, burned out light bulbs, other minor flaws.

Although a house should look lived in, it's a good idea to go through rooms with the eye of a stranger. We all, at times, live with faded walls, scruffy woodwork, shabby furniture, but they are our own. Such things detract from the good points of a house.

ELIMINATE clutter. If rooms are small, or if you really have too much furniture, try removing a few pieces.

A VANISHING CLOSET



THIS CONCEALED closet is a superb storage idea for the dining room. Doors are built of tongue-and-groove boards and fit flush into the wall of paneling, so as to "disappear" when closed. The unit has adjustable shelves, linen trays, lined silver drawers, and compartments for trays and table pads.

Storage Space Key To Room Livability

When a living room isn't used for everday living, something's wrong. And when your best friends prefer playing cards in the cluttery family room, it's time to get to work. Obviously your living room is unlivable.

People go where the action is. They read in the rooms holding bookcases, listen to music wherever the stereo tuner is located, and play cards at a table in a cozy corner. Return that action to the living room and it will quickly rival the family room for popularity.

NATURALLY you'll want the living room to be party-pretty, so dress it up to adult standards and keep the family room geared to children's activities.

Storage will be one key to success in redesigning the living room. An old-fashioned but always successful approach is to gather all storage needs together in one unit fashioned for a corner by the fireplace.

Then a cozy inglenook develops and the traditional grouping of furniture near the fireplace makes better sense.

Although the storage unit must be tailored for its contents, cabinetwork needn't be elaborate. A generous-size box works wonders when fitted with adjustable shelving and sectioned across its width to allow for a variety of needs. Some sections can be enclosed by doors, others left open.

The average family will need need open shelves for record albums, treasures, a portable TV, and books. But there' no need to provide shelving here for the entire library. Space for favorites, art books and current reading matter will suffice.

Behind doors will go the stereo equipment and shelving for playing cards, ash trays, coasters, party napkins, scratch pads and so forth.

It's effective to hang such a storage box on a paneled wall, matching the woods. Douglas fir boards, four or six inches wide, are a good choice for the wall covering, with wider boards used for the storage unit's frame and shelving. Doors can be cut from even wider "sheets" of solid edge-glued fir.

THE FINISH can be what you like. An accent of natural wood is never amiss in even the most formal living room. It can be the one ingredient that returns warmth to the room while the storage supplies the dimension of livability.

But if paint's the thing in your house, then paint the paneling using rough Douglas fir boards or V-joint panels to supply the texture of wood. The basically simple styling of the storage box can then be dressed up with moldings, painted and antiqued if desired.

STORAGE ROOM is the key to livability in a living room. The cozy storage nook created in this room is a unit added to a cedar-paneled wall. It was built box-style with adjustable shelves and sections of varying widths. By hinging doors to outside edge of uprights, cabinets were created.

Home Fire Hazards Should Be Checked

Even the most modern-looking home can be a "fire-trap."

It happens because homeowners are not sufficiently aware of the fire hazards that can actually be "built" into a house. The dangers might include: too few — or hard-to-reach — exits, faulty heating and electrical equipment, lack of "firestops," and use of combustible building materials in critical areas.

TO COMBAT these dangers — which yearly contribute to more than 1500 destructive home fires — the National Fire Protection Association urges homeowners to make a safety check of their residences and to eliminate any fire threats that may exist.

Here are some areas that deserve special attention. For further information on fire-safe homes, contact your local fire department or the NFPA, 60 Batterymarch Street, Boston, Mass. 02110.

ROOFS — The Association strongly recommends use of fire-resistant roofing materials with a Class C or higher rating. These include all asphalt shingles, tile, asbestos cement and asphalt rool roofing.

WALLS — Considerable fire-resistance is provided by noncombustible plaster walls and gypsum and cement-asbestos wallboards. The fire-threat of combustible wallboards can be reduced with fire-retardant paint.

DOORS — Solid, tight-fitting doors can hold back fire and smoke for several life-saving minutes. Hollow core doors offer virtually no fire barrier. All bedroom doors should be closed at night as a fire precaution.

WINDOWS — The safety formula here is that all windows should be large and low enough for quick escape, and easily opened even by children.

CHIMNEY — Bricks should be tight-set and uncracked, mortar in good condition. Combustible framing should be at least two inches away from chimney.

FIRESTOPS — These are barriers between wall studs, floor joists, and ceiling rafters designed to block or slow the passage of smoke, heat and flames. Dangerous open areas can be "firestopped" by nailing two-inch thick lumber into the openings or by filling the space with bricks and mortar.

Screening Is Key To Privacy

building a fence along the street is an obvious answer, and it's a sensible one, too. Fences don't need time to grow, as a hedge does, nor do they require space or demand watering and pruning. A street screening can transform an ordinary front yard to a gracious entrance court.

While construction time is short, it's smart to figure several weeks of planning, for the choice in fence patterns is abundant.

SLAT SCREENS, built with one by ones, one by twos, two by twos, or a combination, are currently tops in popularity. A deceptively light look belies their opaque quality, and slat screens adapt well to both formal and informal landscaping.

Easy to build, the basic pattern has one by ones or one by twos face-sailed vertically to the edges of fence rails or, in a horizontal application, across the face of posts.

Maximum span distance is three feet. To carry a vertical application, a six-foot-high fence should have three rails. For a horizontal application, four by four-inch posts should be spaced six feet on center, with a two by four line post set between pairs of four by fours.

ON A SLOPING site, sections of the fence can be stepped down, keeping top rails perfectly straight and level. A horizontal pattern is especially good here, since slats can be carried straight across, from section to section, despite a step-down in panels.

Many homeowners find it easiest to build slat screens in place, nailing the cedar or fir one by ones directly to rails or posts. But full-size panels also can be built in the workshop, with slats fastened to nailing strips and completed panels then attached to the waiting framework.

Inside the yard — anything goes. Try a courtyard approach substituting flagstone paving for lawn and widening shrub borders to accommodate a variety of materials.

COIT AMERICA'S LARGEST DRAPERY CLEANERS

San Rafael, Calif.

DETAILS MUST speak with a Spanish accent for a home fashion mood to be authentic Mediterranean. Newest of the characteristic carvings is the renaissance latticework.

There are some people who still dream about castles in Spain, but visitors who've been there say they're not all they're cracked up to be. Castles are drafty and cold — full of steps and more rooms than anyone would want.

But if castles in Spain aren't a viable dream, the Spanish look is. For many people furnishing new homes or redecorating rooms, Spanish and Mediterranean styling is the choice of a lifetime.

WHAT THEY'RE buying is virile and vigorous furniture — a blending of styles into a modern amalgam that combines the strength of the past with the cultivated comforts of today. And if it isn't pure "Spanish," it is a legitimate descendant of one of the oldest design traditions in the Western world.

Actually, Spanish furniture, like the native architecture, developed over some 700 years, up to the 16th Century. The best, and most typical, work of the craftsmen was a style called "mudejar," reflecting the long occupation by the Moors. Like today's interpretations, the style was noted for its masculine strength.

Pieces were massive, with elaborately carved surfaces, intricate wrought-iron stretchers and braces, sling seats and horseshoe or trefoil arches.

Other European ideas reached into Spain during the Renaissance, but the Moorish influence remained dominant — visible today in the hand tooling, nailhead studding, embossed leather, geometric inlays and decorative incised star designs that are familiar to contemporary homemakers.

SOME OF the pieces we buy are direct interpretations of the past, such "hallmark" styles, uniquely Spanish, include the bun foot chest, low and squat with deeply carved panels, and the vargueno, a dark wood writing desk with bolt-latch hardware.

Mediterranean Style Product Of Years

Its pigeonhole compartments and side panels as heavily carved as the front are as characteristic of Spanish furniture as the drop-leaf table in distressed, weathered wood, originally made by beating the finish with heavy chains.

Equally popular — and traditional — are Spanish tables, often used today as end tables, and Savonarola chairs, named for the monk Girolamo Savonarola, who was martyred in 1498.

The distinctively Spanish interpretation of the chair, which was probably Italian in origin, is the familiar wrought-iron "X" frame, with a leather sling seat. Barely changed over the centuries, it's one of today's most popular Spanish styles.

SAVONAROLA'S chair and the smaller chests, though, may be unique in coming down to the 20th Century almost unchanged. Much more often, the furniture fashions we call "Spanish" are equally inspired by Mexican and by other Mediterranean traditions — much-modified to accommodate today's taste for comfort, our need for lighter scale and the ability of modern technology to marry new materials to old design themes.

The crude but attractive work fashioned by Spanish missionaries in Mexico is today's sophisticated city styling; the monumentally massive creations of old Spain are the fashion-minded homemaker's scaled-down treasures.

The result is a fashion mood that is more refined, more delicate and far more cultivated than the Spanish originals. More practical, too, for modern homes, with their severe space limitations and lack of legions of servants.

IN THE BEST of the translations — and they're the only ones worth giving house room — appearance is authentic, while comfort is ultra-modern. Original Spanish settees, for example, were un-upholstered hardwood with rush seats; today's elegant Spanish style sofas are as soft, comfortable and luxurious as they are authentic in design details.

The secret in shopping is to look for both — classic styling and contemporary comfort — without sacrificing either the beauty of the former or the practicality of the latter. Expense isn't the criterion; authenticity and workmanship are. Actually, one of the best and most varied of the current Spanish collections comes from the modest-price Johnson/Carper Furniture Company.

UPHOLSTERED treatments — luxurious velvets, striking brocades and antique satins unheard of in old Spain — are the modern touch. What gives the collection its Mediterranean wood detailing at front sofa posts and rimming recessed bases; wooden frames with a wealth of ornate Spanish carving.

Particularly handsome are Johnson/Carper's sectionals — loose pillow-back sofas, many with tufted treatments, that can be adjusted to fit the Mediterranean mood into any living space.

Professional decorators — trending more and more toward encouraging the homemaker to design-it-herself — couldn't be more in favor. And, for a change, husbands agree.

LIKE THE decorators, they enjoy the flexibility of the new Spanish mood. And for men turned off by the spindly formalities of French and Italian furniture, there's nothing as comfortable as the massivity of Spain. Neither faddy nor trendy, it's a richly elegant style that's at home about the house.

To step into the period yourself, try starting with a piece or two — Spanish complements most other styles — but don't be surprised if you wind up going all the way. If you're like most newcomers to the Mediterranean mood, it won't be long before you find yourself transforming your entire home into a castle in Spain — with all the modern conveniences.

Scroll Can Add Charm

For a personalized wall decoration, dramatize your decor with an Oriental-type scroll and treasured portrait photographs. You can add a focal point of interest with photographs — the studio kind you have taken to commemorate important family events.

For living room, dining room, foyer or den, a Japanese type scroll becomes a decorative accessory.

To make one — have a window shade cut to the size you want. This may contrast or color-match the window shades and furnishings you have.

Lay the shade on the folor and spread the photographs over it until you get the arrangement you want. Use rubber cement to fasten the photographs on and spray with lacquer so the photographs can be wiped clean with a damp cloth when necessary. Hang the shade from a ribbon or fancy cord.

Dining Room Look Is New

With many families turning back to the dining room for informal as well as formal meals, a new look in dining rooms is developing. It might be called a "semi-open" look — a compromise between the mere dining "area" and the completely separate dining room.

Since many homes built during the last two decades have open dining areas — at one end of the living room or the short leg of an "L"-shaped living room — there is a growing trend toward converting these open areas into distinct dining rooms, but without sacrificing the airy, spacious look that presently exists.

This compromise is being achieved in a variety of ways. One basic method is painting or wallpapering the dining area in a color or pattern that contrasts with the living room walls.

A different floor covering also will help set off the dining area. A vinyl or vinyl asbestos floor tile is advisable since it is easy to keep clean, especially if there are spill-prone children in the family, and comes in a variety of styles and colors.

For even greater separation without losing the desired spacious effect, hardboard grillework room dividers can be used. These can be obtained already assembled or assembled easily with handy pre-sized grillework panels and pregrooved moulding and then painted to fit in with the decor.

The ceiling also can be used to achieve separation between the two areas. With a few pieces of lumber, a false beam can be constructed and attached above the room divider.

As another architectural change, a sunken dining room effect can be created easily and without costly rebuilding of the floor simply by arranging a row of plants on the floor around the outer edge of the room. Bricks and stones can be used to fence them in and, if enough plants are not available, a bench can be built into one wall to help give they illusion of a "step."

Comfort Is Key In Chair World

THIS ELEGANT CHAIR with a swivel base is ideal for conversation and relaxing while looking at views. The Plaza chair looks stunning in a plush velour, one of the new accent colors, while many fabrics and colors are available. The Plaza chair and other new styles and home furnishings can be seen at the Elegant Room, Northgate Mall.

Does the perfect chair exist?

Well, not for lack of trying

Designers have come up with new chair designs in many styles that meet the basic criteria for the "perfect" chair — comfort, good looks, practicality and acceptable cost.

From highly ornate Mediterranean to clean-lined Modern, chairs for 1969 are comfortable, colorful and varied sufficiently in design to satisfy every taste.

THE MEDITERRANEAN look graces chairs that run the gamut from massive to miniscule. Small occasional chairs, rockers and recliners, and hearty club styles differ in size, but share a common Spanish ancestry. However, this Old World flavor is skillfully combined with modern seating materials. Deep latex foam seat cushioning gives resilient comfort and "non-plumping" convenience.

Detailed wood surfaces on upholstered pieces distinguish Mediterranean design. Wood or plastic finishes are dark and rich. Intricate carving, rope ornamentation or less elaborate panel designs add interest to chair frames. Another feature of this style group is tufted upholstery.

Whether fabrics are luxurious velvets or cool vinyls, fabric surfaces are rarely smooth. Like the detailed wood frames, design is built-in through tufting.

AN IMPORTANT trend in the Mediterranean seating piece is scaled-down size. Chairs still look sturdy and important, but are smaller to suit apartment living. This draws cheers from all those Mediterranean fans with small living rooms.

Newer in outlook are the exciting Modern and Contemporary chairs. The difference between Contemporary and Modern styling shows up best in seating pieces.

CHAIRS in the new modern genre are instantly recognizable. They stress shape. You may find no seat cushions, arms, tops or bottoms. They are, at their best, standing pieces of free-form sculpture.

Their inner shells are molded from all the modern materials — tubular steel, rigid plastics of all sorts — which curve and conform to the human body.

Over this shell, a layer of latex foam padding is added for cushioning, and then upholstery fabrics in stretch materials, leathers or vinyls complete the chair, fitting like second skins. The result is a supremely comfortable, unusually shaped seating piece.

THERE ARE variations, of course, on this theme. Some designers are experimenting with elongated metal frames covered with thin layers of padding, others are adding lucite frames to surround the cushioning, a few are making "collapsibles" which are inflated for sitting with a bicycle pump. But the look is new, in both structure and design.

Contemporary chairs have familiar shapes. They may be all-upholstered or framed, but they have a square back or a rounded one, and discernible seat cushions.

WHAT EVERY BRIDE SHOULD KNOW ABOUT DRAPERY CLEANING. It was a revelation to Margie when Major Drapery Cleaners, San Rafael, explained what their drapery finishing machine can do. With this unit, pleats and hemlines stay even, with drapes kept to a predetermined length. All drapes are dried and deodorized in hanging position in drying cabinets. No harmful tumbling action! The machine also sizes (sprays) your drapes for proper body and texture. Controlled amounts of CS4, Hexachlorophene, bacteriostats, and fungicides are introduced leaving the drapes germacetically clean. Even moth and insect repellents are applied. Finally, draperies are coated with invisible non-toxic hydroscopic waxes to repel deterioration. Reasonable cost, free estimates and information. FOR OUTDOORS

Casual Furniture Should Be Durable

To turn a favorite popular song around, it's a long, long time from December to May, but already home furnishings stores are preparing for what promises to be an exciting outdoor casual season in 1970.

Judging from new merchandise displayed at the fall casual market in Chicago and other cities, the emphasis will continue to be on comfort, classic styling, and durability.

"The idea of casual furniture as a casual purchase for a single season's use has long since gone out of fashion," commented interior design consultant June Woodard.

HOMEMAKERS now expect that outdoor furniture will stand up and look good for years on end. They don't want the nuisance of repairing and replacing it frequently. They expect it to make their outdoor living areas look attractive. And they insist on comfortable seating, not the fatiguing "boardy" feel of the yard furniture of yesterday.

These are some of leading reasons why casual furniture has become so important in the total home furnishings picture in recent years, Miss Woodard said.

Some other reasons include the growth of home ownership; the move to the suburbs; and the amount of leisure time available to the typical family. All of these have contributed to the popularity of outdoor living, which in turn has created the need for a well-planned and furnished patio, yard, balcony, or terrace — the "outdoor living room."

SINCE THE family does spend so much of its time outdoors in season, homemakers realize that a wise choice of quality outdoor furniture can pay dividends for years to come, Miss Woodard said.

Fortunately for the homemaker, manufacturers have provided a wide variety of casual pieces to meet every conceivable need and every budget requirement.

The latest improvements include comfortable seating that equals what you'll find in fine living room pieces; improvements in materials and finishes that make casual furniture practically immune to the weather; and even greater variety of the types and sizes of chairs, sofas, lounges, tables, and occasional pieces available.

Music Rooms Making A Comeback

STEINWAY PIANOS, handled exclusively in Marin by Sherman Clay of San Rafael, have exemplified fine craftsmanship and fine instrumentation for a century. Such products demonstrate that the piano can be a handsome piece as well as a source of musical enjoyment.

For a while, it looked as if the music room was going the way of the drawing room, the morning room, the library, and the butler's pantry as features of today's homes.

But thanks to the resurgence of music-making among youngsters and grown-ups, the music room is making a comeback in a new form: the specially set up home "music center," with practical features for the practice, performance, and enjoyment of instrumental music.

"THE MOST preferred spot for such a center is the living room," reports musical education consultant Constance Wagner, "because it provides the most appropriate setting for a piano as well as comfortable seating for either an audience or participants in a music fest."

Most families, she notes, have already moved their TV watching out of the living room and into the family room or den, thus freeing the living room for music purposes.

"It's best to separate live music-making from electronic entertainment — such as TV and stereo hi-fi — so that different members of the family can enjoy whichever they prefer without bothering one another," she said.

Such separation is particularly important for the young music student who needs to practice in a room free from distractions, advises Miss Wagner, who is consultant to the Story & Clark Piano Company, Lincolnwood, Ill.

PLANNING the music center itself usually begins with a piano, because of its very size and because it's considered the "basic instrument" for most musical families. Most popular for home use today is the console piano, a vertical style slightly taller than a spinet and capable of larger volume.

"Now that piano styling trends so closely follow those of furniture, it's easy to find a quality instrument handsomely designed and finished to blend in with any decorating scheme," Miss Wagner observed.

And, because of technical advances, such as the laminated mahogany sounding board that withstands changes in temperature and humidity, some of the old rules for piano placement — such as avoiding outside walls and drafts — can be relaxed.

LIKE ANY piece of fine furniture, however, a piano should not be exposed to too much direct sun or extremes of heat and cold that are harmful to any wood finish.

Though console pianos are usually placed flat against walls, even this rule can now be broken. Story & Clark offers a special corded wood back panel, finished to match any console style, that gives the rear of the piano a finished appearance. With this special panel, a piano may be placed at right angles to a wall to serve as a space divider in a large room — or simply made to fit into a smaller room where wall space is at a premium.

Design Cues

Make slip-covers for books and periodicals with excess wall-paper or upholstery material to give a room a co-ordinated look. Small scraps can be used and the effect is well worth the effort.

Use complimentary fabric choices and wood finishes throughout your house to make redecorating and furniture rearranging easy.

The use of decorative moldings, painted to match or contrast, can add new life to a large, drab wall area. Moldings can be used to create panel effects or "frame" picture collections.

Freshen your kitchen by covering old cabinet doors and counter tops with easy-to-clean plastic in a bright pattern.

Do-it-yourself window shutters can add interest, as well as privacy, to a room. Cover center panel of shutters with a fabric or paper to match curtains, wall coverings or furnishings, for a custom look.

Why should you consider a decorating shop for furniture? Because in our store we can show you a good representation of the styles and periods available, without it becoming confusing. Once you decide which styles appeal to you, we will help you co-ordinate just the right pieces to blend properly in your room. Call us at 454-4870 for our free consultation and estimates. You may benefit from our experience without it costing you anymore.

DECOR IDEAS

Try beads for decorative window treatment when you want to screen, but not shut out, a window view.

Hang baubles from a bead track. (Mount at ceiling height to visually enlarged a window.)

Beads are available in walnut or natural wood — paint them to suit your taste — or crystalline plastic in a rainbow of shades.

Brighten a dark stairway with carpet remnants or small throw rugs in a variety of colors. Cut all sections to fit and use tacks to hold securely in place.

A SAFETY note — the varied colored steps are easier to see, hence, safer to use.

Make yourself a handsome and original headboard for your bed with stock picture frames.

Select frames with cove molding to measure the width of your bed (the height is up to you. Insert fabric in frame — a quilted cloth is especially plush — to match bedspread or accent room decor.

USING screws from back side, secure all frames to plywood.

STILL THINK of unfinished furniture in terms of pine boxes? Then you haven't visited Nude Nook Unfinished Furniture in San Rafael lately. The hardwood Spanish bedroom pictured above is typical of the stylish choices available. Professional finishing results are easily obtained with simple to use finishing kits. The choice of decorating finish is virtually limitless, at big savings.

SUGGESTIVE OF the mythical thunderbird of Indian lore is the above eagle plaque, which was reproduced in detail from a hand-crafted original. It measures thirty-eight-and-a-half inches from wingtip to wingtip, is 17 inches high and has a finish of gleaming Roman gold.

Hanging D

In practically every standard house or apartment lease, there's a fine-type paragraph that forbids tenants to attach or hang anything on the walls.

And in practically every rental transaction, that particular clause is quietly ignored by both tenant and landlord.

A matter of carelessness on one part or irresponsibility on the other? Not necessarily, claims interior designer Mary Ann Wills.

"IT'S MERELY that even the most callous landlord has learned that it's futile to try to fight the basic urge to decorate," she explained.

"Besides, it's not difficult to patch plaster walls before painting or papering them. Once tenants or home owners master the simple art of spackling, they have little to worry about."

So predominant is the practice of garnishing walls, in fact that modern college dormitory rooms are often planned to permit and even encourage it, according to Miss Wills, who advises the Traverse City, Mich., manufacturer of Arabesque wall accessories.

TODAY'S COLLEGIANS, like those before them, still delight in hanging posters, pennants, souvenirs, and signs snitched from favorite eateries or even roadsides. For the span of a school year, they make great conversation pieces.

STRAIGHT OUT of Italian art history comes the inspiration for this new Renaissance Cherub plaque that is an exacting reproduction of a hand-carved original design. The chubby amorinos (meaning "little loves" in Italian) project from a background of flowing scrollwork, leaves, shells, and flowers, all finished in lustrous Roman gold with pearlized highlights.

Once out of school, most young adults gradually develop a taste for wall decor that is more significant in terms of artistic value and lasting interest. But they still prefer items that rate high as conversation pieces, rejecting anything they consider mundane or perhaps corny.

"At any age, individual taste is what should dictate one's choice in wall accessories — for that matter, in all accessories for the home," Miss Wills declared.

The enormous variety of individual likes and dislikes among people of all ages is what guides the Arabesque designers in developing new ideas for all kinds of wall decor, to be created by woodcarvers and sculptors and then reproduced in simulated wood or other materials.

JUST NOW, for example, there is continuing emphasis on the Mediterranean design trend. So the latest Arabesque collections naturally have included numerous plaques, clocks, sconces, and mirrors with Spanish overtones. But what of the homemakers — and there are many — who haven't chosen to go in for "Mediterranea?" Don't they, too, have the urge to decorate?

"The answer is yes, of course," Miss Wills declared. "And it's for these very homemakers — the 'independents,' if you will — that new contemporary, traditional, and transitional designs have also been created."

The mighty American eagle, for example, has been taken out of its familiar Early American context and brought forth in modern plumage. Strongly suggestive of the mythical thunderbird of Indian lore, a new "Welded Metal" Eagle plaque measures 38½ inches from wingtip to wingtip and 17 inches in height.

Finished in gleaming Roman gold with subtle color accents, the massive plaque is a good candidate for the space above a family room mantel or perhaps a long, modern hi-fi console.

RANGING FROM the mighty to the mini, so far as birds are concerned, Miss Wills also told of two new plaques that combine birds with the everpopular branch motif.

Smaller of the two is a dainty apple blossom branch that frames a trio of three-dimensional birds.

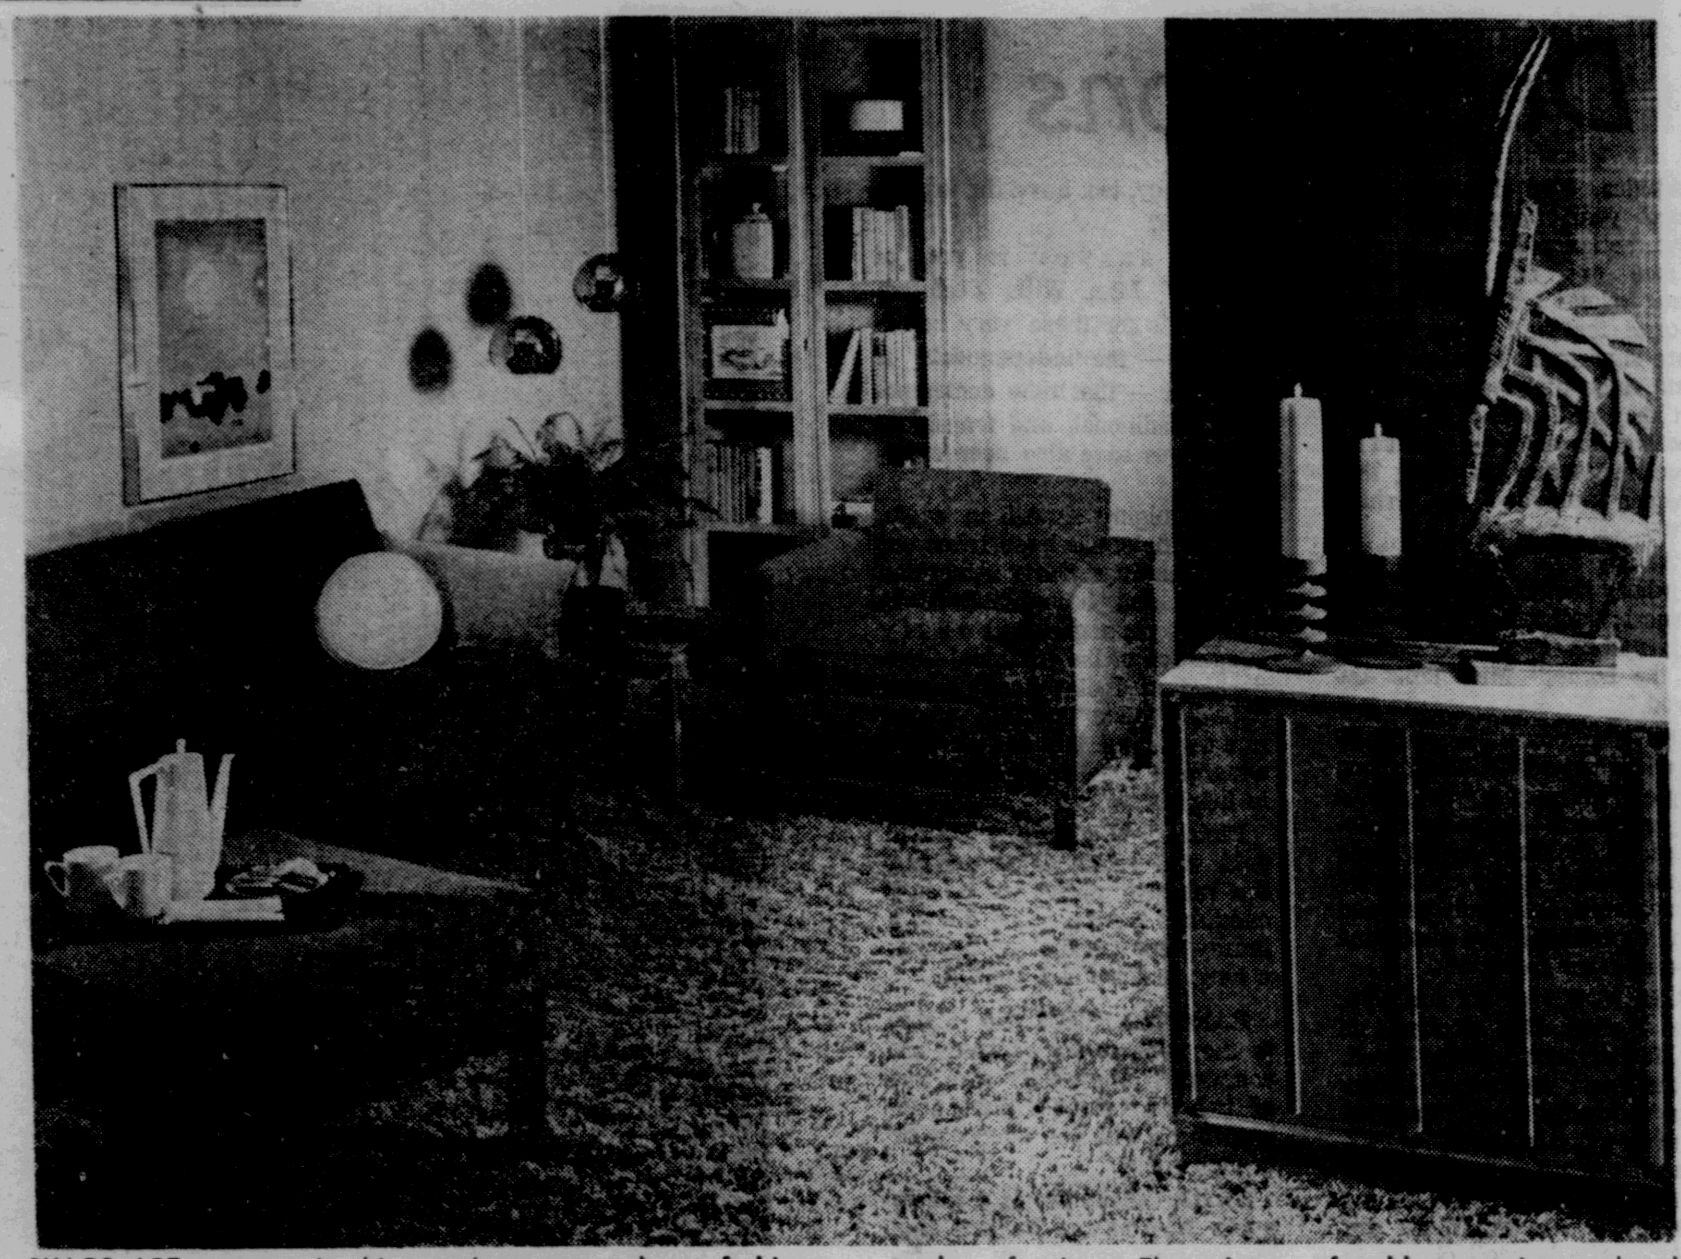
Shags At Top



SHAGS ARE rampant in this year's carpet and rug fashions such as in this luxurious wool carpet setting off new Danish modern furniture. The mixture of gold, tangerine and pale green in the pile yarns is an example of the many multi-color combinations available in the new shags.

Have you heard the latest "shaggy rug" story?

Well, if you haven't you should, because shaggy rugs are the latest!

When it comes to the 1969 carpet and rug fashions, the shags are rampant. In the innumerable shag lines being shown in carpet stores this year you can expect to see every variety of shag texture conceivable.

You will find restrained, "civilized" shags. You will also find thick and wild "savage" shags. And all the variations in between.

THEY ARE made in a wide range of fibers — nylons, wools and acrylics. However, the polyester introductions seem to predominate.

There are shags for the living room, dining room, bedroom — and you will even see some shag carpets engineered for use outdoors for such places as patios and around swimming pools.

AS TO THE shag colorations, the range in solid colors is enormous and the multi-color combinations have to be seen to be believed and enjoyed.

You will discover such mixtures as tangerine with gold and sage, patriotic red and blue, pink with gold, pink with green. Space dyeing and printing techniques on some shags creates an unusual mottled effect with swirling, tonal patterns.

OF COURSE, shags are not the whole texture story in the 1969 carpet and rug style innovations. For example, deeply-carved sculptured effects and embossed patterns are found in a number of lines as the result of new developments in tufting machinery and flocking. Spanish tile designs and other Mediterranean motifs are noteworthy in these multi-level textures.

In the overall color story of 1969 fashions, the golds and avocado greens continue to be the staple and most popular colors evident in almost every line.

BUT TO these hues the mills have added some "newsy" neutrals such as grey — yes, grey is back — sand beige, charcoal and pewter. These are neutrals with their own "personality" — distinctive tones not designed to dissolve into the background.

Jewel tone emeralds, reds and blues are showing up more often in a number of the color lines. Certainly, one new color that seems to pop up everywhere is yellow — either a pale lemon or canary. Deep vibrant coffee brown is also making repeated appearances.

EVEN PURPLE — an "in" carpet color about 10 years ago — is being revived by some manufacturers for 1969.

With a big boost from new printing techniques, multi-color patterns are abounding throughout the carpet selections. The trend toward small scale geometrics continue both in pile carpets and in the needlepunch lines created for use outdoors or indoors in kitchens, bathrooms, family rooms and you name it.

Modern Furniture On The Airy Side

Now that we have really entered the Space Age, it's completely appropriate that the exciting news in furniture is modern design.

Words like contemporary and modern may still frighten some people, but rising sales of this style of furniture indicates that we are beginning to accept the airy, spacious look of the new design.

Even in upholstered furniture, which shows the slowest change in public buying habits, there are interesting developments. Since a sofa remains the major investment in living room furniture, styling tends to be on the conservative side.

But modern touches are beginning to appear in choices of fabrics and finishes. Legs and frames of chrome steel are popular replacements for traditional woods. There is a whole range of new fabrics like man-made suedes and leather-like vinyls which weren't even a part of the vocabulary five or ten years ago.

ONE THING that hasn't changed is the durability and comfort of latex foam rubber cushioning. Foam rubber is just as long-lasting as it ever was, and still needs no pillow-plumping. However, modern methods of using foam rubber have changed, too.

Many foam rubber cushions are now wrapped or "crowned" for a thick, opulent look. And there is an entirely new way of using foam rubber, too.

Today, modern chairs are being made in other than standard shapes. While tubs and clubs and wings still predominate, there is a growing fascination with undulating, free-form chair shapes.

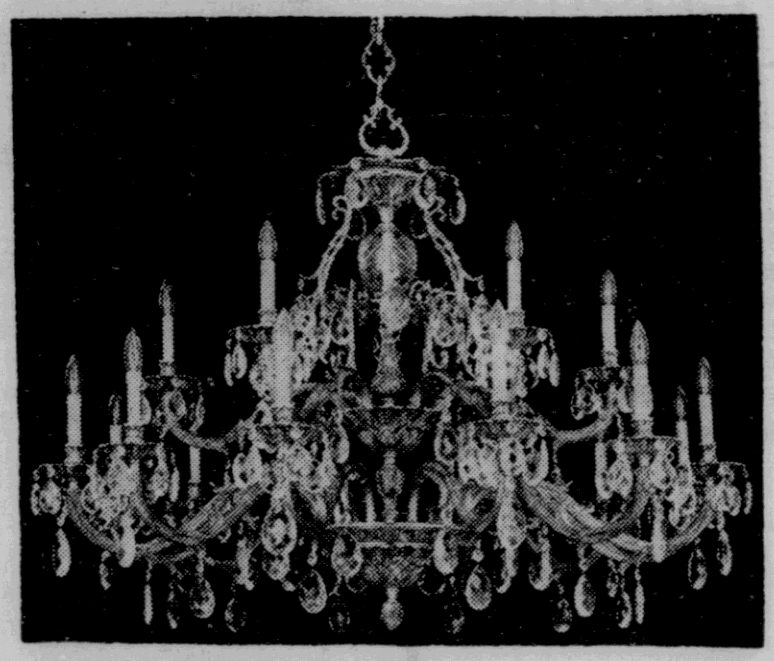
These chairs are made of molded plastic or tubular steel. A padding of foam rubber stretches over the mold for comfort, and over the padding goes the taut upholstery fabric. The chair, designed to support the body's curves, usually looks like it was born, rather than manufactured.

MODERN DESIGNS and materials are readily accepted in tables and other furniture. The glass and chrome coffee table has become a standard even in traditional rooms.

Wall units and storage cubes are mainstays of the young and mobile look in decorating. Clean-lined Parsons tables are often used as desks, buffets and occasional tables. Old concepts like etageres or Baker's racks have gone modern, too, when made of steel and plexiglass.

There are many well-designed modern accessories to choose among. Lamps, whether floor standing or table models, are increasingly dramatic in their concept. The polished steel, curved floor lamp, may be direct descendant of the old reflector, but all resemblance stops there. It's a good looking and functional lamp, made to be displayed proudly — rather than hidden in a corner.

The entire range of furniture and accessoires, in the modern idiom, brings a new freedom and design excitement to our homes.



IMPORTED CHANDELIERS are in the collection now shown in the Crystal Gollery of the Lights of Rafael in San Rafael. Eighteen lights in two tiers mounted on a Spanish brass fixture with reflecting teardrop pendants make up this piece which has a 42-inch body length and 48-inch width. The Crystal Gallery is the only display room of its type on the West Coast. This is just one department of the Lights of Rafael that show over 500 lighting fixtures in their store.

THE RETURN of an old favorite. Queen Anne styled Ladies' Desk in solid cherry or mahogany as shown at Wasser's Furniture Accents in San Anselmo. Only 27x17 this exquisite small piece takes up hardly any room yet it has four large drawers plus a number of small interior drawers and compartments. Authentic in every detail even to having locks on all drawers, the drop lid, the desk is also shown in a black or red chinoiserie hand-decorated finish. Both solid cherry and decorated models are on display at Wasser's.

Pick Type Of Home Best Suited To You

What type of house is best for you?

The ranch house that's nearly perfect for Mr. and Mrs. Jones and their two children may be completely unsuitable for you and yours.

And the split-level which fits your preferences and your pocketbook might be nothing but a headache for Mr. and Mrs. Brown and the little Browns, who have found that a two-story house fulfills all their needs even though it is on a small lot.

Every type of house has its advantages and disadvantages. To select properly, it is necessary only that you know what those advantages and disadvantages are. The following information may be of some help.

A ranch house permits more flexibility of design, looks larger than a one-and-a-half-story with the same amount of square footage, permits easier indoor-outdoor living, does away with the climbing of stairs and is easy to maintain, especially on the outside.

But it usually costs more per square foot of living area, since it requires more foundation, roofing and insulation; needs more land; calls for more horizontal walking; generally is a little more expensive to heat; and necessitates sleeping on the first floor, which some persons do not like.

A split-level gives more habitable space for less money than a ranch, has a design which is somewhat distinctive but can blend with two-story houses, eliminates much of the waste space in basements by utilizing this area for rooms or garage, and separates the living and sleeping sections.

But a split-level is harder to build than a ranch, requires more land than a two-story, creates a heating problem often calling for zoned controls, and gives the false impression that there is very little stair climbing when actually it is just that there are not as many steps in any one flight.

A one-and-a-half-story can be built on less ground than either a ranch or a split-level, can be zoned if desired so that the adults can sleep on one floor and the children on the other, and is highly adaptable to expansion, with the upper floor able to be partly or completely finished when the house is built or at any later time.

But this type of house is more difficult to maintain than a ranch, often has only a single first-floor bath (adding to the cost when a second bath must be installed), and has knee walls and sloping ceilings upstairs.

EACH PIECE picked to correlate with a room setting is the key to selection of the right furniture for a home. The buyer for Johnson's Red Barn in Novato takes great pains and a lot of time to select the best styles and finest quality from each manufacturer. The same thought goes into helping customers select their furniture.

A Basic Rule For Shopping

A basic rule when shopping for a major appliance is: Invest time now to save time later.

The highly competitive appliance industry has come up with an abundance of models, styles and colors, with engineering differences and individual features. All of them have a welcome place in some homes, but don't rely solely on the salesman to place one of them in yours.

Take the time to study the variety of makes and types, read the descriptive literature, learn the prices and ask the dealer to explain anything you don't entirely understand.

The result: You'll get longer and more dependable use from your appliance, have time for interests other than waiting for the repairman to show up — and you might well save money on both the initial price and operating costs.

Determine if there will be unexpected installation costs and whether you'll need a special electrical line run into your home. Don't rely on guesses if such work has to be done; ask an electrical contractor or utility salesman.

If you prefer a gas appliance, look near the manufacturer's serial number plate for a Blue Star emblem. It signifies that the appliance has passed testing by American Gas Association Laboratories. You may even live in a city that prohibits the installation of a gas home appliance without this seal.

Shopping for heat can be a complex and expensive business. A conversion burner can be installed in a few hours utilizing the existing furnace or boiler that burns liquid or solid fuel. Because these gas-fired units eliminate the need for bins, fuel tanks and janitor tools, they make available more space in the basement for recreation and other family activities.

No matter how efficient your heating system, your home may have hard-to-heat areas such as attics and add-on rooms. Different types of gas direct heaters are available to warm them. These types of space heaters come in models that can be counter-sunk into the floor or placed in a wall or window. Some are furniture-styled consoles or baseboard heaters that can be blended with the decor of the room, and there are models that resemble oak or birch logs that can be set in your fireplace.

Before buying a range, consider how many persons you usually feed and how much room you have in your kitchen. Get a range size that allows for work space at either side, and if you prefer the built-in look but do not want to spend the amount for these custom-styled ranges, a slide-in range costs less and can give your kitchen a built-in appeareance.

Some new gas ranges have features such as programmed ovens that cook food to your exact setting and then keep it warm until serving time, and burners-with-a-brain that adjust as heat increases in the pot or pan to prevent overcooking. Decide how much use you will have for these conveniences before selecting your range.

In choosing a water heater, be sure to buy one with enough capacity to meet all your household needs. Remember that as your family grows and you add appliances, your need for heated water will grow, too.

The rule in purchasing a clothes dryer is to get one the same size as your washer. Make sure you have convenient space for the dryer, to avoid lugging a wet wash long distances in your home.

FIREPLACE FOCUS

Fireplaces have blazed into new popularity.

Once considered heart and hearth of the Colonial home, fireplaces of various styles, shapes and sizes are now a sought-after feature in all types of residences — including contemporary homes, townhouses and apartments.

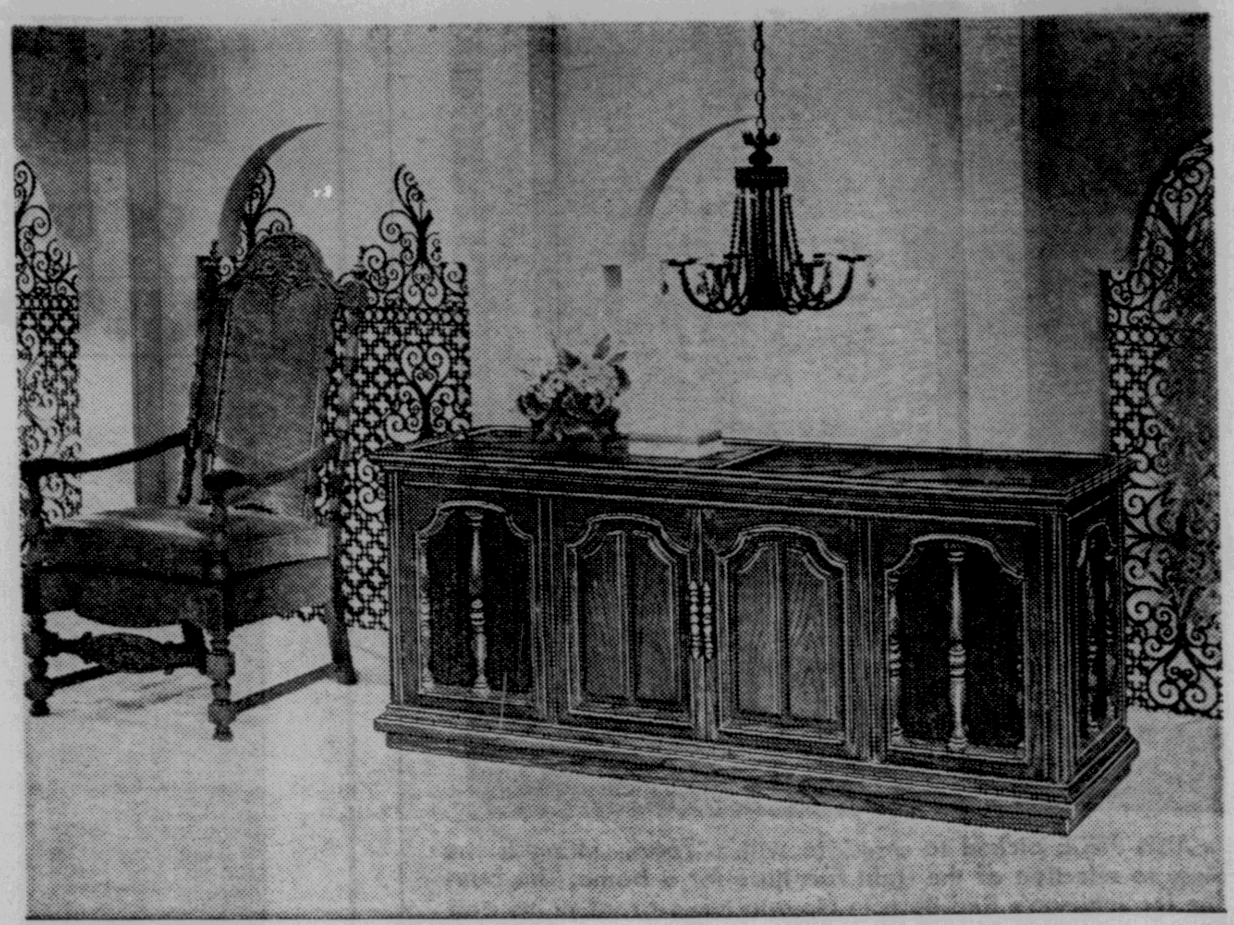
THE REASONS are obvious. Fireplaces add an undeniable touch of warmth and graciousness, are a comfortable conversational gathering place, and can easily become the decorative focal point of a room.

The decorative impact of a fireplace can be doubled by giving it a dramatic background. A non-descript, old-fashioned fireplace can be remodeled into a striking conversation piece with the aid of hardboard wall panelings.

HARDBOARD panels come in a wide choice of finishes, allowing selection of whatever style suits the room — and fireplace. There are, for example, warm woodgrain finishes, delicate damask-patterns and a number of interesting textured finishes.

Rugged hardboard panel siding — with a hand-hewn look — is beautifully appropriate as a backdrop for Franklin stoves, and for rustic-style vacation homes.

THE PANELS are available in standard 4-by-8-feet sizes that are easy to cut, handle and install. They are extremely sturdy, resistant to dents, mars and scuffs, and can be damp-wiped clean — a bonus for fireplace walls which tend to get smudged and sooty.



THE FRANCISCO-Mediterranean Magnavox's new Total Automatic Color (TAC), blends with any decor. This model along with the complete line of Magnavox television and stereo sets are featured at Butler's stores in Northgate, downtown San Rafael and Corte Madera.

Easy To Clean Kitchen Floor

Your one-year-old has just spilled orange juice all over the kitchen floor!

The phone is ringing.

The plumber is expected at the door any minute, and you suddenly feel as if you're going to explode into a million pieces.

Sound familiar? It's one of those uptight situations that every homemaker faces on occasion. No matter what the circumstances, it seems that kitchen accidents always manage to occur at the worst possible time.

THESE ARE the moments in a woman's life that call for patience, clarity of mind, and, above all, a good kitchen floor.

If a food spill has to stay put temporarily while you attend to other matters, you shouldn't have to worry about it soaking into the floor covering and creating a permanent stain underfoot.

Practicality is one reason why smooth-surface resilient floors of vinyl and linoleum have been a standard fixture in the home kitchen for generations. Aside from their durability and good looks, these materials are impervious to just about everything that's likely to be spilled in a kitchen. Eggs, milk, salad dressing, grape juice — even maple syrup — wipe up quickly with a damp cloth and a little detergent.

EVEN WHEN food substances are allowed to remain on vinyl or linoleum for an extended period of time, there's no harm done. The smooth, dense flooring surface resists absorption and keeps spills accessible so they can be easily removed later on.

Small Furniture For Apartments

Apartment living — an "out" way of life for the past two decades — is suddenly "in" again for people of all ages in towns and cities everywhere. And the reasons are devastatingly simple.

World War II veterans who dropped out of big cities in droves to raise families in suburbia are fast becoming "empty nesters" with a penchant for the excitement and services of the city sans the strains of commuting and the burdens of large home maintenance.

With equal logic, war babies-come-of-age are seeking jobs and convenient, economical apartment living beamed to "single swingers" and young married couples.

ONE OF the most significant changes caused by this fundamental shift in life styles is a new demand for small-scaled furniture that fits into the limited space of city living and performs more than one function.

With analysts expecting a record 600,000 new apartment units to be started across the U.S. this year and with apartment building expected to grow to 45 per cent of all housing starts by 1970, alert furniture manufacturers are studying the market with microscope and measuring tape in hand.

According to Barbara Brody, interior design consultant, the real criterion for new apartment dwellers is scaled-down furniture with built-in versatility.

"Given a choice, the canny cliff dweller selects as much multi-purpose furniture as possible," she said.

"THIS MEANS love seats and club chairs that turn into beds, dividers that store possessions while separating room areas, and all-purpose table and chair groupings that can sit anywhere in the home and serve for games, meals, and drop-of-the-hat entertaining."

Miss Brody, who counsels the B. Brody Seating Company, Chicago, manufacturer of metal dining furniture, noted that the average new apartment is now being built with an overall total of 700 to 800 square feet of space — a fact that automatically rules out massive furnishings for the dining area.

"Fortunately, this is one area where a wealth of creative effort has already been invested. Discerning apartment dwellers can now find properly scaled, handsomely executed dining ensembles in every mood and style from Mediterranean to Oriental to sleek modern and warm Early American," she stated.

TO WIN the space race, she recommends looking into round or oval tables that fit easily into tight quarters. Comfortable chairs that have enough design flair to unblushingly double as spare seating in any room are equally important.

Outstanding among the new designs now on the market are diminutive sets with fresh Oriental modern flavor. Table tops come in a variety of laminated plastic treatments that simulate exotic tortoise-and-brass inlays in round or oval shapes.

Matching metal chair frames are decorated with bright brass guilloches and come in hardy enamel finishes of black, bisque or walnutone.

Upholstery choices include rich, brocade-like floral patterns in sturdy, supported vinyl in Bali red, turquoise, or spice.

For apartment dwellers who seek the substantial flourish of Mediterranean without the bulk of the genuine article, there are pedestal groupings with graceful bases in curved black enamel with matching swivel chairs.

FIRST HOME

Newlyweds Should Make Right Choices

Now that summer has gone, many June brides are in the process of furnishing their first homes.

Whether it's a small, rented apartment or a "home of your own," certain decorating knowledge is necessary to transform hollow, impersonal space into that dream house that meets the needs of daily living for two.

BEFORE purchasing any furniture, remember that it is an investment and your choices should be geared to the future as well as the present.

An oyster white sofa covered in the finest silk may be the ideal accent for your living room now, but how will it hold up against sticky little fingers that may be a part of your home in a year or two?

It is wise to choose upholstered furnishings with stain-resistant finishes; tables and chests with glass or high-pressure tops, carpeting with a pattern or tweed effect, rather than a solid.

Even if a family is not in your immediate plans, you'll appreciate the ease in housekeeping.

IF YOU are living in two rooms now, choose living room furnishings that can go into a rec room or family room after you move into a larger home.

Before you make any large purchases, make sure you shop thoroughly. It's a good idea to visit one of the larger stores in your area even if you do not intend to purchase anything in this specific store.

This will still afford you the opportunity to examine a wide variety of styles, lines and manufacturer names.

If you are planning on filling in pieces of a certain manufacturer's collection or group at a later date, be sure and write directly to the manufacturer to find out how long the line has been in existence and how long it is planned to continue.

BEFORE purchasing any oversized pieces — such as king-sized springs and mattresses, over-long sofas, portable bars, etc. — make sure you can get them into your apartment.

Measure doorways and window openings. Check stairway turns — especially if you live in a third floor walk-up.

A good method in determining what kind of furnishings will fit into your rooms is by making a floor plan. Draw your rooms to scale using graph paper, allowing one-quarter inch per foot. Be sure to indicate all the architectural features such as doors, windows, radiators or heat registers, electrical outlets, etc.

Next, draw a scale pattern, called a template, of each piece of furniture you already have or plan to purchase. By arranging and re-arranging the templates on your floor plan, you can determine just how each piece will fit and look in your room.

IN THIS manner, you can also easily see which items you need immediately and which can wait for the future.

BABY FURNITURE has broken out of the doldrums of tradition and is now available in various styles such as the "Cordovea Mediterranean shown above which is one of the stylings available at Hellers Baby News store in San Rafael. A FAR EAST theme was created by Charles H. Bellach of Bellach's Design Center in San Rafael of a discriminating client who wanted an extra wide table and extra deep cabinets for maximum storage space. The table can be elongated by the use of cantilevered tracks that pull from each end upon which is placed wide leaves. The chairs are upholstered with coin gold Thailand silk and shoji wall and brass lantern fixture completed the Far Eastern concept.

Big Bedrooms Multi-Purpose

The evolution of the bedroom from a nighttime retreat into a multi-purpose room for "total living" is bringing about changes in the basic design of homes being built today and is also feeding the demand for supersize bedding.

"Homes currently being constructed by major builders reflect the public's desire for larger bedrooms in general and more specifically for a master suite that serves as an adult retreat," noted Sally Ames, style consultant to a leading mattress manufacturer, adding:

"IT'S SIGNIFICANT that the trend to spacious master bedroom suites isn't confined to luxury residences. It's not unusual to find master bedrooms, 12x15 feet or larger plus dressing room and bath, in modestly priced development-type homes."

Miss Ames, consultant to the Spring Air Mattress Company, Chicago, explained that clever architects and builders can often provide a bigger bedroom while holding the price line by "borrowing" space from other areas. This alternative eliminates the need for adding extra square feet which necessarily elevates the price of the home.

For example, the type and placement of bedroom closets affect the amount of available floor space.

While some homemakers prefer "walk-in" closets, the wardrobe type which utilizes the entire length of available wall space frees considerable floor space to become a useable part of the bedroom.

Miss Ames explained the difference: An efficient walk-in closet would be 4½x6 feet, or 27 square feet in total size. Of this 19 feet is clothes storage space, while the rest is passage area. The same amount of clothes storage can be provided in a wardrobe closet, with either sliding or folding doors, measuring 2 feet deep by 9½ feet wide.

THE STYLE consultant mentioned that another way of enlarging the bedroom is to borrow space from the living area.

"This is a logical move," Miss Ames said, "because it's more practical to select from an abundance of lightly scaled furniture for the living room than to try to squeeze a king-size bed into a bedroom that's too small."

Miss Ames credits the growing popularity of supersize bedding with bolstering the boom in larger bedrooms, and, in turn, being fed by the demand.

"ALONG WITH a waking retreat for reading, writing, TV watching or quiet conversation, more and more Americans want a king or a queen-size bed for super sleeping comfort," Miss Ames said.

Miss Ames pointed out that sales of queen-size, king-size and extra long mattresses and springs are increasing significantly every year.

A king-size bed, she explained is 76 inches wide by 80 inches long, while queen-size is 60 inches wide by 80 inches long. A standard twin bed, on the other hand, is 39 inches wide by 75 inches long, while a standard double bed is 54 inches wide by 75 inches long.

"There's little doubt," Miss Ames said, "that supersize demand is influencing forward-looking architects and builders who are re-thinking their residential designs to provide the bigger bedrooms that home buyers prefer."

SHE MENTIONED that rental apartments also mirror the trend to "total living" bedrooms. "A look at apartment buildings built in the last year or so indicates that spacious master suites are being included as a major selling point to prospective tenants," Miss Ames noted.

Tips On Furniture Arrangement

Proper furniture arrangement is important in displaying your furnishings to the best advantage and also in getting the most use out of a room.

Here are some points to remember:

Keep traffic lanes open. Place major conversational groupings so that they are not disturbed by traffic. It is also possible to redirect traffic by re-arranging furnishings.

Place large pieces close to, and parallel to, the wall in order to use the least amount of wall space and conform to the lines of the room.

Arrange furnishings so that each room has a center of interest or focal point.

Group together the pieces that are used together, e.i. comfortable chairs and sofa for a conversation group; desk or table and chair to form work or hobby center.

Windows, Drapes Take Care

Remember, when you plan your window treatment, what your window is for, and be sure that you don't interfere with its function. If you have a nice view, let it be seen. And remember that, no matter what the view by day, at night the glass will be black unless covered. If your apartment is high up, in a city, you may have a beautiful view at night. But this is for relatively few people.

In a modern room, or any room that is informal, don't let the windows become fuzzy with treatment. They must harmonize with the room in every way. If there is pattern in the curtains, it should be in scale with the room and everything in it.

If your curtains are being featured, try to make them beautiful — and just important enough. If they are to be background, don't let them get too busy. Don't let them interfere with the room's unity. Be sure they are made properly and installed so they hang well. If you do all of these things, you will surely have curtains that do their job and look well at the same time.

Mirrors Can Create Magic In All Rooms

Mirrors can make magic in every room of a home. They bring light and air into a small room, widen a narrow, highceilinged room, or raise the center of interest in a predominately low room. Today, there are sizes and styles of framed mirrors to suit any decorating need.

An arrangement of framed mirrors is a particularly imaginative way to add new dimensions to a room, the Institute points out. A collection of framed mirrors, hung like a wall arrangement of pictures might be, creates a strikingly different mood from that of a single mirror.

A pair of identical mirrors might serve as the focal point of an arrangement or perhaps a single large mirror can occupy the center. Mirrors in a variety of sizes and shapes, all with different frames and surrounding the center of interest, create a potpourri of light and color.

Frame styles and colors should be compatible with the furniture and decor of the room. Mirror sections of department or furniture stores and custom frame shops are good sources of help in selecting framed mirrors. Some stores also have decorators who can assist in planning a wall arrangement.

Mirrors can be both functional and decorative. The next best thing to a second window is a handsome mirror opposite the only window in the room

Housekeeping An Arduous Job

The majority of homemakers — whatever their economic or geographic circumstances — still find housekeeping an arduous business that demands more time than it should in an enlightened scientific age. And city dwellers, especially, take it on the chin in the battle against dust and dirt.

According to a survey of urban vs. suburban housekeeping made by W. J. Hagerty & Sons, Ltd., Inc., South Bend, Ind., manufacturer of home care products:

The city homemaker spends 32 hours per week cleaning house, compared with 19.8 hours per week for her counterpart in the suburbs.

CITY [illegible] SUBURBAN homemakers agree that cleaning the range and oven is their most irksome chore. Ironing ranks second with city women, while suburbanites complain about washing windows.

While floor and carpet care appliances, automatic washers, and steam irons are common among both city and suburban homemakers, few automatic dishwashers and garbage disposers are to be found in city homes.

The suburban homemaker is more apt to have paid domestic help, while the city woman relies more on her children for assistance. In both cases, the husband does little to help with the housework.

City and suburban women rely heavily on specialized cleaning products, are loyal to products that do a job, and look to science and industry to produce even more work-savers for them.

HAGERTY undertook the survey to learn what home care products the homemaker wants to ease her cleaning chores.

Mrs. Mary Gaffney, director of the Hagerty Home Care Institute, the company's consumer service arm, noted that women surveyed in both areas were generally mature, experienced housekeepers with a keen appreciation of efficient cleaning aids and a full awareness of the areas where help is needed.

"What we basically discovered is that income and location mean very little. All respondents in the survey were hard working homemakers with a genuine sense of urgency about their problems," she said.

"Both were frank to state that scientific advances had eased their burden in the past and was their main hope for more help in the future."

COMPARING an urban area with a median income of $9,800 and a nearby suburban area with average family income of $15,700, the Hagerty survey uncovered significant facts about the attitudes of today's homemaker.

While the respondents in the survey spanned a wide range in terms of years married (two weeks to 43 years), the typical homemaker emerged as an expert with between 16 and 19 years of housekeeping experience.

About half of all respondents had had some home economics training before marriage and most homemakers still have children at home to care for and clean up after.

THE URBAN homemaker has fewer rooms to clean (an average of 5.4 rooms vs. 7.1 rooms for the suburbanite) and more children at home (an average of 2.8 children vs. 2.1 in the suburbs), a fact which may present extra difficulties in terms of overcrowding and storage.

Nuclear Disarmament Parley Set By U.S., Russia To Start Nov. 17

SPRING FORWARD, FALL BACK

It's that time of the year again, folks — the time that most everyone except clock-freaks are confused about what time it is. Daylight saving time officially ends at 2 a.m. tomorrow and your clock goes back — repeat BACK — an hour. We suggest you turn the clock back before going to bed because getting up at 2 a.m. is kind of silly. And besides, tomorrow is going to be a long day.

Two Profs Call For Campus Revolution

By ALAN KORNFELD
I. J. Correspondent

BERKELEY—Herbert Marcuse, a leading philosopher of the New Left movement, and his prize pupil, Angela Davis, an avowed Communist, joined yesterday to urge a student revolt against the structure of higher education in California.

Some 5,000 students and teachers crowded into Sproul Plaza on the University of California campus to hear Marcuse and Miss Davis call Gov. Ronald Reagan and the U.C. Board of Regents "unscrupulous demagogues" for trying to fire Miss Davis from the University of California at Los Angeles faculty because of her political affiliations.

Marcusd urged the enthusiastic crowd to "ask for the resignation of the regents, who seem to insist that you obey the law, while they appear to have far less regard for the law."

A Los Angeles Superior Court judge has ruled that the firing of Miss Davis, a former philosophy student of Marcuse at

Petaluma Housing Picture Rated Better Than Marin

Southern Sonoma in general and Petaluma in particular are areas where minority groups will eventually break through housing barriers but Marin County remains a question mark, a leading urban planner told an all-day workshop on housing problems in Marin County today.

Lawrence Livingston Jr., a planning consultant to the city of San Francisco, told more than 400 Marin County civic and government leaders that while Marin County is only a tiny part of the Bay Area minority housing problem, it is the furthest behind in answering living problems of the minorities.

Livingston, the keynote speaker of the workshop's morning session, traced the history of Bay Area housing back to its first problems when the Chinese arrived to work on the transcontinental railroad.

He said that Marin County's efforts towards conservation — large lot requirements and strict zoning—ended up actually as a barrier excluding all but the upper middle class and the rich.

"The workshop, at Dominican College, also was to include talks by numerous planning consultants and by Paul C. Zucker, Marin County planning director. The afternoon session was to be devoted to problem-solving brainstorming by discussion groups.

New Crisis: Lebanese Border Hit

BEIRUT (UPI) — About 300 "armed men" supported by armored cars, artillery and mortars crossed into Lebanon from Syria during the night and occupied a Lebanese area about two miles inside the border, Radio Lebanon announced today.

Antigovernment forces were reported to have seized control of half of the northern coastal city of Tripoli Lebanon's second biggest, in renewed fighting.

REVOLT URGED

Guerrilla leaders have called for the overthrow of the government of President Charles Helou because of the army crackdown on Arab commando bases on Lebanese territory used for strikes against Israel.

The official Lebanon Radio said the "armed men" from Syria occupied the village of Yanta, about 40 miles south of Beirut, and took up positions in the surrounding hills.

It said Lebanese army forces moved into positions in the area close to Yanta "in order to prevent this force from advancing further into Lebanese territory."

The infiltrating force, in addition to the 300 men, included 20 personnel carriers, eight military cars mounted with 120-mm mortars, five armored cars equipped with antiaircraft machine guns and three jeeps carrying 106-mm antitank guns, the Beirut radio said.

GUERRILLAS SEEN

UPI correspondent David Zenian earlier reported from the village of Yanta that it was in the hands of guerrillas wearing the badges of Al Assifa, the military arm of Al Fatah. He said they told him they entered the town about 1 a.m. and captured six Lebanese policemen.

Zenian said he talked to the

NO ROMAN HOLIDAY

Roman commuters queue up behind a military truck which is near the Coliseum affording the only transportation available during a 24-hour strike begun yesterday by nearly 100,000 urban transportation workers. Alioto Plumps For Seashore

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto called yesterday for completion of Point Reyes National Seashore.

San Franciscans Lash Hickel On Alcatraz

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Lonely Alcatraz Island suddenly has blossomed into the most popular parcel of land in the area.

Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel, yesterday ordered the National Park Service to survey the proportions of the former prison island and determine if a federal recreation area or monument is possible.

Hickel's move angered San Francisco Supervisor William Blake who was backing millionaire Lamar Hunt's designs for the land which include a "space age museum" and a period recreation of old San Francisco.

Blake said Hickel "knows we are negotiating for recreational and commercial development of the island. . . . With Hickel's mentality, we'll probably have an oil rig out there."

However, another supervisor, Robert Mendelsohn, was elated with Hickel's overture. Mendelsohn has opposed Hunt's interest in the island from the first proposal.

"Let me say this . . . it's great," Mendelsohn said. "I am glad to see the federal government help us solve this problem. I hope Alcatraz can be the first part of (an eventual) San Francisco Bay national park."

The federal government owns the famous "Rock" where a maximum security prison was located from 1934 to 1963. The

51 Reds Dead In Surprise Viet Battle

SAIGON (AP) — A five-hour fight started by a curious helicopter pilot turned out to be the biggest battle fought by American troops in nearly six weeks, the U.S. Command reported today.

Troops of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division killed 51 North Vietnamese soldiers during the fight yesterday in the Ho Bo Woods area 28 miles north of Saigon. Ten Americans were killed and 12 wounded. The U.S. troops called for air strikes.

The battle in a bomb-cratered abandoned plantation apparently came as a surprise to both the American troops and the North Vietnamese regulars holed up there.

The battle started when WO Kenneth Young, of Newport, Ohio, pilot of a helicopter gunship, spotted movement in one of the craters.

About 100 U.S. infantrymen were shuttled by helicopter to search the area. They drew fire which was suppressed by the helicopter gunships, and four more enemy bodies were found,

Helsinki, Finland, Is Site

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union will start their long-awaited talks on curbing their nuclear arms race in Helsinki, Finland, Nov. 17, the White House announced today.

In a one-sentence statement slated for simultaneous release in Washington and Moscow, the White House said:

"Confirming the agreement reached earlier to enter into negotiation on curbing the strategic arms race, the governments of the United States and USSR have agreed that specially-designated representatives of the United States and the Soviet Union will meet in Helsinki on Nov. 17, 1969, for preliminary discussion of the questions involved."

PHASE ONE

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler indicated the term "preliminary discussion" meant dealing with preliminary matters in getting into substantive negotiations. He described it as phase one of the talks, which are expected to go on for a longtime and deal with highly important disarmament issues.

Possibilities for accord between the two nuclear superpowers on limiting their race in multi-warhead missiles and in antimissile defense systems are items on which U.S. negotiators hope to place priority.

Ziegler disclosed that today's announcement followed a secret call at the White House last Monday by Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.

REPLY TO BID

The Soviet envoy brought the Kremlin's long-delayed reply to Nixon's bid last June 11 to get going on the so-called SALT-Strategic Arms Limitation Talks.

Ziegler noted that Gerard C. Smith, head of the U.S. Disarmament Agency, has been

Bay Area Space Held Vital To Pollution Prevention

Preserving the open space of San Francisco Bay is more important in the fight against pollution than increasing the flow of fresh water from the Sacramento River, a state water resources department official said yesterday.

The importance of the river flow is "misunderstood," John R. Teerink, deputy director of the department, told the Bay Region Water Problems Committee in a meeting at the Holiday Inn.

Teerink said some 200 agencies are currently dumping waste into the bay, creating a need for more oxygen — and the real oxygen generator is the surface area.

Projections indicate the waste problem will become steadily worse, with pollution from the North Bay expected to increase the most, he said.

The outflow of fresh Sacramento River water from the delta is important to keep salinity out of the interior of the bay, Teerink noted.

Teerink also commented on possible future sources of water for California, including importing from the Pacific Northwest and Canada, development of economic methods for desalinization, and waste water reclamation.

Fledgling Bonn Cabinet Keeps Promise To Hike Mark's Value

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The new West German government, in office less than a week, has increased the international exchange rate of the mark to combat inflation and keep the economic boom in check.

This means West Germans will get more for their currency when they go to another country. Before the revaluation it took four marks to get a dollar; now it will take 3.66. The new rate goes into effect Monday.

The 8.25 per cent increase, announced last night, should cause a drop in the country's large trade surplus and hold down rising domestic prices that the boom is pushing up.

For the American consumer, the revaluation means that West German goods will become more expensive. Volkswagen said raising the value of the mark may mean it will have to increase its prices. Ernst Leitz, the optical firm that makes the Leica camera, said its cameras will go up in price.

Economics Minister Karl Schiller announced the revaluation after a cabinet meeting. He said it was "a courageous but not a foolhardy step" and would bring stability to West German industry.

The move was taken by the country's new Social Democrat-led government, sworn into office Tuesday. It ended months of wrangling between the Social Democrats and the Christian Democrats, who refused to go along with a revaluation as long as they led the government.

A revaluation had been certain since the old government freed the mark Sept. 29 from support by the central bank, leaving it to find its own level. It traded freely at 7.3 per cent more than its official rate, but Schiller said even this increase did not reflect the currency's true strength.

In Washington, the U.S. Treasury Department welcomed the mark's revaluation, saying it "should resolve in a constructive manner the principal cause of uncertainty that has existed in the exchange markets."

Schiller warned that some segments of the economy may suffer.

The government decided to give subsidies to farmers, whose products now will become too expensive in their traditional markets in neighboring countries. The government also plans to keep an eye on weak industries that might suffer, Schiller said.

Finance and agricultural ministers of the European Common Market countries will meet in Luxembourg Monday to decide on measures to protect West German farmers from cheap imported food as a result of the revaluation.

Reagan In New Attack On Moratorium Supporters

DENVER (AP) — Supporters of the Vietnam War Moratorium are like "those who would kibitz in a game in which they haven't even seen the cards," Gov. Ronald Reagan said last night.

"Somewhere a young American now alive will die in an enemy attack geared to produce more activity in our streets where the enemy hopes to win that which he can never win the rice paddies and jungles of his own land," the Republican governor said.

"Those who parade, those who invoke the names of our honored dead in their noisy protests would have the game without the name. But they cannot escape the ugly truth - they would lend comfort and aid to the enemy."

Reagan wound up a week-long speaking trip with a speech to a Republican fund-raising dinner in Denver.

His remarks against the anti-war demonstrations were in a prepared text.

Reagan said that although a Democratic administration was in office during eight years of the Vietnam War, it has "in the short course of nine months become Nixon's war, and our political opponents are wide - eyed with shock and horror that he ever let such a war happen."

He said Nixon is the man who could gain the most politically from an end to the war.

"But a president must weigh the price of peace," he said. "And sometimes that price is more than free men can pay. The price of an enemy peace could mean a thousand years of darkness for generations yet unborn."

Chicago Trial Lawyer Goes To Red Talks

CHICAGO (AP) — Two defendants in the Chicago conspiracy trial who were refused permission to go to Paris for talks with North Vietnamese delegates concerning possible release of U.S. prisoners of war have designated their attorney to go instead.

A telegram from Xuan Oanh, a North Vietnamese delegate to the Paris peace talks, was received yesterday. It invited David T. Dellinger, 54, and Rennard C. "Rennie" Davis, 29, to meet in Paris with North Vietnamese negotiators over the weekend.

A motion by William M. Kunstler, defense attorney, that the two be allowed to leave the jurisdiction of U.S. District Court during the weekend recess of their trial was denied.

Judge Julius J. Hoffman rejected the motion and the U.S. 7th Circuit Court of Appeals upheld his decision when the ruling was appealed by the defense.

Kunstler left Chicago late Friday for Paris to take the place of Dellinger and Davis.

Clergyman Accused Of Keeping New York Harem

NEW YORK (UPI) — A self-styled minister, who allegedly has kept eight common-law wives and 60 children in the rectory of his Brooklyn church, yesterday was sued for custody of eight of the youngsters hy their mother.

Miss Betty Davis, 39, who has reportedly lived for 10 years at St. John's Church, filed the suit in Brooklyn supreme court against De Vernon Legrand.

The woman claimed she fled from the church Oct. 20, but that she left behind her eight children, ranging in age from 12 to one year.

She said Legrand was the father of seven of the eight youngsters.

Miss Davis said Legrand had kept her and the other women locked in the home and would let them out only to solicit contributions on the street. She contended that Legrand would hold the children hostage while their mothers, who dress in nuns' habits, solicited funds.

The women bring in as much as $100-a-day each, but never get any of the funds, she said.

Legrand has been charged with kidnaping by another of the women who lived with him.

A previous kidnaping charge was brought against him last year by another woman, who is a British citizen, but the complaint later was dropped when Legrand married her.

Miss Davis said yet another woman escaped the same night she did, taking her six children with her.

Legrand has reportedly fathered almost all of the children living in the church.

Brooklyn supreme court justice Dominic Rinaldi issued a writ which ordered Legrand to appear in court next Tuesday to answer the charges filed by Miss Davis.

Auto Cost Up

NEW YOUK (UPI) — The retail price of German cars in the U. S. will increase due to the revaulation of the mark, two auto manufacturers hinted yesterday.

Volkswagen of America Inc. and Mercedes-Benz of North America Inc. said the impact of the 8.5 per cent hike in the German mark will first have to be studied, but that higher price tags were somewhat more than likely.

Volkswagen, whose prices increased 2.18 per cent Oct. 9 when the mark's value rose on international currency markets, said the revaluation "necessitates a review of our pricing policy and may mean an increase in suggested retail prices."

Water Unsafe

WASHINGTON (AP) — One-third to one-half of America's drinking water does not meet U.S. Public Health Service standards, a student conservation leader told a national conference on health and environment here Friday.

David Sachs, a third-year medical student at Stanford University and co-chairman of the Student American Medical Association committee on national priorities, said findings were based on analysis of Public Health Service data over the past five years.

"The potential threat of water-borne epidenics has been increasing steadily as municipal water supplies are forced to serve a population two to three times that for which they were designed," Sachs said.

Russ Free Britons

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government today freed two young Britons in the Brooke-Cohen spy deal and flew them to London.

Michael Parsons, 24, and Anthony Lorraine, 29, had been jailed for drug smuggling. Parsons was serving a four-year sentence and Lorraine a three-year term.

BRUSSELS (AP) — The Belgian Cabinet went into emergency session today and sources close to the government said it will revalue the Belgian franc by 1.5 to 2 per cent.

The move follows the revaluation of the West German mark from 25 cents to slightly over 27 cents.

The informants said the Belgian government fears the West German action would overheat Belgium's economy because Belgian goods exported to Germany will be cheaper.

10 REASONS WHY

OWNING YOUR HOME IS YOUR FINEST SECURITY

Your home in Marin is a family investment that pays off!

When you buy a home, you're adding to your capital. You're investing in your future, the future of your family, and the future of the home itself.

Your investment pays off in many ways:

The satisfaction of ownership, the pleasure of watching your home grow as your family grows. Because, in effect, a home is a living thing, it responds to your care and attention.

The more effort you put into it, the more satisfaction you get out of it. It becomes your family "castle."

It repays your interest—with interest. Steadily increasing equity in a home is one of the most rewarding forms of painless, automatic saving. Everything you do to make your home more livable makes it more valuable, too.

HERE ARE 10 IMPORTANT ADVANTAGES OF HOME OWNERSHIP

1. Security
The safe feeling that comes with ownership, and the knowledge that your home is a safeguard against inflation. If prices go up, so does the value of your property.

2. Investment
Payments on your mortgage mean you are buying something, not just paying rent. You keep owning more and more.

3. Tax advantage
Your real estate taxes and the interest on your mortgage or land contract are deductible when you figure your income tax.

4. Financial independence
More people have started on the road to financial independence through home ownership than in any other way.

5. Standing and credit
You are a solid part of the community. You feel that you "belong" and home ownership gives you substantial credit rating.

6. Environment
Your children have a proper neighborhood in which to grow up. Your family finds itself among responsible home owners with background much like your own. You establish roots.

7. A cash equity
A well-bought home is like a savings account.

8. Character development
Responsibilities of ownership develop business acumen and appreciation of financial independence . . . self reliance.

9. Peace of mind
Knowledge that provision has been made for your family . . . and that they can share in your pride of ownership.

10. Satisfaction
Along with the other advantages, there are many things that make life worthwhile—vegetables from your own garden . . . the chance for do-it-yourself projects, large or small . . . the backyard barbecue . . . the picture of your home on your Christmas cards. These heartwarming things are a very real part of owning your home.

TALK

named to lead the U.S. negotiating team at the talks.

The announcement in Moscow came shortly after Washington's. A spokesman for the Soviet Foreign Ministry told newsmen in Moscow he was not authorized to say who would participate for the Soviet side in the talks or to elaborate in any way on the announcement.

Helsinki is 560 miles northwest of Moscow and is the nearest Western capital.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers made these further points later at a news conference:

He expects the preliminary discussions at Helsinki will last several days, perhaps a few weeks, with the two sides working out such details as of what size the delegations should be and whether there should be a formal agenda.

Helsinki, along with Geneva and Vienna, have been proposed by the United States for the preliminary discussions. The permanent site is one item to be decided upon at the Helsinki talks.

There is no intent to hold a summit meeting between Nixon and Soviet President Alexi N. Kosygin in connection with the opening of the next phase of the talks.

The disarmament negotiations could turn out to be among the most important negotiations in U.S. history. However, one cannot tell yet how long the talks will take or how they will come out. "The start of the talks themselves does not mean success of the talks," he said.

A halt in multiple-warhead rocket production is one of the subjects which will be considered when the U.S.-Soviet negotiations start in on substantive issues.

Rogers believes the Soviets are "serious about these talks . . . Their attitude was about the same as ours. It is a realistic attitude."

He expects that an agreement would be in treaty form, through he would not rule out some other, more limited types of agreements resulting from the talks.

The United States will keep its allies and Congress informed on the progress of the talks. However the U.S. government does not intend to make public what is going on inside the negotiating room. Privacy is needed in the course of the discussions to achieve the best chance of their success.

The disarmament talks are not contingent on good or bad occurrences elsewhere in the world. As for the impact of the Big Two talks on the international atmosphere, they should tend to improve the atmosphere "but we shouldn't be euphoric about it."

an Army spokesman said.

The Americans had not moved very far, however, when they came under heavy fire. Artillery and air strikes were called in. A second company arrived to reinforce the first, and after a 30-minute barrage the infantrymen moved out again for what they thought would be a routine sweep.

They didn't know they were invading what was later determined to be the supply and assembly point for the 268th North Vietnamese Regiment.

Fairfax Area Crash Kills One Motorist

A San Francisco man was killed and three other persons injured early today when their car plunged over a 150-foot embankment on the Bolinas-Fairfax Road near the Meadow Club, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Dead was Robert L. Davis, 20, who was driving the car which went off the embankment after it rounded a curve too fast. Davis, who was pinned in the car, was the 30th traffic fatality in Marin County this year, compared with 27 at this time a year ago.

Treated at Marin General Hospital were James W. Randall, 21, of 81 Elm Avenue, Larkspur, for bruises on the left hand and a broken nose; Carlton L. Bonham III, 21, of Santa Clara, for a cut scalp; and Serena Baker, 16, of 40 Diane Lane, Larkspur, for a bruised shoulder.

A fourth passenger was not injured in the 12:20 a.m. wreck, the patrol said.

Poverty War Speeds Family Planning

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Office of Economic Opportunity has boosted by $7 million the amount it will spend this year in its war against the population explosion.

OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld announced yesterday that the federal antipoverty agency will spend $22 million in the year ending next June 30 to provide family planning services to millions of women who have not had previous help in limiting the number of their children.

Bolivians Promise Payment On Oil

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Bolivia's military junta says it will compensate Gulf Oil Co. for its nationalized Bolivian subsidiary but will not negotiate with the company on the amount to be paid.

Mining and Oil Minister Marcelo Quiroga said at a news conference last night that "no negotiations will be set up either with the company or any other institution," and that the government "will not tolerate any pressure to favor the company in prejudice of the state's interests."

Pollution Warning Sounded In Canada

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau says Canada is determined to keep man's pollution problems from the virgin Arctic.

A statement, delivered yesterday in the House of Commons, indicates Trudeau also said he will not bow to "pressures of any state" and invited the international community to support Canada's initiative "for a new concept — an international legal regime designed to ensure to human beings the right to live in a wholesome natural environment."

guerrilla leader, who declined to give his name, but was dressed like the others in khaki army fatigues and forage caps of Arab commando forces.

Zenian said the guerrillas almost all spoke with Palestinian accents and apparently were not members of the Syrian regular army as earlier reports had suggested.

Reports reaching Beirut from Tripoli said Palestinian refugees and commando sympathizers had captured the entire "Old City".

At least eight persons were reported killed and 14 wounded in fighting in Tripoli yesterday and today.

Elsewhere in the Mideast, Israeli war planes today bombed the suburbs of Amman in their closets strikes to the capital of Jordan since the 1967 Middle East War. Egypt reported its bombers attacked Israeli troops in the occupied Sinai Peninsula for the second consecutive day.

Israel reported its planes struck on two fronts during the day—hitting a suspected Arab guerrilla base near As Salt, 15 miles northwest of Amman, and Egyptian "military objectives" in the northern sector of the Suez Canal. A spokesman said all of the planes returned safely.

Zodiac Victim Unsure Of Calls

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A survivor of an attack by a killer who calls himself Zodiac does not think Zodiac is the same man who called a television talk show to talk to attorney Melvin Belli.

Bryan Hartnell, a pre-law student who talked to Zodiac for a half hour before being critically stabbed, listened to tapes of the television program Wednesday and again yesterday.

He said he could not be sure whether the voice was the same, but commented that when the voice told Belli "I've got to kill," it seemed younger and more excitable than Zodiac.

Teen-Ager Hurt In Crash

Daniel Hendrix Smith, 14, of 55 Bridge Road, Black Point, was injured yesterday when his car rounded a curve too fast, swerved to avoid hitting another car and hit an embankment near Novato, the California Highway Patrol said.

He was treated at Novato General Hospital for undetermined injuries.

The accident was on Crest Road near Harbor Road and Highway 37.

government had offered to sell the island to San Francisco. But any sale now will be delayed until at least Dec. 1 — the Interior Department's deadline to complete the survey.

The city's supervisors had given tentative approval of the Hunt plan but a San Francisco dressmaker, Alvin Duskin, whipped up a storm of protest with an ad calling the oil heir's proposal "the biggest steal since Manhattan Island."

Coupons, included in the ad, were clipped out by residents and sent by the thousands to the supervisors and Mayor Joseph L. Alioto. Hickel's office said the secretary had also received 8,000 protests against the Hunt plan and the General Service Administration counted another 6,000.

Alioto said he spent three summers at Point Reyes, where his family had a small fishing station.

State College Fund Misuse Probe Slated

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A state Assemblyman said yesterday mismanagement of funds in the 19-campus state college system has been uncovered and that the Joint Legislative Audit Committee was undertaking a thorough study of all facets of the colleges.

Assemblyman Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro, chairman of the committee, made the announcement during a meeting of his group and the audit committee of the State College Board of Trustees.

Thomas said there has been mismanagement for several years, especially in the area of state college auxiliary funds.

The assemblyman said a staff of auditors specially trained in college management would look into foundation fund management, grading, the role of professors and teaching loads.

Glenn S. Dumke, chancellor of the 19-campus system, said he welcomed the investigation. Dumke said he had been assured that the "performance audit" would not be a "witchhunt."

Thomas voiced criticism of the recent report of misuse of funds at Sacramento State during the administration of Dr. Robert Johns. He said another example of the mismanagement of college funds was at San Francisco State where the student funds are now in receivership.

The legislator said the new laws not only would give college presidents power to control auxiliary funds but would require them to exercise that control.

Bike Mishap Injures Two

Two young boys were injured yesterday when their bicycle slammed into the side of a car on Murray Avenue near College Avenue in Kentfield, the California Highway Patrol said.

Treated at Marin General and Kaiser Foundation hospitals were Ronald Fearon, 8, of 4 Fern Road, for a cut on the head, and Kenneth Ojeda, 7, of 98 Briar Road, both Kentfield, for a bump and cut on the forehead.

The patrol said the Fearon youth's bicycle drove into the side of a car driven by Paula Harris, 23, of 92 Murray Avenue, Kentfield, 4:14 p.m.

U.C. at San Diego, violated her constitutional rights.

"They (the Regents) want to block your mind," Marcuse said. The elderly Marxist philosopher, author of "One Dimensional Man" and other books on social suppression of the individual, has himself been the target of repeated firing attempts.

Marcuse told the crowd, "This is not a victory celebration. On the contrary, the fight is just beginning against all those who want the university to be a training school for society, the security and prosperity of which is based on the enslavement of other people within and without the frontiers of the United States."

Alfa Romeo Stolen From College Lot

A 1963 red and black Alfa Romeo convertible, California license KIN 754 was reported stolen last night from a parking lot at the College of Marin in Kentfield.

Owner Michael L. Harper of 213 Corte Madera Avenue, Corte Madera, told sheriff's deputies the auto was taken between 7 and 10 p.m. while he was attending classes.

Bad Posture Adds Inches

"Bad posture can add from one to five inches to an individual's girth that dieting alone can never get rid of," states Marjorie Craig, author of the best-selling book "Miss Craig's 21-Day Shape-Up Program for Men and Women."

"One can give the appearance of being 10 pounds thinner simply by correcting bad posture."

To discover if you need posture work, Miss Craig offers this two-part test:

1. Stand the way you normally do, and while in this position, measure your waistline.

2. Now lift your shoulders, pulling them back as you pull your stomach in, and while standing in this corrected position, again measure your waistline.

If your waist is an inch or more smaller the second time you measure, incorrect posture is causing you to look thicker and fatter than you really are.

"The trick is to learn to hold yourself straight and tall naturally," Miss Craig explains.

SEW SIMPLE

Basting Keeps Lining Smooth

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I always have trouble lining a garment using the garment and lining pieces as one. Why do I get a ripple when the two have been basted together? What is the reason for this method which is shown so often in better tailored garments? Isn't it much neater to work each separately so that no raw seams show?

MRS. R.P.

DEAR MRS. R.P.:

There is quite a knack in basting two layers of fabric together and keeping them even enough to avoid the ripple you spoke of in your letter. The reason for treating the two as one layer is to give extra shaping and body to the garment fabric. If you really feel it is important to cover the seams you may add a separate finish lining.

For the best results in keeping two layers of fabric smooth, place the underlining smooth on a flat surface, place your garment fabric right side up over the underlining and baste the two together in two diagonal basting lines, beginning at one corner, basting across the fabric to the opposite diagonal corner, then do the same for the other corners. This will keep the two pieces smooth.

Next, baste through the center of all darts, this should be done from the wrong side of the underlining side. Last, hand baste around all the outer edges, bringing the underlining back a tiny bit so that it won't be stretched too tight.

The worst thing that can happen is to pull the underlining tighter than the garment fabric, better to have a little extra give in the lining. I think if you will follow these instructions carefully, your problems will be solved. This is a rather time consuming job but does pay off in the finished results.

DEAR EUNICE,

I am making a double-breasted winter suit with six buttons, and the pattern calls for a double row of buttons and a single row of buttonholes. Would the finished jacket look better if I made six buttonholes? I am using covered buttons if you think they would look all right.

MRS. S.T.T.

DEAR MRS. S.T.T.:

Most patterns for double-breasted garments only call for one row of buttonholes, the underside of the garment is kept in place with a snap of hook and eye. Once in awhile you will find a European designer who wants you to make the double set of buttonholes.

As to the covered buttons, I think your garment will look much better if you would use a decorative button. Buttons today are not used for strictly functional purposes, but they are the important accent to your garment. They should be treated as an accessory and can really make your garment if the effect is right.

DEAR EUNICE,

My daughter will be married just after the holidays, and I have offered to make the dresses for the bridesmaids. We have spent a lot of time looking through the pattern books and can't find the kind of patterns that are shown in the brides magazines. Why don't they pattern companies have more patterns for weddings?

MRS. C.W.T.

They have explained to me that patterns are designed according to the demand. Perhaps if there were more complaints along this line, you would find more of these patterns.

I would suggest you choose any kind of pattern that you would like and simply extend the skirt full length. Often a dress that is pictured in the long version looks perfect in a shorter version, and the reverse of this would be true also. Try to get your ideas from the brides magazines, and then perhaps you will have to combine two patterns for the desired effect. Above all keep the bridesmaids' dresses simple because you don't want to detract from the bride.

Mrs. Richard W. Mobley Elected By Volunteers

A charter member of the Volunteers for Marin Child Development Center, Mrs. Richard W. Mobley of San Rafael, is the auxiliary's newly elected president.

The dual purpose of the organization is to promote greater community understanding of the needs of the marginally handicapped young children and to raise funds that will allow additional services for the Marin Child Development Center in Tiburon, which operates a therapeutic program for marginally handicapped young children. The children enrolled at the center have failed to achieve their potential and present problems in social and learning integration.

Sandra Mobley has also served as treasurer of the two-year-old organization composed of mothers of children who have been or are presently enrolled in the center.

The volunteers' next fund raising event will be a theater party Nov. 1, when the Ross Valley Players will present "Don't Drink the Water," by Woody Allen, at the Barn at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. A rummage sale is planned in the spring.

Mrs. Mobley also belongs to the Sunny Hills Grape Booth Guild and the Oak View School Association. She is a graduate of Stanford University with a bachelor's degree in psychology. Skiing, gourmet cooking, bridge, music and reading are her hobbies.

Sandra and Richard, who is regional salesmanager for Acme General Corporation, have lived in Marin for nine years. They have three children: Scott, 7, Allison, 6, and Douglas, 2. The new president's greatest enjoyment is her family, and she enjoys family-oriented activities.

Other officers are Mmes. Jerry Walter, vice president; Philip Smith, recording secretary; Norman Miller, corresponding secretary; Jack Tallman, treasurer; Stanley Kane, publicity chairman; and Earl Bailey, entertainment chairman.

HELEN HELP US!

Average Students Suffer From Overcrowded Universities

DEAR HELEN:

I want to go to college. I have the grades for it. I have even the money for it, or at least the will to work my way through. But I can't find an opening in a college I can afford.

I'm not a genius, or an outstanding leader, or underprivileged. So there's no space for me. At our local state college, 1500 applicants were turned away this year. No room! It's this way all over the country, I hear. Average students who might benefit from higher education are losing out because universities haven't expanded to meet the demand. By the time there's room for me, it will be too late. This goes for thousands of other high school and junior college graduates. For 12 or 14 years we have worked toward something which, through no fault of our own, is now out of reach.

Why didn't our country's planners forsee this crisis and build fast enough to avoid it?— NO ROOM

DEAR NO:

Our country's wise planners foresaw but, sadly enough, they couldn't persuade the taxpayers in time. The present crisis may be a powerful persuader, but unless money for additional professors and temporary buildings is appropriated right now, it will be too late for those thousands of hoepfuls who can't wait two or three years to continue their education. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Hooray for parents who make family life fun, even if uptight neighbors think outdoor water fights, etc., are just too-o-ondignified. I'm sure glad we don't have neighbors like the ones described by "Should We or Shouldn't We Change."

If my grandmother had listened to such people, she might be in a rocking chair by now. She has 13 children, 27 grandchildren, and a life packed with enjoyment. She is pushing 60, but last year I saw her stand on her head and, what's more, it was on a soft chair which makes it all the harder. — FROM A FUN FAMILY

By BETTY FROST

Plans for a senior citizen program on the Tiburon Peninsula are being formulated by the Daughters of the Shepherd of the Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church, Tiburon.

Fellowship Hall at the church, which has kitchen facilities and would lend itself to craft programs, will be used for the program, which is expected to begin in December.

Mrs. Robert Werner, chairman, said, "We wanted to give service to our community and one of the places we are terribly remiss is help for elderly people."

According to Mrs. John Radovitch, assistant chairman, the club for the aging will round out the church's community service program, which now includes the Little Lambs Nursery School, sponsorship of Cub Scout Pack 48, and Boy Scout Troop 48, as well as church-oriented activities for youth. The activities of the Luther League, for the high school age group, including ski trips and hikes, are open to all young people of the community, as is the Vacation Bible School, conducted two weeks each summer.

Until a year ago when the Marin City Senior Center was opened, no organized program was offered in Southern Marin. Four months ago Mill Valley started a club, under the joint sponsorship of the Homestead Valley Improvement Association and the Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission.

Is there a need for such a service on the Tiburon Peninsula? Edward T. Ryken, executive director of the Marin Senior Coordinating Council, says more than 120 people requesting the council's monthly newsletter are from the Tiburon-Belvedere area.

"Figures based upon the 1960 census and a subsequent projection indicate that there are 21,000 persons in Marin County over 65 years old," Ryken said. There are now 42 clubs for these older persons in the county, each with a program suited to its membership and under a variety of sponsors.

Ryken has been consulting with the Tiburon churchwomen, and has met with the Rev. Calvin G. Frisch, pastor of the Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church, and a committee of the women's group.

In the beginning, he explained, a simple program can be undertaken with the sponsoring organization providing the leadership. Later the senior club members usually take a larger share of responsibility.

The women indicate they are willing to assist those who need transportation to and from the semi-monthly meetings, serve refreshments, and "just be there if we are wanted."

The basic program being considered would offer movies, slides, guest speakers, discussions, book reviews, speakers from historical societies and museums, and other diversions drawing upon the resources of the community. To assist the new club, the Coordinating Council offers training sessions for the sponsors and a leadership workshop for the seniors.

The direction the Tiburon Senior Club will take will be determined by its own membership — whether it will concentrate on crafts, branch out into community service on its own, or become involved with trips and excursions. Here, Ryken indicated, additional community support might be helpful. "The aged come from all economic brackets," he indicated, "but those who are on limited retirement stipends usually participate in the less expensive programs and don't feel they can go on trips."

"In such clubs," he continued, "the isolation and loneliness of old age melts away. The seniors seem to reinforce one another."

Six Seeking Three Posts On Tam Fire Protection Board

(Fifth of eight articles)

The continued growth, modernization and professionalization of the Tamalpais Fire Protection District are the chief concerns of six candidates running for three seats on the district board.

Another major problem, candidates generally agree, is getting money to pay for what is needed and making sure the taxpayer gets the most for his money.

Voters in May rejected an $800,000 bond issue, which failed majority, that would have provided money to build a new Tam Valley fire station, install improved water mains and hydrants, buy two new fire trucks, remodel the Homestead Valley station and install a new alarm system.

Two of the six candidates are incumbents. In alphabetical order, they are:

ARTHUR LEONARD CREBASSA, 42, of 535 Midvale Way. He is a school teacher who also is a trustee of the Tamalpais Community Services District, a former director of the Tam Valley Sanitary District and for 14 years a volunteer fireman.

"I believe it is imperative that water and equipment should have the first priority and be attended to as quickly as possible," Crebassa said. "Immediate steps should also be implemented to make the present station 1 at least minimally livable for the men until methods of funding for a new or permanently improved fire station have been found."

Allen Ralph Howe, 33, of 230 Laverne Avenue, is a director of clinical laboratories in San Francisco and president of the Tamalpais volunteer firemen's association. He is also vice president-elect of the Marin County Association of fire departments.

WENDELL MARTEN JOOST JR., 28, of 507 Norther Avenue. A ship's clerk employed in San Francisco, Joost is the youngest of the candidates. He is a past president of the Tamalpais Volunteer Firemen's Association and a member of the California State Firemen's Association.

Noting he has pledged himself to providing the best fire protection at the lowest possible cost, Joost proposed a program of limited bonding for "urgently needed" water mains and equipment replacement along with a pay- as-you -go funding for a new main fire station.

He said this program coupled with closely supervised modern accounting procedures will provide for the needs of the "dynamic and fast growing" district.

BERNARD LENHART, an incumbent, of 313 Starling Court, recently retired after 32 years with the San Francisco Fire Department. He was a cost accountant before joining the department. He says the board needs "qualified, dedicated citizens with the time and ability to render good public service."

Lenhart adds: "Fire protection is my business. The Tam District is in a state of transition from volunteers to a professional department. In this transition, we've lost buildup in necessary equipment by trying to get by like a volunteer fire department. Our equipment and manning is not quite adequate. We are in a deplorable condition here and we're going to have to make good-sized purchases of equipment."

CARL H. MODELL, 51, of 403 Laverne Avenue. A musician with the San Francisco Symphony and a director of the Marin Symphony Guild, Modell is the other incumbent seeking reelection. He was chairman of the Homestead Valley Fire Protection District board in 1961 and was instrumental in its merger with Tam district in 1962. He has been chairman of the merger with Tam Valley Fire District in 1962. He was chairman of the board in 1965 and 1966 and is the current chairman.

Modell says he hopes to continue the growth and professionalization of the department which since 1960 has grown from two all volunteer fire departments to one combined department with 10 full-time firemen with three night duty firemen and over 250 standard hydrants plus substantial improvements to watermains and fire equipment.

JOHN FRANCIS WALKER, 40, of 431 Green Glen Way. An auditor with the Zurich Insurance Co. in San Francisco, Walker is a member of the Tam Valley Improvement Club. He says: "I wish to serve as commissioner because I believe that with my background in auditing and economics I can help bring financial responsibility to the fire board."

Hanoi, Peking Leaders Issue Peace Demands

TOKYO (AP) — The premiers of North Vietnam and Communist China issued a joint communique today emphasizing the will of "the entire Vietnamese people" to fight to final victory over "U.S. imperialism."

The communique by China's Chou En-lai and North Vietnam's Pham Van Dong said there could be a settlement of the war—but only if U.S. forces withdraw unconditionally from South Vietnam.

The communique, dated yesterday and broadcast today by Peking's official New China News Agency, did not say when Chou and Pham held their "cordial and friendly" talks. NCNA reported earlier that Pham and his delegation had arrived in Shanghai Friday from Peking, where they were seen off by Chou.

Telescope Talk

Dr. Bernard R. Dalton, a San Rafael dentist, will talk about "Fundamentals of Telescope Making for Beginners" at a meeting of Star Observers of Marin, an astronomy study group, at 8 p.m. Thursday at the community room, Ross Valley Savings and Loan Association, San Anselmo.

FCC Announces New Rules For Cable Programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cable-TV will get its chance to show what it can do, but the Federal Communications Commission doesn't think regular network and local television broadcasters have to worry about being upstaged.

The commission announced new rules yesterday that require large cable systems to originate their own programs in competition with the networks and existing studios and guarantees the same right to smaller systems. The FCC also ruled cable TV operators will be allowed to present some paid commercials.

Specific rules are to be published next week and will take effect 30 days later.

The commission's top authority on cable TV says, however, that cable TV can't do its best against conventional broadcasters in the competition for viewers until some other issues are decided.

Perhaps the most crucial question, said Sol Schildhause, chief of the FCC's cable-TV task force, in a news conference, is that of allowing cable systems to bring signals from "distant" TV broadcasting stations into or near existing TV markets.

Another Student Draws Suspension

A fourth College of Marin student, Elena Badell, has been suspended for her part in the Oct. 16 fracas at the Marin Junior College District board meeting, Dean of Students Irwin P. Diamond announced yesterday.

The college said she had swept papers and materials off the board table as had two of the other suspended students.

Suspended Monday were Del Mar Jackson, Brigardo Groves and William Nason.

All four are still attending classes pending an appeal whose status grew ever cloudier through the week.

The Associated Students Executive Council voted Thursday to rescind its action Tuesday, in which it rejected the appeal procedure as not affording true due process. The council then named four students to the student conduct committee which is to hear the appeal.

The student government still maintains, however, that the committee should not act because the appeal procedure may be revamped.

Another executive council meeting was set for 1 p.m. Monday to discuss the student position on the conduct committee.

Meantime, the College Cabinet and the Academic Senate have also met to discuss the appeals procedure.

The student complaint is that the committee is a rubber stamp for the administration, student body secretary Melanie Annin said. She said a porposed change would send appeals from the committee to the College Cabinet instead of to Acting Supt. -Pres. Louis H. Herkenoff. The cabinet is composed of students, faculty and administration.

In another action Thursday, the executive council voted to halt all open forums in the college center until a council forum Tuesday to lay down rules for future forums. Some students have complained of being a captive audience for forums using the center's public address system.

Addict Faces Burglary Hearing

A preliminary hearing was set yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for an 18-year-old youth who said he had a $75-a-day heroin habit and who recently escaped from the Marin Community Mental Health Center.

James Anthony Gardner, of no known address, was returned to the Marin County Jail Thursday by Sausalito police. He is accused of burglarizing a Mill Valley residence Oct. 1 while out on bail awaiting trial on an earlier burglary charge.

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein said yesterday that Gardner was too ill from withdrawal symptoms to be brought to court.

New Jail Charge

Terry Perry, 22, of San Bruno, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a charge of possessing barbituates when he arrived to spend a weekend in Marin County Jail Aug. 16. His case was continued until Friday for entry of plea.

Judge Rules Arrest Of Teen-Ager Illegal

Charges of possessing marijuana and a device for smoking it were dismissed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Lee Alan Bramson, 20, of San Anselmo, when Judge Hadden W. Roth ruled that his arrest was illegal.

Bramson was arrested by Sausalito police Sept. 24 on suspicion of contributing to the delinquency of a minor when he and a 16-year-old girl refused to leave a parking lot. Police said they found quantity of marijuana and a pipe when they searched Bramson.

Leydecker Backing Unruh For Governor

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Byron W. Leydecker, president of the Redwood National Bank and former Marin supervisor, is a member of a group calling itself "Some Concerned Californians," which is backing Assemblyman Jess Unruh for governor.

Unruh is expected to announce his candidacy in January. A brochure mailed by the group yesterday is one of the first major appeals for public support for Unruh's expected candidacy. The group also includes actors, active and retired professional football players, legislators and journalists.

Tiburon Walkway Location Proposed

Tiburon park and recreation commissioners have recommended to the city council that a new walkway on Trestle Glen Boulevard be located on the west side adjacent to Belveron Gardens, according to Asst. City Mgr. Russell L. Melquist.

The commission, meeting Thursday night, also agreed to work with the school facilities and transportation committee of the Reed School District board in developing paths from neighborhoods to schools, Melquist said.

Girl's Screams Halt Attempted Kidnapping

A beefy attacker grabbed a 14-year-old Sir Francis Drake High School student in an apparent kidnap attempt yesterday in San Anselmo, but fled when the girl screamed and fought.

San Anselmo police said the girl was walking along Fern Lane to the high school at 9:30 a.m. when she passed a car parked in a driveway.

The driver leaped out, took off his shirt and threw it over her head, trying to drag her into the car, police said. The girl screamed and kicked as she fell to the ground and the attacker tried to stuff the shirt in her mouth. Failing in that, he jumped into his car and sped away, peeling rubber and running over the girl's scattered lunch.

The victim ran into a house at 19 Fern Lane and called police, who were unable to find the attacker's car, according to Patrolman Bernard Del Santo.

A neighbor heard the girl's screams and saw the attacker drive off, but did not get his car's license. The car was described as a dark blue station wagon with a rack on top.

Del Santo said the attacker had "no connection whatever" with the Zodiac killer believed to have slain five persons in the Bay Area. The San Anselmo attacker had short black hair, was "very heavy" and was between six feet and six feet, two inches tall, Del Santo said.

Cosmonaut's Son Dates U.S. Guide

ANAHEIM (AP) — A visit to Disneyland proved to be extra-special for Viktor Beregovoy, 19-year-old son of Soviet cosmonaut Georgy Beregovoy.

The young man met Kathy Birk, 20, a Russian-speaking hostess at the amusement park, Friday and promptly dated her up for a party in the evening at the home of actor Kirk Douglas.

Then it was arranged for Miss Birk to accompany the family to San Diego—another stop on the American tour by two Russian space travelers and their party. Part of her mission will be to explain professional football to Viktor when they attend the Chargers game tomorrow.

Kathy, born in Paris of Russian parents, calls it all "terribly exciting."

Other members of the Soviet group appeared to find the full day at Disneyland elating also.

"I feel 25 years younger," said Viktor's father, a major general.

Beregovoy and fellow cosmonaut Konstantin Feoktistov, a civilian scientist, went through at least a dozen rides and exhibits—including a make-believe moon voyage.

Although skies were cloudy, the Russians were in high spirits as they clowned with costumed comic strip characters and posed in Mickey Mouse hats.

Irate Speaker Denies Story, Will Run Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Speaker John W. McCormack emphatically denies he knew about or aided any influence peddling through his House office. And the 77-year-old Massachusetts Democrat—contrary to previous speculation—says he will seek not only another term as congressman but as speaker.

McCormack told newsmen yesterday that Life magazine made an unwarranted and malicious attack on him in reporting the speaker had let his office and influence be used by a friend and a staff member to seek favors from government officials.

The charges obviously triggered McCormack's decision to run again, thus avoiding any appearance of his quitting under fire.

"My conscience is absolutely clear," McCormack said.

Until the activities of Nathan Voloshen, a long-time McCormack friend, and Martin Sweig, the speaker's chief aide, were publicized it had been widely believed among House Democrats that McCormack would retire at the end of the 90th Congress in December 1970.

He will be 79 then, with 43 years of service in the House.

Thinking of Roofing?

Sometimes it is smarter to turn down the lowest bid.

Make sure your contractor is licensed by the State. It means he's insured (for your sake). He offers a 2-year guarantee and his men are trained, union help. He'll stand by his work. If the lowest bidder is a fly-by-night, he can not meet these standards.

Marin Nips Solano In Final Seconds

By DAVIS EINSTEIN

In fading twilight with 41 seconds remaining on the clock, quarterback Jim Peters dived one yard for a touchdown to give the College of Marin a 21 to 14 come-from-behind victory over Solano Junior College of Vallejo yesterday at Marin Catholic High School in Kentfield.

This one came hard. The Tars did not score until the final minute of the first half, after Solano had racked up two opening period touchdowns.

On both scoring drives Falcon quarterback Mike Golovich employed the long bomb to put his team within eosy scoring range. A 40-yarder to Chet Dion paved the way for Muggsy Simons' 10-yard run that made it 7-0.

After an exchange of punts, the Falcons went 79 yards in 13 plays, the big gainer coming on a 46-yard toss to speedster Spenser Davis, who went down on the Marin one. Halfback Ralph Brown took it over.

LONG DRIVE

Peters, who hit on 13 of 23 passes for 210 yards and a touchdown, got the Tars on the scoreboard with a one yard sneak in the final minute of the first half. It capped an 85-yard drive that took 12 plays and five minutes to accomplish.

Early in the second period it was evident that the Marin defense had shut down Solano's power. In the third quarter it became evident that the Tars had found theirs.

TIE SCORE

They wasted little time proving it, as they marched 89 yards on a touchdown drive following the second half kickoff. Peters completed four of five passes along the way, including a 24-yarder to Keith Stirling that tied the score.

Midway through the fourth quarter, Solano moved to the Marin 22 yard line, its closest penetration since the opening period. From there the Falcons attempted a field goal that fell far short.

Marin brought the ball back to midfield, but lost it there on a fumble with 3:30 left in the game. It seemed then that a stalemate was inevitable.

KEY INTERCEPTION

On the next play, however, John Dohn, who recovered a fumble earlier, picked off his fifth interception of the year and ran it back 42 yards to the Falcon 30.

Staying on the ground to waste the clock, the Tars used Jim Finnegan once for 13 yards, and Mike Fowler thrice to arrive at the Falcon one. Peters then scored and 500 spectators went home happy.

SAN FRANCISCO OPEN

Archer Fights Wildness

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — George Archer, leading the San Francisco open but troubled with a balky driver, says he has the solution to his errant shots.

"I'm going to get me 18 free passes and give them to my relatives," said the laconic Archer, from nearby Gilroy. "I'm going to put nine of them on each side of the fairway and give 'em baseball gloves.

"Man, when one of those drives start into the woods, they're going to be throwing them back out of the fairway so fast . . . bingo, right back on the fairway."

Archer, the 6-foot-6 Masters champ who has been in a slump since June, shot a second round 67—despite the bad driver — yesterday for a 36-hole score of 130, his best of the season.

He held a two-stroke lead over Miller Barber, 64 for 132, with Bob Lunn and Steve Spray following at 133. Lunn had a second round 68 and Spray a course record-matching 63. Jerry Heard, 69, Al Mengert, 66, and Lee Elder, 68, followed at 134.

Perfect playing conditions and a beautifully conditioned course helped lower the scores. In fact, it took a score of 142, par for two rounds on the 6,677-yard Harding Park Golf Course, to make the cut for the final two rounds.

Arnold Palmer rallied with a 67, including an eagle three on his last hole, for 137, while Billy Casper had a 68 for 138.

Local favorite Ron Cerrudo had a 69 for 141.

LUMBERJACK

That made nine bad drives in two days, seven of which were involved with trees.

"I guess we're going to have to change my nickname from cowboy to lumberjack," said Archer, a one-time ranch hand.

"But you can't say I'm hitting the ball badly. It's just the driver. I'm hitting my irons very sharp and I've made a ton of putts. But I'm just lost with the driver. I'm hitting the ball solid—but straight right. Almost everyone has a fault, and when it comes along you know what to do about it.

"But I'm blocking the ball. That's not usually a fault of mine and I just don't know what to do. It just destroys your confidence."

Warriors Welcome Lucas

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jerry Lucas, an all-star in each of his six National Basketball seasons, came to the San Francisco Warriors from Cincinnati today in exchange for foward Bill Turner and guard Jimmy King.

Lucas headed here soon after the trade with the Royals was announced yesterday and is expected to be on hand when the Warriors, 2-1, meet the Milwaukee Bucks tonight in Civic Auditorium.

Alcindor, the Bucks' million-dollar rookie, scored 23 points and had 20 rebounds in Los Angeles last night opposite Wilt Chamberlain, who led the Lakers to a 123-112 victory with 25 points and 25 rebounds.

King, acquired in a 1966 trade from Chicago, and Turner, as a replacement for Clyde Lee, both have been Warrior starters this season. However, Lee's ankle sprain has mended so that he's ready to take his place again on the front line.

LIKE KINCKS

Cincinnati's general manager, Joe Axelson, said the Royals are trying "to get 12 basketball players like the Knicks have" and that in the trade of Lucas "we're strengthening ourselves in two positions."

Lucas, an All-American at Ohio State University, averaged 19.9 points a game and 19.2 rebounds in his career before this season. In four games this year, he has averaged 10.3 points a game and 10.5 rebounds. Despite the statistics, Lucas has been bothered by bad knees throughout his career.

He has also started restaurant chain in the area. It had been reported that he would not play this year because of business interests.

King, 6-feet-2, played for Los Angeles and Chicago before joining the Warriors and averaged 8.6 points a game in six seasons.

Turner, 6-feet-7, averaged 7.8 points a game last year along with 380 rebounds. He played at the University of Akron and was San Francisco's second draft choice in 1967.

Axelson said that "If Turner rebounds as well as we think he can," the trade will not hurt Cincinnati rebounding wise.

"Lucas agreed to go," Axelson said. "I don't know if he would have reported to any club, but he liked the sound of San Francisco."

San Marin Rolls Over Drake, 27-8

By GARY TISCHLER

If anybody told you this story two months ago, you would have called him crazy.

But here we are, the 1969 football season is almost halfway over and San Marin High School, in its first year of varsity completion, is still unbeaten and sitting on top of the Marin County Athletic League standings, priming for a showdown battle with favored Terra Linda next Saturday.

The Mustangs added once proud Drake, twice a champ in the last three years, to their list of victims, soundly thumping the Pirates, 27-8, before a game Drake homecoming crowd of 2,000 fans at San Rafael High School last night.

The ex-champs were chumps last night, as they gave away two touchdowns on fumbles and bobbled the ball away a total of four times. Their passing game was almost zero, with Kevin Peak completing only one of nine passes for nine yards while another gritty San Marin defensive effort limited Drake to a total offense of 79 yards.

When the Mustangs weren't scoring on defense, fiery quarterback Ken Gnoss was gearing up an offense that moved mostly on his rollout options. He sparked a drive that let Urbano Bouscieguez loose for a 19-yard TD in the second period and scored from five yards out for the Mustangs' final score in the last period.

Tom Nelson, a defensive end, put the Pirates in the hole early when he caught Peak for a 20-yard loss, and hopped on the resultant fumble in the end-zone for 6-0. The other super-defensive play came when tackle Dennis Miller wrestled the ball away from Drake halfback Ron Biddle and scooted 78 yards for a touchdown in the second period, giving San Marin an untouchable 20-0 lead.

The win was San Marin's fifth of the season without a loss and 14th straight, counting an unbeaten junior varsity season last year. The Mustangs are 3-0 in league play.

Redwood high School's football team took a long trip to Eureka yesterday and came back to Larkspur at 6 o'clock this morning, empty-handed.

The Giants dropped a 21-0 non-league verdict to Eureka High School, although holding Eureka to just 104 yards total offense. Eureka broke it open on two end around scoring plays and a 40-yard pass.

Redwood is now 4-2 won-lost on the season. Bob Piper, Jay Lehman and Bob Fox paced a Redwood ground attack that threatened several times, but failed to score.

SEBASTAPOL — Running true to form, Sonoma State College rebounded from a defeat a week ago to down the San Francisco State junior varsity, 19-0, at Analy High School last night before 300 fans.

It was the second time this season that the Cossacks, playing the Far Western Conference junior varsity football schedule, have been defeated by a non-league foe only to come back for a win over a FWC jayvee team. Last week they dropped a 34-6 decision to Taft Junior College.

THIRD WIN

The Cossacks displayed a rugged ground game, and an air-tight defense in picking up their third win in five games.

The Cossacks rolled up 149 yards on the ground with Luther Nelson and Herman Manuel accounting for most of the yardage. Quarterback Bill Cox completed 8 of 18 passes for 89 yards.

Meanwhile the Sonoma State defense, led by rugged Benny Guerra held the Gator offense to 95 yards.

Sonoma High Bows

Sonoma High School's football team dropped a 19-8 verdict to Ukiah High School last night in a non-league tussle at Ukiah.

The only bright spot for Sonoma was a 83-yard kick off return for a touchdown by John Sherman.

'Fred The Fox' Out As Petaluma Loses

VALLEJO — Petaluma High School's football team, missing the most effective part of its attack for a large part of the game, was buried under a punishing Hogan High School ground attack last night and dropped a 28-6 North Bay League game before some 1,100 fans.

Fred "The Fox" Klemenok, Petaluma's and the league's top passer, was forced to sit out most of the game with a hip injury. Meanwhile, Russ Gerig, Theron Grisbie and highly-touted Jim Upchurch sparked Hogan to a 22-0 halftime lead.

But, for one brief moment, there was Klemenok.

Klemenok came off the bench in the third period to spark the Trojans to their only score, tossing to favorite target end Bob Garcia, for a five-yard touchdown after a 26-yarder on the same combination set things up.

Hogan's win, coming after two straight losses, gave the Spartans a 1-2 NBL-I mark, same as Petaluma's.

Klemenok, when he was in there, completed four of five passes for 57 yards.

Grogans carried the ball 22 times, picking up 222 yards. He scored on runs of 79 and 42 yards and had one 61-yard scoring run nullified on a clipping penalty.

Boston Brutes Outmuscle Seals Before 9,149

By DAVE DIETZ

OAKLAND — Filing out of the Oakland Arena, where the undefeated Boston Bruins had just beaten the Oakland Seals, 4-2, before one of the largest crowds in the Seals' National Hockey League history, a woman turned to her husband and said it all: "Their guys just banged our guys around more."

Muscle is the rudiment of the Bruins' game, and they flexed a lot of it against the smaller Seals. Consider this mismatch: Boston's best center, Phil Esposito, is 6-1, 208 pounds. The Seals' best center, Ted Hampson, is 5-8, 170. Or this one: the Bruins' highest scoring right wing last year was Ken Hodge, 6-2, 212. Bill Hicke, highest scoring right wing on the Seals, is 5-8, 176.

A crowd of 9,149 saw an overwhelming Boston effort. Except for a brief time in the second period when the Seals tied the game, 2-2, the Bruins were in control. Only superior goaltending by Oakland's Gary Smith stopped a rout.

Oakland coach Fred Glover felt cheated by the officiating.

"They (the Bruins) have a license to go out and do what they damn well please," he said.

"Aw, come on," roared Boston Gen. Mgr. Milt Schmidt when told of Glover's remark. "I'm sick and tired of hearing that bullxxxx. What did we do out there? We didn't hurt anybody."

How did he feel about the officiating?

"I thought it was great."

The Seals were vehement that Boston's final goal, which came at 6:26 of the third period and put the game out of reach, should have been disallowed. Glover protested that the Bruins, shorthanded at the time, were offside on the play and Smith complained that the player credited with the goal, Jim Harrison, nudged the puck into the net off his skate.

Boston opened the game briskly, taking a 2-0 lead on goals by John Bucyk and Esposito. The first came on a power play after Bobby Orr, the sensational defenseman who assisted on three of the four Boston goals, had brought the puck the full length of the ice. Esposito's tally was a five-footer on a feed from Hodge.

The Seals tied the game within 34 seconds during the second period when Joe Hardy tapped in a pass from Bob Dillabough, who had made a dash similar to Orr's, and Mike Laughton converted a Bill Hicke pass.

On another power play, Esposito got what proved to be the winning goal six minutes later when he poked a rebound over the fallen Smith.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) — Richard Thomas may be playing golf with his wife more often after getting his first hole-in-one here this spring.

A golfer for 40 years, Thomas aced the seventh hole on the Greenbrier course. He used a 2 iron on the 205-yard hole and his wife was there to see it. They are from Akron, Ohio.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

11 EDITORIAL PAGE San Rafael, Calif. Saturday, Oct. 25, 1969

The Editor's Notebook

Just What Is This Thing Called Fair/Marin?

ASK THE MAN in the street what Fair/Marin means and in all likelihood he will guess, erroneously, that it is some kind of chamber of commerce slogan.

Ask a fairly well informed Marinite what Fair/Marin means and he will probably tell you, somewhat incompletely and inaccurately, that it is the name of the organization set up by the county to run the Art and Garden Fair when it moves to the Civic Center fairgrounds in a couple of years.

Look at the information brochure on Fair/Marin and you will find it said that, "Fair/Marin was conceived as a year-round cultural, recreational and community center for the use and enjoyment of all residents of Marin County, serving also as a major visitor attraction."

Read on and you find that "a primary function of Fair/Marin is raising funds, on its own initiative and possibly as a coordinator of other fund drives directed to development of the Civic Center . . .

"The staff and board of Fair/Marin have begun development of plans for a yearly fund-raising drive, with the beginning of the first campaign scheduled for September 1970."

Read farther and you will learn that after the Veterans' Memorial Auditorium is completed, it will, in the opinion of Fair-Marin, need an additional half million dollars worth of equipment and furnishings to be usable.

The county's Art and Garden Fair receives scant mention in Fair-Marin's informational brochure. It is not mentioned at all in the Fair-Marin president's year-end report and review of accomplishments.

What, then, is Fair/Marin?

The FAIR in Fair/Marin is an acronym for Foundation for Arts, Industry and Recreation. FAIR does not stand for Fair, as in Art and Garden Fair, at all.

What, then, is the Foundation for Arts, Industry and Recreation?

About all the informational material has to say directly on this point is that Fair/Marin is "the opportunity to excel . . . the challenge to excel."

The first conclusion one can draw from this is that Marin's time-honored Art and Garden Fair may have a long life ahead of it at the same old stand in Ross, under the same management which has brought it to its present eminence.

Fair/Marin unquestionably will want to take away from the Art and Garden Fair the subsidy it gets in the form of state funds allocated for county fairs. But Fair/Marin shows not the slightest indication of wanting to shoulder responsibility for continuing the fair.

A good guess would be that this will lead to some considerable controversy, since supporters and admirers of Marin's traditional Art and Garden Fair will not want to see it jeopardized by loss of funds — or see those funds diverted.

A second conclusion would be that there is a big row ahead.

FAIR/MARIN'S FIRST PAID general manager, who took over June 1, Leon Kalimos, appears to see the situation in clearer perspective.

He sees the opportunity to develop a year-around performing arts program, augmented by recreational and possibly other kinds of events, centered at the Civic Center on the so-called fairgrounds property.

He has had considerable experience and opportunity to observe what goes into the making of a successful performing arts event.

He probably didn't win many friends when, less than a month after his employment June 1, he leveled some public criticism at the Veterans' Memorial Auditorium now being completed. He pointed out design deficiencies which, in his opinion, would make it uneconomic to operate and unattractive to professional performers in some fields.

Most of the half million dollars which Fair/Marin proposes to spend on the auditorium after it is completed would go toward equipment and furnishings aimed at making it more ecomomic to use and more attractive to performing artists.

Obviously, as Kalimos observes, you can't have a successful year-around program of performing arts if inefficiencies in staging events put them all heavily into red ink. Nor can you hope to succeed if the artists you need to draw crowds refuse to perform in your auditorium.

That's not all.

Kalimos' considerable experience evidences itself when he talks of "audience development."

A promoter of non-cultural events would call it publicity and promotion.

By any label, it means attracting people to the box office.

You have to do much, much more than just hire the performers and open the doors on performance night.

You have to induce people to spend their money, to pass up alternative uses of their time, to come to your production in preference to alternatives.

Kalimos appears to have an understanding of the need for considerable effort to build audiences.

A COUNTY FAIR at the Civic Center? Kalimos seems to think that will be a long time in the future and it is not likely to be an Art and Garden-type fair. The Art and Garden Center in Ross in an unexcelled setting for that. Apparently Kalimos thinks it should continue there — perhaps without state subsidy. When a fair is planned at the Civic Center, it should be a different pattern.

Meantime, in Sacramento, Governor Reagan has made public statements recently which appear to put future handouts of state funds for subsidizing county fairs in considerable jeopardy.

Fair/Marin would be well advised to proclaim another, additional goal: To make itself self-supporting.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Why Pay Television Threatens Theaters

The editor and publisher of the I-J are to be commended for having the guts (spell it gut$$$, if you will) to incur the self-righteous wrath of those Marin moving picture exhibitors who have been I-J advertising buyers for many decades by championing the idea of subscription (i.e. pay) TV.

You probably reminded us that TV has threatened the profits of the I-J and all other newspapers and other print media. What you failed to remind us is that the for the price of a single admission ticket to a Marin movie, we can pay for a whole month's delivery of the I-J to our front doors.

And what you editorially failed to do is to remind your Marin theater owner advertisers that if they had any good sense at all they could learn something by using their imaginations as to what would happen if the I-J had jacked up its price of admission to a quarter a copy or even $10 a month for carrier delivery.

You might have reminded your Marin theater owner advertisers that they could win friends and influence people if they chose to lure back capacity audiences for every performance at four bits or six bits per ticket. You might have reminded our Marin movie theater establishment to take a look at what your super-market advertisers are doing to lure customers to their "box-office."

To back up your editorial pitch about pay TV you might tell all of us that for the price of one admission to a Marin movie in this day, the day is ahead that for that same price six of us in my own family will get entertainment and pleasure in our own living room—with big bowls of popcorn for all of us as a bonus . . .

Redwood Vietnam Role Applauded

I just attended a meeting of the board of the Tamalpais High School District and I would like to comment on one of the issues discussed.

I would like to commend Mr. (Donald) Kreps' handling of the Vietnam Moratorium. He realized that this is an issue of great concern to students and provided a forum in which this issue could be discussed within the framework of the school. I feel this was more advantageous than either ignoring the issue or having a large number of the student body absent as was the case in other schools.

I can appreciate concern over the district, a school or a teacher either advocating or indoctrinating their belief, however I do not believe this was the intent or the case at Redwood High School. There were accusations of "un-American." I feel it is American to discuss issues of grave concern.

Thanks For Assists On Moratorium

This is an open letter of thanks to the many people who helped make the Mill Valley Vietnam Moratorium Day march a success.

We wish to extend our gratitude to the Mill Valley businessmen who closed their shops; to Police Chief (Dan) Terzich and the Mill Valley Police Department for their fine co-operation; and especially to the 700 people who marched despite the rain, knowing that in Vietnam, people are dying in the rain.

LINES ON LIVING

Can Peace Be Made By Marching Children?

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

If the Vietnam moratorium proved anything, it proved above all that America needs peace desperately, peace within its borders.

Above the echoes of protestation and demonstration, one could clearly hear the more disturbing muted voices and gestures of division and silent brooding.

We are a nation of two distinct peoples: one that says now or never; and one that says never now. It is more a confrontation of moods than a civil war. It is expressed in the two opposing and what seem irreconcilable attitudes of those who counsel patience as a time-honored ingredient in healing and solving problems, and those who say we have waited long enough, we want peace now or it will never come.

THE PITY OF IT all is that while this nation searches its heart to bring peace abroad, it finds its own inner peace and tranquility elusive and unfulfilled.

Biblical prophecy speaks of "peace for the near and the far." Indeed, the peace makers, who are the meek and blessed, must start with peace at home for the near before they can establish peace abroad for the far.

Perhaps what we need is a national "moratorium on peace" in America; peace that will unite the hearts of its children to live in a diversity of thought and opinion without the adversity of malice and rancor; peace that will secure the right of all to dissent but not the right to shout down a person; peace that will become a way of life and love, with charity toward all.

That kind of peace is a dynamic peace. It is not merely the absence of war and of conflict but rather a positive quality of human comprehension and appreciation, compassion and communication.

WE REFER to those who bring peace to the world as the peacemakers. The reason is obvious: peace is an achievement of the industrious hand and the patient heart. You make it, or it won't be there. You've got to work at it, cultivate it and protect it, often from your own mischieveous temper and disposition.

Have we grown too arrogant in power and wealth to attain the meekness which is the prerequisite for the blessed peacemakers who inherit the earth?

America today is perilously close to the brink of a war far more destructive than can be seen by the naked eye. It is not a physical civil war but an intangible war in the hearts and minds of its children. There is too much traumatic agitation in the adult community that deprives our children of their already shortened childhood.

Those of us who have seen public school children carrying placards and gesturing signs of protestation cannot but feel disturbed and saddened. Said a young girl in her tiny teens: "It makes me feel good to carry a sign. It shows that I am involved."

The question that comes to mind is plainly alarming:

ARE WE REALLY so desperate that we have to involve our younger children in demstrations and in shouting slogans and platitudes? Isn't it just possible that by involving children in public demonstrations — noble as the intent may be — we are using them selfishly and plunging them immaturely in experiences for which they are not prepared?

The hundreds of thousands of children who stayed out of classes on the Moratorium Day (many of whom took to the streets) may well get into the habit of running with stick and placard to solve their problems. Is this any way to bring up a child in beautiful America?

It is high time that we ponder the deeper meaning of peace and evince its charity by beginning at home: by making it a living reality of the heart to heal us from envenoming wounds of brotherly malice and hatred: "Peace for the near and the far."

Greece Puts State Department On Horns Of A Dilemma

WASHINGTON — NATO'S unruly child, Greece, the first military dictatorship in Europe since the end of the second World War, is an acute pain for State Department policy makers. Whether in the interest of alleged security the brutalities and stupidities of a crass dictatorship can be ignored and the program of American Military aid continued is the still-unanswered question.

As so often in the past, the military are insisting that there is no choice. If the southern pivot of NATO is to be held, the United States must not only continue but expand the flow of arms to the colonels ruling that tragic and beautiful repository of so much of the heritage of the West. Any other course will enhance the drive of the Russians in the Mediterranean and beyond.

LOOKED AT from the practical and pragmatic view, this is a doubtful proposition. In the aftermath of their coup overthrowing a duly elected government, the colonels purged some 2,000 officers. Many of them, particularly in the air force, were high-ranking officers, and key figures in the NATO defense system. The purge has left that system greatly weakened.

Underscoring this weakness is the growing evidence of unrest and disaffection in Greece. At great personal risk, political leaders hitherto silent are letting their dissent be known. The latest proof is a letter signed by 30 former ministers and 50 former members of parliament calling on the United States to follow a policy that will mean the restoration of freedom.

The parliamentparians' letter was in response to a statement addressed to Secretary of State William P. Rogers and signed by 50 members of congress. The statement called on Rogers to give clear sign of American disapproval of the dictatorship.

"As elected representatives of the last Greek parliament," the letter sent sub rosa out of Athens declared, "we accept your manifestation of solidarity and declase that the strug- divisible and knows no geographic barriers or national borders. . . We do trust out people but they have no chance to decide their destinies and they are being terrorized."

FROM MEN subject to the midnight knock on the door and the torture so pervasive that the Council of Europe will probably expel Greece, those are brave words. They show that, beneath the stern exterior the tourist sees, the fires of freedom still burn.

Asst. Secretary of State William B. Macomber Jr. frankly confessed to the dilemma the department faces in policy toward Greece. We think such an internal order, Macomber said of the dictatorship in a letter to Rep. Don Edwards, D. Calif., does not coincide with the best interests of Greece whose stability in the long run depends upon the free play of democratic forces.

Of the power of the Soviet Thrust to the south there can be no doubt.

The relevance of Greece to this thrust is demonstrable. But it is not enough to speak, as Macomber did, of a "loyal NATO partner." The issue is not a superficial loyalty. It is whether against a mounting tide of disaffection and the not-too-distant threat of terrorism and bloodshed Greece under a dictatorship can be an effective partner.

ART BUCHWALD

Americans Eliminate Selves, And It Hasn't Cost A Ruble

WASHINGTON— A top-secret meeting of Kremlin officials was held last week to discuss the latest defense strategy against the United States. Comrade Alexandrov Potomski, in charge of the Third Bureau in the United States, was the first to make his report.

"Comrades, I am happy to report that air pollution in the United States has risen more than 140 million tons, which is 10 million tons more than last year."

There was applause from everyone in the room.

"HOW DID YOU manage this, Comrade Potomski?" one of the members of the Presidium asked.

"I wish I could take the credit, but the Americans have done it themselves. At the present rate of air pollution everyone in the United States should be dead in 20 years."

"But surely," a marshal said, "the Americans must be aware of what air pollution is doing to them."

"They are, but it doesn't matter. They have many pressure groups who scream that if something serious were done about air pollution it would hurt their businesses. So the government leaders talk about the problem and do nothing."

"Then we can count on air pollution in the United States for the foreseeable future?"

"I cannot see the Americans doing anything serious about it for a long time to some," said Comrade Potomski.

COMRADE REDHEVNOV of the Fifth Bureau got up. "Comrades, I also have good news. The Americans are polluting their water at such a rate that in 10 years they will make every river, stream and lake undrinkable, unswimmable and uninhabitable for fish."

There was more applause from everyone in the room.

"Why are we spending money to pollute American waters?" the first secretary of the Communist Party of Leningrad asked. "If the Americans found out, they could take serious action against us."

"We are not doing it," Comrade Redhevnov said. "The Amernicans are doing it to themselves."

There were cries of derision.

The president of the Presidium asked, 'Are you trying to tell us that the Americans are poisoning their own water?"

"Exactly, Comrade President. They pour sewage into it. Factories spew out every kind of chemical and detergent and put anything you can think of in the water supply."

"But surely the Americans are not stupid people. If they knew they were poisoning their own water, they would demand a stop to it."

Comrade Redhevnov said, "I know it's hard to believe, comrades, but even through they know what they're doing, they still keep doing it. If they stopped pollution, the pollutors say, they would stop production of goods the Americans need. So no one is going to give the pollutors any serious trouble."

"Excellent," said the Kremlin planners. "So far it hasn't cost us a ruble."

COMRADE SOKOLOV of the Sixth Bureau, charged with studying American transportation, got up to make his report. "I have the best news, comrades. The American transportation system is breaking down. The railroads are shot, the roads are impassable and the airports are so congested that flying is nearly hopeless.

"In five years the crisis will have reached a point where nothing in the United Stated can move."

Once again there were cheers.

"Comrade Sokolov, you have accomplished the impossible dream."

"Comrades, the Americans have done it all by themselves. They are so intent on selling cars, moving freight and booking airplane seats that they refuse to face what they're doing to the country."

There were murmurs all around the conference table. Finally the chairman said, "From what you have told us, there doesn't seem to be any sense in the Soviet Union spending vast sums of money for new weapons against the United States.

"Therefore, I make the following recommendation."

Everyone held his breath.

The chairman said, "We all sit tight."

Youth Coffee House Closes Temporarily

Norman Leach, manager of the Third Rail coffee house in San Anselmo, announced yesterday a temporary closing of the facility, effective immediately, because a "small group of kids were disrupting the atmosphere."

Although the coffee house had welcomed visits from youths who were on drugs, Leach denied that this was responsible for the trouble. He said fights would erupt in apparent frustration over the lack of "real, ongoing programs at the coffee house other than dances."

Leach said a meeting would be held at 8 p.m. Nov. 1 in Duncan Hall at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo to discuss a "new format" for the coffee house.

The facility, which has been open weekends, is in the basement of the church.

Leach said lack of operating funds also contributed to the closing.

The coffee house still plans to hold its Halloween dance at 8:30 p.m. Friday at Duncan Hall, Leach said.

Council's Agenda

A priority list of street projects to be completed with 1969-70 gas tax funds will be established at a study session of the Petaluma City Council at 7:30 p.m., Monday.

Planners Face Dogfight Over Smith Ranch Airport

Operators of Smith Ranch Airport will meet head-on with residents of Gallinas Village Monday afternoon in their running dogfight over expansion of the private airport north of Santa Venetia.

The hearing is set for 2:30 before the Marin County Planning Commission on the third floor of the Civic Center administration building.

The airport hearing is the last major item on the planning commission's all-day agenda.

In the morning, planning commissioners will discuss policies on annexation and rezoning, then resume a hearing on a proposed ordinance to control fill in all Marin tidal waterways.

Other items on the agenda are these:

A hearing on the future width and building lines of Merrydale Road in Los Ranchitos.

A tentative subdivision map of Spanish Bit properties, 15 lots proposed by Sherman Smith on 20 acres in Bolinas, at Mesa and Bolinas-Olema roads.

Motel Room Looted

A portable television set, sheets, blankets, drapes and a waste basket valued at a total of $217 were stolen from the Marin Motel, 4136 Redwood Highway, between 5 p.m. Tuesday and 10 a.m. Wednesday, San Rafael police reported.

Nude Sunbathers Fined $50 A Person

Two persons have been sentenced in Marin Municipal Court by Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. for nude sunbathing near Muir Beach.

After pleading guilty to disturbing the peace, Bruce Edmond Boyd, 21, of Los Altos Hills, and Tanya Doreen Rentz, 20 of Stanford University were fined $50 each.

DETAILS MUST speak with a Spanish accent for a home fashion mood to be authentic Mediterranean. Newest of the characteristic carvings is the renaissance latticework.

There are some people who still dream about castles in Spain, but visitors who've been there say they're not all they're cracked up to be. Castles are drafty and cold — full of steps and more rooms than anyone would want.

But if castles in Spain aren't a viable dream, the Spanish look is. For many people furnishing new homes or redecorating rooms, Spanish and Mediterranean styling is the choice of a lifetime.

WHAT THEY'RE buying is virile and vigorous furniture — a blending of styles into a modern amalgam that combines the strength of the past with the cultivated comforts of today. And if it isn't pure "Spanish," it is a legitimate descendant of one of the oldest design traditions in the Western world.

Actually, Spanish furniture, like the native architecture, developed over some 700 years, up to the 16th Century. The best, and most typical, work of the craftsmen was a style called "mudejar," reflecting the long occupation by the Moors. Like today's interpretations, the style was noted for its masculine strength.

Pieces were massive, with elaborately carved surfaces, intricate wrought-iron stretchers and braces, sling seats and horseshoe or trefoil arches.

Other European ideas reached into Spain during the Renaissance, but the Moorish influence remained dominant — visible today in the hand tooling, nailhead studding, embossed leather, geometric inlays and decorative incised star designs that are familiar to contemporary homemakers.

SOME OF the pieces we buy are direct interpretations of the past, such "hallmark" styles, uniquely Spanish, include the bun foot chest, low and squat with deeply carved panels, and the vargueno, a dark wood writing desk with bolt-latch hardware.

Its pigeonhole compartments and side panels as heavily carved as the front are as characteristic of Spanish furniture as the drop-leaf table in distressed, weathered wood, originally made by beating the finish with heavy chains.

Equally popular — and traditables, often used today as end tables, and Savonarola chairs, named for the monk Girolamo Savonarola, who was martyred in 1498.

The distinctively Spanish interpretation of the chair, which was probably Italian in origin, is the familiar wrought-iron "X" frame, with a leather sling seat. Barely changed over the centuries, it's one of today's most popular Spanish styles.

SAVONAROLA'S chair and the smaller chests, though, may be unique in coming down to the 20th Century almost unchanged. Much more often, the furniture fashions we call "Spanish" are equally inspired by Mexican and by other Mediterranean traditions — much-modified to accommodate today's taste for comfort, our need for lighter scale and the ability of modern technology to marry new materials to old design themes.

The crude but attractive work fashioned by Spanish missionaries in Mexico is today's sophisticated city styling; the monumentally massive creations of old Spain are the fashion-minded homemaker's scaled-down treasures.

The result is a fashion mood that is more refined, more delicate and far more cultivated than the Spanish originals. More practical, too, for modern homes, with their severe space limitations and lack of legions of servants.

IN THE BEST of the translations — and they're the only ones worth giving house room — appearance is authentic, while comfort is ultra-modern. Original Spanish settees, for example, were un-upholstered hardwood with rush seats; today's elegant Spanish style sofas are as soft, comfortable and luxurious as they are authentic in design details.

The secret in shopping is to look for both — classic styling and contemporary comfort — without sacrificing either the beauty of the former or the practicality of the latter. Expense isn't the criterion; authenticity and workmanship are. Actually, one of the best and most varied of the current Spanish collections comes from the modest-price Johnson/Carper Furniture Company.

UPHOLSTERED treatments — luxurious velvets, striking brocades and antique satins unheard of in old Spain — are the modern touch. What gives the collection its Mediterranean wood detailing at front sofa posts and rimming recessed bases; wooden frames with a wealth of ornate Spanish carving.

Particularly handsome are Johnson/Carper's sectionals — loose pillow-back sofas, many with tufted treatments, that can be adjusted to fit the Mediterranean mood into any living space.

Professional decorators — trending more and more toward encouraging the homemaker to design-it-herself — couldn't be more in favor. And, for a change, husbands agree.

LIKE THE decorators, they enjoy the flexibility of the new Spanish mood. And for men turned off by the spindly formalities of French and Italian furniture, there's nothing as comfortable as the massivity of Spain. Neither faddy nor trendy, it's a richly elegant style that's at home about the house.

To step into the period yourself, try starting with a piece or two — Spanish complements most other styles — but don't be surprised if you wind up going all the way. If you're like most newcomers to the Mediterranean mood, it won't be long before you find yourself transforming your entire home into a castle in Spain — with all the modern conveniences.

Scroll Can Add Charm

For a personalized wall decoration, dramatize your decor with an Oriental-type scroll and treasured portrait photographs. You can add a focal point of interest with photographs — the studio kind you have taken to commemorate important family events.

For living room, dining room, foyer or den, a Japanese type scroll becomes a decorative accessory.

To make one — have a window shade cut to the size you want. This may contrast or color-match the window shades and furnishings you have.

Lay the shade on the folor and spread the photographs over it until you get the arrangement you want. Use rubber cement to fasten the photographs on and spray with lacquer so the photographs can be wiped clean with a damp cloth when necessary. Hang the shade from a ribbon or fancy cord.

Dining Room Look Is New

With many families turning back to the dining room for informal as well as formal meals, a new look in dining rooms is developing. It might be called a "semi-open" look — a compromise between the mere dining "area" and the completely separate dining room.

Since many homes built during the last two decades have open dining areas — at one end of the living room or the short leg of an "L"-shaped living room — there is a growing trend toward converting these open areas into distinct dining rooms, but without sacrificing the airy, spacious look that presently exists.

This compromise is being achieved in a variety of ways. One basic method is painting or wallpapering the dining area in a color or pattern that contrasts with the living room walls.

A different floor covering also will help set off the dining area. A vinyl or vinyl asbestos floor tile is advisable since it is easy to keep clean, especially if there are spill-prone children in the family, and comes in a variety of styles and colors.

For even greater separation without losing the desired spacious effect, hardboard grillework room dividers can be used. These can be obtained already assembled or assembled easily with handy pre-sized grillework panels and pre-grooved moulding and then painted to fit in with the decor.

The ceiling also can be used to achieve separation between the two areas. With a few pieces of lumber, a false beam can be constructed and attached above the room divider.

As another architectural change, a sunken dining room effect can be created easily and without costly rebuilding of the floor simply by arranging a row of plants on the floor around the outer edge of the room. Bricks and stones can be used to fence them in and, if enough plants are not available, a bench can be built into one wall to help give they illusion of a "step."

Comfort Is Key In Chair World

Does the perfect chair exist?

Well, not for lack of trying

Designers have come up with new chair designs in many styles that meet the basic criteria for the "perfect" chair — comfort, good looks, practicality and acceptable cost.

From highly ornate Mediterranean to clean-lined Modern, chairs for 1969 are comfortable, colorful and varied sufficiently in design to satisfy every taste.

THE MEDITERRANEAN look graces chairs that run the gamut from massive to miniscule. Small occasional chairs, rockers and recliners, and hearty club styles differ in size, but share a common Spanish ancestry. However, this Old World flavor is skillfully combined with modern seating materials. Deep latex foam seat cushioning gives resilient comfort and "non-plumping" convenience.

Detailed wood surfaces on upholstered pieces distinguish Mediterranean design. Wood or plastic finishes are dark and rich. Intricate carving, rope ornamentation or less elaborate panel designs add interest to chair frames. Another feature of this style group is tufted upholstery.

Whether fabrics are luxurious velvets or cool vinyls, fabric surfaces are rarely smooth. Like the detailed wood frames, design is built-in through tufting.

AN IMPORTANT trend in the Mediterranean seating piece is scaled-down size. Chairs still look sturdy and important, but are smaller to suit apartment living. This draws cheers from all those Mediterranean fans with small living rooms.

Newer in outlook are the exciting Modern and Contemporary chairs. The difference between Contemporary and Modern styling shows up best in seating pieces.

CHAIRS in the new modern genre are instantly recognizable. They stress shape. You may find no seat cushions, arms, tops or bottoms. They are, at their best, standing pieces of free-form sculpture.

Their inner shells are molded from all the modern materials — tubular steel, rigid plastics of all sorts — which curve and conform to the human body.

Over this shell, a layer of latex foam padding is added for cushioning, and then upholstery fabrics in stretch materials, leathers or vinyls complete the chair, fitting like second skins. The result is a supremely comfortable, unusually shaped seating piece.

THERE ARE variations, of course, on this theme. Some designers are experimenting with elongated metal frames covered with thin layers of padding, others are adding lucite frames to surround the cushioning, a few are making "collapsibles" which are inflated for sitting with a bicycle pump. But the look is new, in both structure and design.

Contemporary chairs have familiar shapes. They may be all-upholstered or framed, but they have a square back or a rounded one, and discernible seat cushions.

WHAT EVERY BRIDE SHOULD KNOW ABOUT DRAPERY CLEANING. It was a revelation to Margie when Major Drapery Cleaners, San Rafael, explained what their drapery finishing machine can do. With this unit, pleats and hemlines stay even, with drapes kept to a predetermined length. All drapes are dried and deodorized in hanging position in drying cabinets. No harmful tumbling action! The machine also sizes (sprays) your drapes for proper body and texture. Controlled amounts of CS4, Hexachlorophene, bacteriostats, and fungicides are introduced leaving the drapes germacetically clean. Even moth and insect repellents are applied. Finally, draperies are coated with invisible non-toxic hydroscopic waxes to repel deterioration. Reasonable cost, free estimates and information. FOR OUTDOORS

Casual Furniture Should Be Durable

To turn a favorite popular song around, it's a long, long time from December to May, but already home furnishings stores are preparing for what promises to be an exciting outdoor casual season in 1970.

Judging from new merchandise displayed at the fall casual market in Chicago and other cities, the emphasis will continue to be on comfort, classic styling, and durability.

"The idea of casual furniture as a casual purchase for a single season's use has long since gone out of fashion," commented interior design consultant June Woodard.

HOMEMAKERS now expect that outdoor furniture will stand up and look good for years on end. They don't want the nuisance of repairing and replacing it frequently. They expect it to make their outdoor living areas look attractive. And they insist on comfortable seating, not the fatiguing "boardy" feel of the yard furniture of yesterday.

These are some of leading reasons why casual furniture has become so important in the total home furnishings picture in recent years, Miss Woodard said.

Some other reasons include the growth of home ownership; the move to the suburbs; and the amount of leisure time available to the typical family. All of these have contributed to the popularity of outdoor living, which in turn has created the need for a well-planned and furnished patio, yard, balcony, or terrace — the "outdoor living room."

SINCE THE family does spend so much of its time outdoors in season, homemakers realize that a wise choice of quality outdoor furniture can pay dividends for years to come, Miss Woodard said.

Fortunately for the homemaker, manufacturers have provided a wide variety of casual pieces to meet every conceivable need and every budget requirement.

The latest improvements include comfortable seating that equals what you'll find in fine living room pieces; improvements in materials and finishes that make casual furniture practically immune to the weather; and even greater variety of the types and sizes of chairs, sofas, lounges, tables, and occasional pieces available.

Music Rooms Making A Comeback

For a while, it looked as if the music room was going the way of the drawing room, the morning room, the library, and the butler's pantry as features of today's homes.

But thanks to the resurgence of music-making among youngsters and grown-ups, the music room is making a comeback in a new form: the specially set up home "music center," with practical features for the practice, performance, and enjoyment of instrumental music.

"THE MOST preferred spot for such a center is the living room," reports musical education consultant Constance Wagner, "because it provides the most appropriate setting for a piano as well as comfortable seating for either an audience or participants in a music fest."

Most families, she notes, have already moved their TV watching out of the living room and into the family room or den, thus freeing the living room for music purposes.

"It's best to separate live music-making from electronic entertainment — such as TV and stereo hi-fi — so that different members of the family can enjoy whichever they prefer without bothering one another," she said.

Such separation is particularly important for the young music student who needs to practice in a room free from distractions, advises Miss Wagner, who is consultant to the Story & Clark Piano Company, Lincolnwood, Ill.

STEINWAY PIANOS, handled exclusively in Marin by Sherman Clay of San Rafael, have exemplified fine craftsmanship and fine instrumentation for a century. Such products demonstrate that the piano can be a handsome piece as well as a source of musicc! enjoyment.

PLANNING the music center itself usually begins with a piano, because of its very size and because it's considered the "basic instrument" for most musical families. Most popular for home use today is the console piano, a vertical style slightly taller than a spinet and capable of larger volume.

"Now that piano styling trends so closely follow those of furniture, it's easy to find a quality instrument handsomely designed and finished to blend in with any decorating scheme," Miss Wagner observed.

And, because of technical advances, such as the laminated mahogany sounding board that withstands changes in temperature and humidity, some of the old rules for piano placement — such as avoiding outside walls and drafts — can be relaxed.

LIKE ANY piece of fine furniture, however, a piano should not be exposed to too much direct sun or extremes of heat and cold that are harmful to any wood finish.

Though console pianos are usually placed flat against walls, even this rule can now be broken. Story & Clark offers a special corded r.ed back panel, finished to match any console style, that gives the rear of the piano a finished appearance. With this special panel, a piano may be placed at right angles to a wall to serve as a space divider in a large room — or simply made to fit into a smaller room where wall space is at a premium.

Design Cues

Make slip-covers for books and periodicals with excess wall-paper or upholstery material to give a room a co-ordinated look. Small scraps can be used and the effect is well worth the effort.

Use complimentary fabric choices and wood finishes throughout your house to make redecorating and furniture rearranging easy.

The use of decorative moldings, painted to match or contrast, can add new life to a large, drab wall area. Moldings can be used to create panel effects or "frame" picture collections.

Freshen your kitchen by covering old cabinet doors and counter tops with easy-to-clean plastic in a bright pattern.

Do-it-yourself window shutters can add interest, as well as privacy, to a room. Cover center panel of shutters with a fabric or paper to match curtains, wall coverings or furnishings, for a custom look.

Why should you consider a decorating shop for furniture? Because in our store we can show you a good representation of the styles and periods available, without it becoming confusing. Once you decide which styles appeal to you, we will help you co-ordinate just the right pieces to blend properly in your room. Call us at 454-4870 for our free consultation and estimates. You may benefit from our experience without it costing you anymore.

DECOR IDEAS

Try beads for decorative window treatment when you want to screen, but not shut out, a window view.

Hang baubles from a bead track. (Mount at ceiling height to visually enlarged a window.)

Beads are available in walnut or natural wood — paint them to suit your taste — or crystalline plastic in a rainbow of shades.

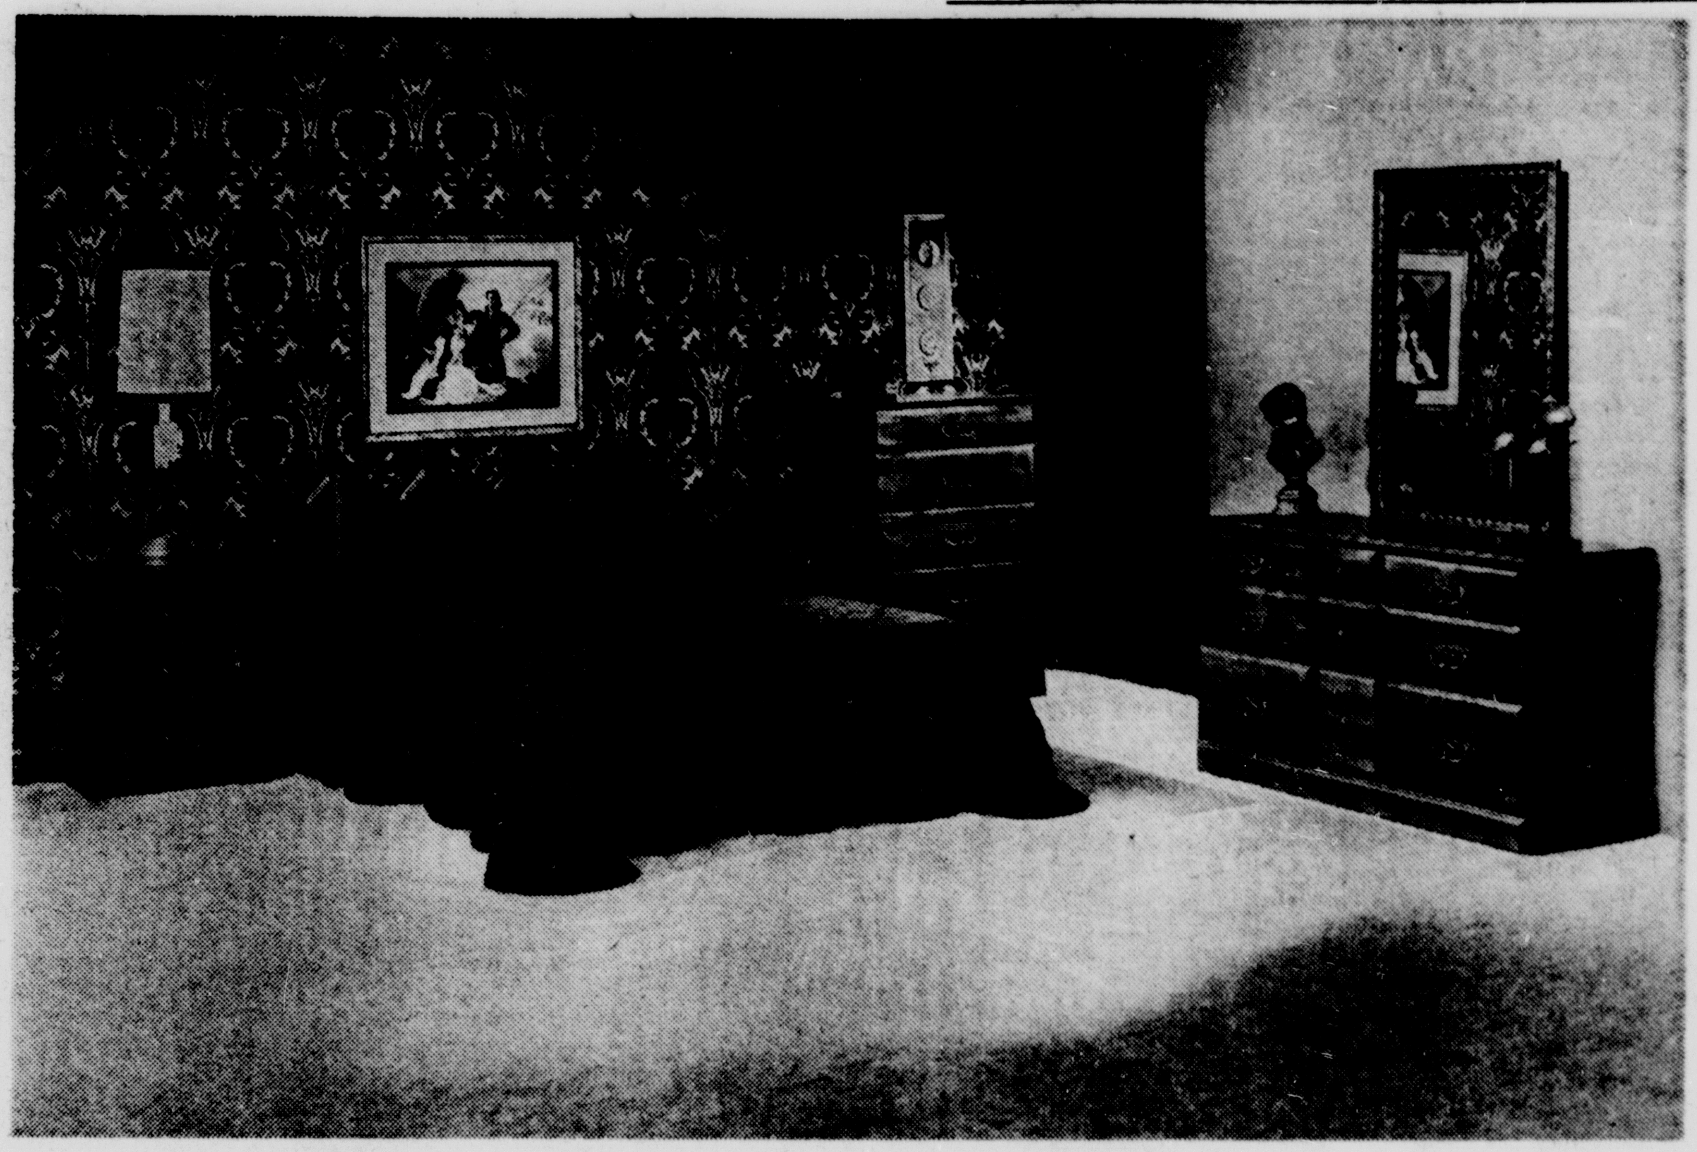
Brighten a dark stairway with carpet remnants or small throw rugs in a variety of colors. Cut all sections to fit and use tacks to hold securely in place.

A SAFETY note — the varied colored steps are easier to see, hence, safer to use.

Make yourself a handsome and original headboard for your bed with stock picture frames.

Select frames with cove molding to measure the width of your bed (the height is up to you. Insert fabric in frame — a quilted cloth is especially plush — to match bedspread or accent room decor.

USING screws from back side, secure all frames to plywood.



STILL THINK of unfinished furniture in terms of pine boxes? Then you haven't visited Nude Nook Unfinished Furniture in San Rafael lately. Hanging Decorations

In practically every standard house or apartment lease, there's a fine-type paragraph that forbids tenants to attach or hang anything on the walls.

And in practically every rental transaction, that particular clause is quietly ignored by both tenant and landlord.

A matter of carelessness on one part or irresponsibility on the other? Not necessarily, claims interior designer Mary Ann Wills.

"IT'S MERELY that even the most callous landlord has learned that it's futile to try to fight the basic urge to decorate," she explained.

"Besides, it's not difficult to patch plaster walls before painting or papering them. Once tenants or home owners master the simple art of spackling, they have little to worry about."

So predominant is the practice of garnishing walls, in fact that modern college dormitory rooms are often planned to permit and even encourage it, according to Miss Wills, who advises the Traverse City, Mich., manufacturer of Arabesque wall accessories.

TODAY'S COLLEGIANS, like those before them, still delight in hanging posters, pennants, souvenirs, and signs snitched from favorite eateries or even roadsides. For the span of a school year, they make great conversation pieces.

Once out of school, most young adults gradually develop a taste for wall decor that is more significant in terms of artistic value and lasting interest. But they still prefer items that rate high as conversation pieces, rejecting anything they consider mundane or perhaps corny.

"At any age, individual taste is what should dictate one's choice in wall accessories — for that matter, in all accessories for the home," Miss Wills declared.

The enormous variety of individual likes and dislikes among people of all ages is what guides the Arabesque designers in developing new ideas for all kinds of wall decor, to be created by woodcarvers and sculptors and then reproduced in simulated wood or other materials.

JUST NOW, for example, there is continuing emphasis on the Mediterranean design trend. So the latest Arabesque collections naturally have included numerous plaques, clocks, sconces, and mirrors with Spanish overtones. But what of the homemakers — and there are many — who haven't chosen to go in for "Mediterranea?"

Don't they, too, have the urge to decorate?

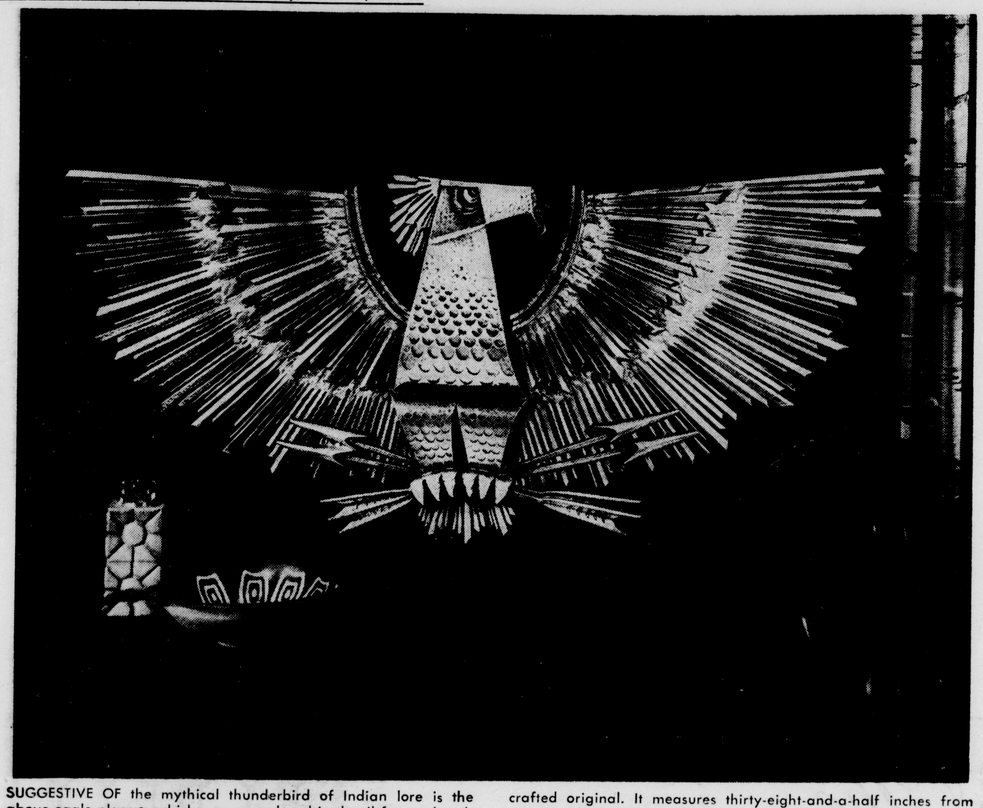
"The answer is yes, of course," Miss Wills declared. "And it's for these very homemakers — the 'independents,' if you will — that new contemporary, traditional, and transitional designs have also been created."

The mighty American eagle, for example, has been taken out of its familiar Early American context and brought forth in modern plumage. Strongly suggestive of the mythical thunderbird of Indian lore, a new "Welded Metal" Eagle plaque measures 38½ inches from wingtip to wingtip and 17 inches in height.

Finished in gleaming Roman gold with subtle color accents, the massive plaque is a good candidate for the space above a family room mantel or perhaps a long, modern hi-fi console.

RANGING FROM the mighty to the mini, so far as birds are concerned, Miss Wills also told of two new plaques that combine birds with the everpopular branch motif.

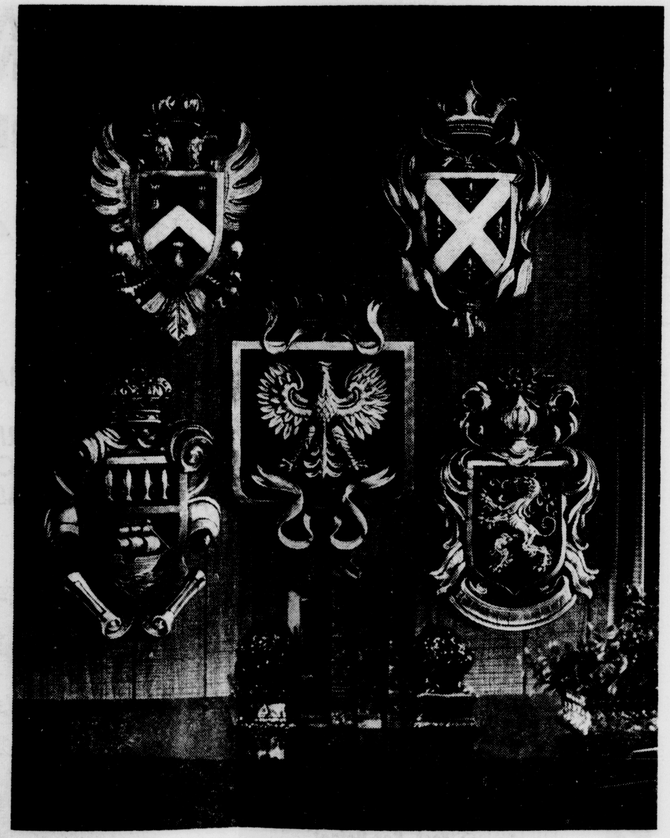
Smaller of the two is a dainty apple blossom branch that frames a trio of three-dimensional birds.



SUGGESTIVE OF the mythical thunderbird of Indian lore is the above eagle plaque, which was reproduced in detail from a hand-crafted original. It measures thirty-eight-and-a-half inches from wingtip to wingtip, is 17 inches high and has a finish of gleaming Roman gold.

BIRDS ON A branch are finely detailed in an airy new wall plaque, about 23 by 19 inches, with birds and appleblossoms available in a choice of multi-color or decorated metal gold finish.

STRAIGHT OUT of Italian art history comes the inspiration for this new Renaissance Cherub plaque that is an exacting reproduction of a hand-carved original design. The chubby amorinos (meaning "little loves" in Italian) project from a background of flowing scrollwork, leaves, shells, and flowers, all finished in lustrous Roman gold with pearlized highlights.



ASSEMBLED HERALDIC plaques shown above are of simulated wood, exactingly reproduced from hand-carved original designs and finished in a choice of traditional colors or lustrous Roman gold with pearlized and avocado green accents. In the interest of easy identification — not historical significance, they bear these national names: Austrian (top left), French (top right), Polish (center), Italian (lower left), and English (lower right).

Shags At Top

SHAGS ARE rampant in this year's carpet and rug fashions such as in this luxurious wool carpet setting off new Danish modern furniture. The mixture of gold, tangerine and pale green in the pile yarns is an example of the many multi-color combinations available in the new shags.

Have you heard the latest "shaggy rug" story?

Well, if you haven't you should, because shaggy rugs are the latest!

When it comes to the 1969 carpet and rug fashions, the shags are rampant. In the innumerable shag lines being shown in carpet stores this year you can expect to see every variety of shag texture conceivable.

You will find restrained, "civilized" shags. You will also find thick and wild "savage" shags. And all the variations in between.

THEY ARE made in a wide range of fibers — nylons, wools and acrylics. However, the polyester introductions seem to predominate.

There are shags for the living room, dining room, bedroom — and you will even see some shag carpets engineered for use outdoors for such places as patios and around swimming pools.

AS TO THE shag colorations, the range in solid colors is enormous and the multi-color combinations have to be seen to be believed and enjoyed.

You will discover such mixtures as tangerine with gold and sage, patriotic red and blue, pink with gold, pink with green. Space dyeing and printing techniques on some shags creates an unusual mottled effect with swirling, tonal patterns.

OF COURSE, shags are not the whole texture story in the 1969 carpet and rug style innovations. For example, deeply-carved sculptured effects and embossed patterns are found in a number of lines as the result of new developments in tufting machinery and flocking. Spanish tile designs and other Mediterranean motifs are noteworthy in these multi-level textures.

In the overall color story of 1969 fashions, the golds and avocado greens continue to be the staple and most popular colors evident in almost every line.

BUT TO these hues the mills have added some "newsy" neutrals such as grey — yes, grey is back — sand beige, charcoal and pewter. These are neutrals with their own "personality" — distinctive tones not designed to dissolve into the background.

Jewel tone emeralds, reds and blues are showing up more often in a number of the color lines. Certainly, one new color that seems to pop up everywhere is yellow — either a pale lemon or canary. Deep vibrant coffee brown is also making repeated appearances.

EVEN PURPLE — an "in" carpet color about 10 years ago — is being revived by some manufacturers for 1969.

With a big boost from new printing techniques, multi-color patterns are abounding throughout the carpet selections. The trend toward small scale geometrics continue both in pile carpets and in the needlepunch lines created for use outdoors or indoors in kitchens, bathrooms, family rooms and you name it.

Modern Furniture On The Airy Side

Now that we have really entered the Space Age, it's completely appropriate that the exciting news in furniture is modern design.

Words like contemporary and modern may still frighten some people, but rising sales of this style of furniture indicates that we are beginning to accept the airy, spacious look of the new design.

Even in upholstered furniture, which shows the slowest change in public buying habits, there are interesting developments. Since a sofa remains the major investment in living room furniture, styling tends to be on the conservative side.

But modern touches are beginning to appear in choices of fabrics and finishes. Legs and frames of chrome steel are popular replacements for traditional woods. There is a whole range of new fabrics like man-made suedes and leather-like vinyls which weren't even a part of the vocabulary five or ten years ago.

ONE THING that hasn't changed is the durability and comfort of latex foam rubber cushioning. Foam rubber is just as long-lasting as it ever was, and still needs no pillow-plumping. However, modern methods of using foam rubber have changed, too.

Many foam rubber cushions are now wrapped or "crowned" for a thick, opulent look. And there is an entirely new way of using foam rubber, too.

Today, modern chairs are being made in other than standard shapes. While tubs and clubs and wings still predominate, there is a growing fascination with undulating, free-form chair shapes.

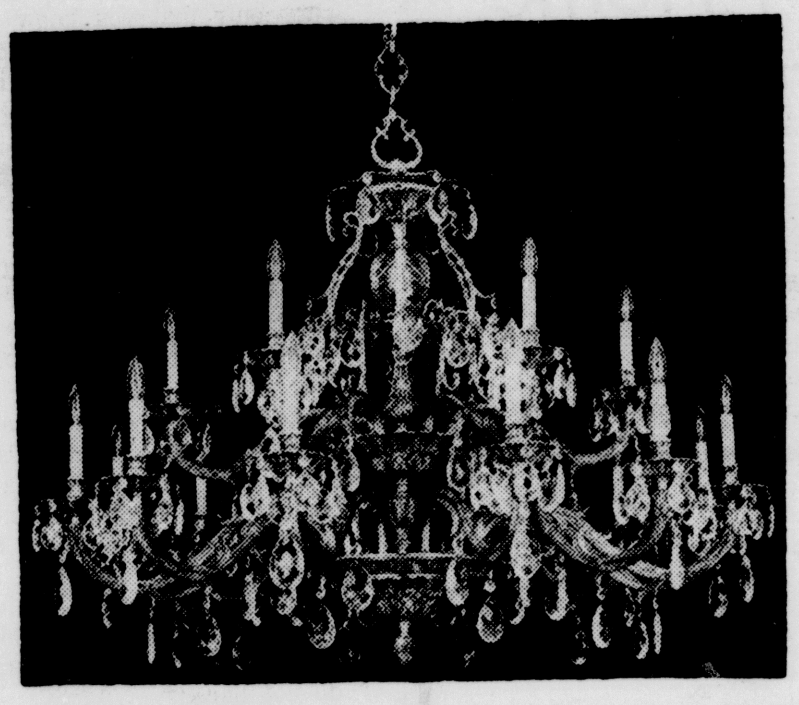
These chairs are made of molded plastic or tubular steel. A padding of foam rubber stretches over the mold for comfort, and over the padding goes the taut upholstery fabric. The chair, designed to support the body's curves, usually looks like it was born, rather than manufactured.

MODERN DESIGNS and materials are readily accepted in tables and other furniture. The glass and chrome coffee table has become a standard even in traditional rooms.

Wall units and storage cubes are mainstays of the young and mobile look in decorating. Clean-lined Parsons tables are often used as desks, buffets and occasional tables. Old concepts like etageres or Baker's racks have gone modern, too, when made of steel and plexiglass.

There are many well-designed modern accessories to choose among. Lamps, whether floor standing or table models, are increasingly dramatic in their concept. The polished steel, curved floor lamp, may be direct descendant of the old reflector, but all resemblance stops there. It's a good looking and functional lamp, made to be displayed proudly — rather than hidden in a corner.

The entire range of furniture and accessoires, in the modern idiom, brings a new freedom and design excitement to our homes.



IMPORTED CHANDELIERS are in the collection now shown in the Crystal Gollery of the Lights of Rafael in San Rafael. Eighteen lights in two tiers mounted on a Spanish brass fixture with reflecting teardrop pendants make up this piece which has a 42-inch body length and 48-inch width. The Crystal Gallery is the only display room of its type on the West Coast. This is just one department of the Lights of Rafael that show over 500 lighting fixtures in their store.

THE RETURN of an old favorite. Queen Anne styled Ladies' Desk in solid cherry or mahogany as shown at Wasser's Furniture Accents in San Anselmo. Only 27x17 this exquisite small piece takes up hardly any room yet it has four large drawers plus a number of small interior drawers and compartments. Authentic in every detail even to having locks on all drawers, the drop lid, the desk is also shown in a black or red chinoiserie hand-decorated finish. Both solid cherry and decorated models are on display at Wasser's.

Pick Type Of Home Best Suited To You

What type of house is best for you?

The ranch house that's nearly perfect for Mr. and Mrs. Jones and their two children may be completely unsuitable for you and yours.

And the split-level which fits your preferences and your pocketbook might be nothing but a headache for Mr. and Mrs. Brown and the little Browns, who have found that a two-story house fulfills all their needs even though it is on a small lot.

Every type of house has its advantages and disadvantages. To select properly, it is necessary only that you know what those advantages and disadvantages are. The following information may be of some help.

A ranch house permits more flexibility of design, looks larger than a one-and-a-half-story with the same amount of square footage, permits easier indoor-outdoor living, does away with the climbing of stairs and is easy to maintain, especially on the outside.

But it usually costs more per square foot of living area, since it requires more foundation, roofing and insulation; needs more land; calls for more horizontal walking; generally is a little more expensive to heat; and necessitates sleeping on the first floor, which some persons do not like.

A split-level gives more habitable space for less money than a ranch, has a design which is somewhat distinctive but can blend with two-story houses, eliminates much of the waste space in basements by utilizing this area for rooms or garage, and separates the living and sleeping sections.

But a split-level is harder to build than a ranch, requires more land than a two-story, creates a heating problem often calling for zoned controls, and gives the false impression that there is very little stair climbing when actually it is just that there are not as many steps in any one flight.

A one-and-a-half-story can be built on less ground than either a ranch or a split-level, can be zoned if desired so that the adults can sleep on one floor and the children on the other, and is highly adaptable to expansion, with the upper floor able to be partly or completely finished when the house is built or at any later time.

But this type of house is more difficult to maintain than a ranch, often has only a single first-floor bath (adding to the cost when a second bath must be installed), and has knee walls and sloping ceilings upstairs.

EACH PIECE picked to correlate with a room setting is the key to selection of the right furniture for a home. The buyer for Johnson's Red Barn in Novato takes great pains and a lot of time to select the best styles and finest quality from each manufacturer. The same thought goes into helping customers select their furniture.

A Basic Rule For Shopping

A basic rule when shopping for a major appliance is: Invest time now to save time later.

The highly competitive appliance industry has come up with an abundance of models, styles and colors, with engineering differences and individual features. All of them have a welcome place in some homes, but don't rely solely on the salesman to place one of them in yours.

Take the time to study the variety of makes and types, read the descriptive literature, learn the prices and ask the dealer to explain anything you don't entirely understand.

The result: You'll get longer and more dependable use from your appliance, have time for interests other than waiting for the repairman to show up — and you might well save money on both the initial price and operating costs.

Determine if there will be unexpected installation costs and whether you'll need a special electrical line run into your home. Don't rely on guesses if such work has to be done; ask an electrical contractor or utility salesman.

If you prefer a gas appliance, look near the manufacturer's serial number plate for a Blue Star emblem. It signifies that the appliance has passed testing by American Gas Association Laboratories. You may even live in a city that prohibits the installation of a gas home appliance without this seal.

Shopping for heat can be a complex and expensive business. A conversion burner can be installed in a few hours utilizing the existing furnace or boiler that burns liquid or solid fuel. Because these gas-fired units eliminate the need for bins, fuel tanks and janitor tools, they make available more space in the basement for recreation and other family activities.

No matter how efficient your heating system, your home may have hard-to-heat areas such as attics and add-on rooms. Different types of gas direct heaters are available to warm them. These types of space heaters come in models that can be counter-sunk into the floor or placed in a wall or window. Some are furniture-styled consoles or baseboard heaters that can be blended with the decor of the room, and there are models that resemble oak or birch logs that can be set in your fireplace.

Before buying a range, consider how many persons you usually feed and how much room you have in your kitchen. Get a range size that allows for work space at either side, and if you prefer the built-in look but do not want to spend the amount for these custom-styled ranges, a slide-in range costs less and can give your kitchen a built-in appeareance.

Some new gas ranges have features such as programmed ovens that cook food to your exact setting and then keep it warm until serving time, and burners-with-a-brain that adjust as heat increases in the pot or pan to prevent overcooking. Decide how much use you will have for these conveniences before selecting your range.

In choosing a water heater, be sure to buy one with enough capacity to meet all your household needs. Remember that as your family grows and you add appliances, your need for heated water will grow, too.

The rule in purchasing a clothes dryer is to get one the same size as your washer. Make sure you have convenient space for the dryer, to avoid lugging a wet wash long distances in your home.

FIREPLACE FOCUS

Fireplaces have blazed into new popularity.

Once considered heart and hearth of the Colonial home, fireplaces of various styles, shapes and sizes are now a sought-after feature in all types of residences — including contemporary homes, townhouses and apartments.

THE REASONS are obvious. Fireplaces add an undeniable touch of warmth and graciousness, are a comfortable conversational gathering place, and can easily become the decorative focal point of a room.

The decorative impact of a fireplace can be doubled by giving it a dramatic background. A non-descript, old-fashioned fireplace can be remodeled into a striking conversation piece with the aid of hardboard wall panelings.

HARDBOARD panels come in a wide choice of finishes, allowing selection of whatever style suits the room — and fireplace. There are, for example, warm woodgrain finishes, delicate damask-patterns and a number of interesting textured finishes.

Rugged hardboard panel siding — with a hand-hewn look — is beautifully appropriate as a backdrop for Franklin stoves, and for rustic-style vacation homes.

THE PANELS are available in standard 4-by-8-feet sizes that are easy to cut, handle and install. They are extremely sturdy, resistant to dents, mars and scuffs, and can be damp-wiped clean — a bonus for fireplace walls which tend to get smudged and sooty.

THE FRANCISCO-Mediterranean Magnavox's new Total Automatic Color (TAC), blends with any decor. This model along with the complete line of Magnavox television and stereo sets are featured at Butler's stores in Northgate, downtown San Rafael and Corte Madera.

Easy To Clean Kitchen Floor

Your one-year-old has just spilled orange juice all over the kitchen floor!

The phone is ringing.

The plumber is expected at the door any minute, and you suddenly feel as if you're going to explode into a million pieces.

Sound familiar? It's one of those uptight situations that every homemaker faces on occasion. No matter what the circumstances, it seems that kitchen accidents always manage to occur at the worst possible time.

THESE ARE the moments in a woman's life that call for patience, clarity of mind, and, above all, a good kitchen floor.

If a food spill has to stay put temporarily while you attend to other matters, you shouldn't have to worry about it soaking into the floor covering and creating a permanent stain underfoot.

Practicality is one reason why smooth-surface resilient floors of vinyl and linoleum have been a standard fixture in the home kitchen for generations. Aside from their durability and good looks, these materials are impervious to just about everything that's likely to be spilled in a kitchen. Eggs, milk, salad dressing, grape juice — even maple syrup — wipe up quickly with a damp cloth and a little detergent.

EVEN WHEN food substances are allowed to remain on vinyl or linoleum for an extended period of time, there's no harm done. The smooth, dense flooring surface resists absorption and keeps spills accessible so they can be easily removed later on.

Small Furniture For Apartments

Apartment living — an "out" way of life for the past two decades — is suddenly "in" again for people of all ages in towns and cities everywhere. And the reasons are devastatingly simple.

World War II veterans who dropped out of big cities in droves to raise families in suburbia are fast becoming "empty nesters" with a penchant for the excitement and services of the city sans the strains of commuting and the burdens of large home maintenance.

With equal logic, war babies-come-of-age are seeking jobs and convenient, economical apartment living beamed to "single swingers" and young married couples.

ONE OF the most significant changes caused by this fundamental shift in life styles is a new demand for small-scaled furniture that fits into the limited space of city living and performs more than one function.

With analysts expecting a record 600,000 new apartment units to be started across the U.S. this year and with apartment building expected to grow to 45 per cent of all housing starts by 1970, alert furniture manufacturers are studying the market with microscope and measuring tape in hand.

According to Barbara Brody, interior design consultant, the real criterion for new apartment dwellers is scaled-down furniture with built-in versatility.

"Given a choice, the canny cliff dweller selects as much multi-purpose furniture as possible," she said.

"THIS MEANS love seats and club chairs that turn into beds, dividers that store possessions while separating room areas, and all-purpose table and chair groupings that can sit anywhere in the home and serve for games, meals, and drop-of-the-hat entertaining."

Miss Brody, who counsels the B. Brody Seating Company, Chicago, manufacturer of metal dining furniture, noted that the average new apartment is now being built with an overall total of 700 to 800 square feet of space — a fact that automatically rules out massive furnishings for the dining area.

"Fortunately, this is one area where a wealth of creative effort has already been invested. Discerning apartment dwellers can now find properly scaled, handsomely executed dining ensembles in every mood and style from Mediterranean to Oriental to sleek modern and warm Early American," she stated.

TO WIN the space race, she recommends looking into round or oval tables that fit easily into tight quarters. Comfortable chairs that have enough design flair to unblushingly double as spare seating in any room are equally important.

Outstanding among the new designs now on the market are diminutive sets with fresh Oriental modern flavor. Table tops come in a variety of laminated plastic treatments that simulate exotic tortoise-and-brass inlays in round or oval shapes.

Matching metal chair frames are decorated with bright brass guilloches and come in hardy enamel finishes of black, bisque or walnutone.

Upholstery choices include rich, brocade-like floral patterns in sturdy, supported vinyl in Bali red, turquoise, or spice.

For apartment dwellers who seek the substantial flourish of Mediterranean without the bulk of the genuine article, there are pedestal groupings with graceful bases in curved black enamel with matching swivel chairs.

FIRST HOME

Newlyweds Should Make Right Choices

Now that summer has gone, many June brides are in the process of furnishing their first homes.

Whether it's a small, rented apartment or a "home of your own," certain decorating knowledge is necessary to transform hollow, impersonal space into that dream house that meets the needs of daily living for two.

BEFORE purchasing any furniture, remember that it is an investment and your choices should be geared to the future as well as the present.

An oyster white sofa covered in the finest silk may be the ideal accent for your living room now, but how will it hold up against sticky little fingers that may be a part of your home in a year or two?

It is wise to choose upholstered furnishings with stain-resistant finishes; tables and chests with glass or high-pressure tops, carpeting with a pattern or tweed effect, rather than a solid.

Even if a family is not in your immediate plans, you'll appreciate the ease in housekeeping.

IF YOU are living in two rooms now, choose living room furnishings that can go into a rec room or family room after you move into a larger home.

Before you make any large purchases, make sure you shop thoroughly. It's a good idea to visit one of the larger stores in your area even if you do not intend to purchase anything in this specific store.

This will still afford you the opportunity to examine a wide variety of styles, lines and manufacturer names.

If you are planning on filling in pieces of a certain manufacturer's collection or group at a later date, be sure and write directly to the manufacturer to find out how long the line has been in existence and how long it is planned to continue.

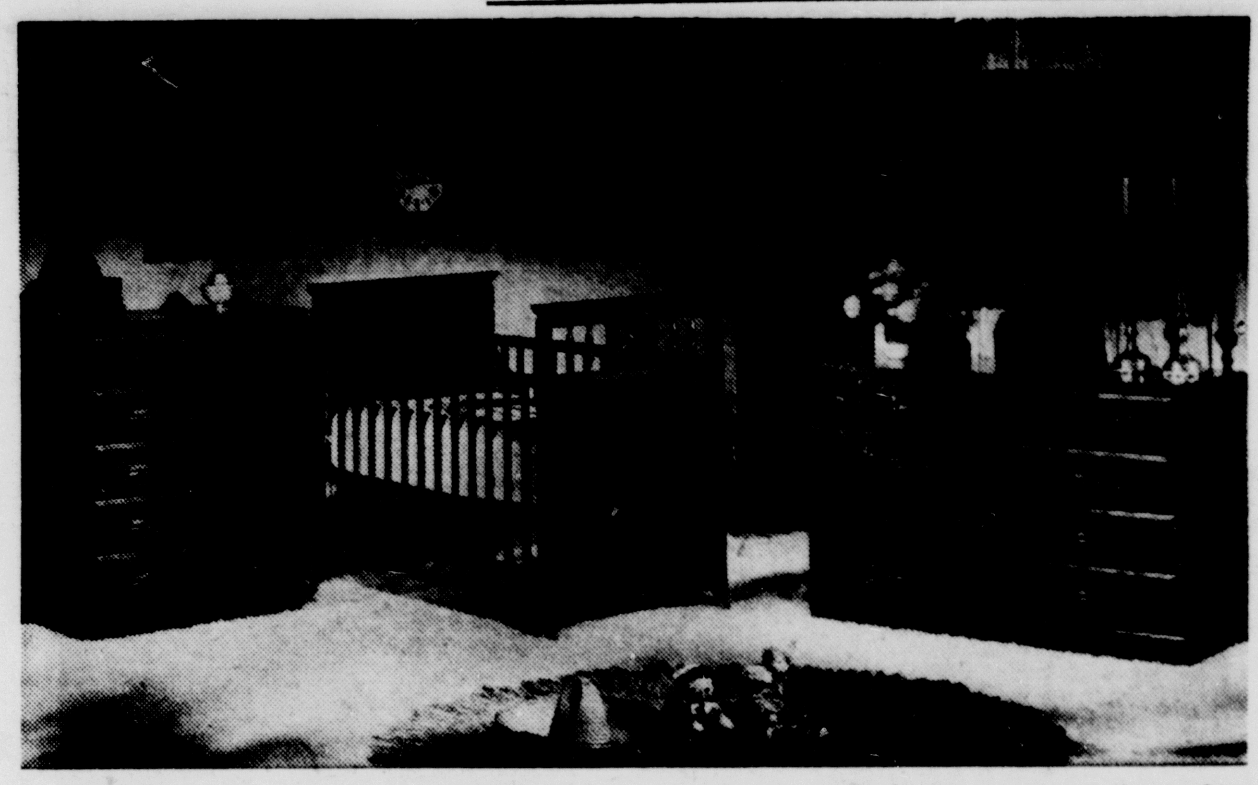
BEFORE purchasing any oversized pieces — such as king-sized springs and mattresses, over-long sofas, portable bars, etc. — make sure you can get them into your apartment.

Measure doorways and window openings. Check stairway turns — especially if you live in a third floor walk-up.

A good method in determining what kind of furnishings will fit into your rooms is by making a floor plan. Draw your rooms to scale using graph paper, allowing one-quarter inch per foot. Be sure to indicate all the architectural features such as doors, windows, radiators or heat registers, electrical outlets, etc.

Next, draw a scale pattern, called a template, of each piece of furniture you already have or plan to purchase. By arranging and re-arranging the templates on your floor plan, you can determine just how each piece will fit and look in your room.

IN THIS manner, you can also easily see which items you need immediately and which can wait for the future.



BABY FURNITURE has broken out of the doldrums of tradition and is now available in various styles such as the "Cordovea Mediterranean shown above which is one of the stylings available at Hellers Baby News store in San Rafael. The suite includes a chest of dust proof construction, full-size crib with steel stabilizing bar, double drop sides, plastic teething rail and adjustable springs and a double dresser.

A FAR EAST theme was created by Charles H. Bellach of Bellach's Design Center in San Rafael of a discriminating client who wanted an extra wide table and extra deep cabinets for maximum storage space. The table can be elongated by the use of cantilevered tracks that pull from each end upon which is placed wide leaves. The chairs are upholstered with coin gold Thailand silk and shoji wall and brass lantern fixture completed the Far Eastern concept.

Big Bedrooms Multi-Purpose

The evolution of the bedroom from a nighttime retreat into a multi-purpose room for "total living" is bringing about changes in the basic design of homes being built today and is also feeding the demand for supersize bedding.

"Homes currently being constructed by major builders reflect the public's desire for larger bedrooms in general and more specifically for a master suite that serves as an adult retreat," noted Sally Ames, style consultant to a leading mattress manufacturer, adding:

"IT'S SIGNIFICANT that the trend to spacious master bedroom suites isn't confined to luxury residences. It's not unusual to find master bedrooms, 12x15 feet or larger plus dressing room and bath, in modestly priced development-type homes."

Miss Ames, consultant to the Spring Air Mattress Company, Chicago, explained that clever architects and builders can often provide a bigger bedroom while holding the price line by "borrowing" space from other areas. This alternative eliminates the need for adding extra square feet which necessarily elevates the price of the home.

For example, the type and placement of bedroom closets affect the amount of available floor space.

While some homemakers prefer "walk-in" closets, the wardrobe type which utilizes the entire length of available wall space frees considerable floor space to become a useable part of the bedroom.

Miss Ames explained the difference: An efficient walk-in closet would be 4½x6 feet, or 27 square feet in total size. Of this 19 feet is clothes storage space, while the rest is passage area. The same amount of clothes storage can be provided in a wardrobe closet, with either sliding or folding doors, measuring 2 feet deep by 9½ feet wide.

THE STYLE consultant mentioned that another way of enlarging the bedroom is to borrow space from the living area.

"This is a logical move," Miss Ames said, "because it's more practical to select from an abundance of lightly scaled furniture for the living room than to try to squeeze a king-size bed into a bedroom that's too small."

Miss Ames credits the growing popularity of supersize bedding with bolstering the boom in larger bedrooms, and, in turn, being fed by the demand.

"ALONG WITH a waking retreat for reading, writing, TV watching or quiet conversation, more and more Americans want a king or a queen-size bed for super sleeping comfort," Miss Ames said.

Miss Ames pointed out that sales of queen-size, king-size and extra long mattresses and springs are increasing significantly every year.

A king-size bed, she explained is 76 inches wide by 80 inches long, while queen-size is 60 inches wide by 80 inches long. A standard twin bed, on the other hand, is 39 inches wide by 75 inches long, while a standard double bed is 54 inches wide by 75 inches long.

"There's little doubt," Miss Ames said, "that supersize demand is influencing forward-looking architects and builders who are re-thinking their residential designs to provide the bigger bedrooms that home buyers prefer."

SHE MENTIONED that rental apartments also mirror the trend to "total living" bedrooms. "A look at apartment buildings built in the last year or so indicates that spacious master suites are being included as a major selling point to prospective tenants," Miss Ames noted.

Tips On Furniture Arrangement

Proper furniture arrangement is important in displaying your furnishings to the best advantage and also in getting the most use out of a room.

Here are some points to remember:

Keep traffic lanes open. Place major conversational groupings so that they are not disturbed by traffic. It is also possible to redirect traffic by re-arranging furnishings.

Place large pieces close to, and parallel to, the wall in order to use the least amount of wall space and conform to the lines of the room.

Arrange furnishings so that each room has a center of interest or focal point.

Group together the pieces that are used together, e.i. comfortable chairs and sofa for a conversation group; desk or table and chair to form work or hobby center.

Windows, Drapes Take Care

Remember, when you plan your window treatment, what your window is for, and be sure that you don't interfere with its function. If you have a nice view, let it be seen. And remember that, no matter what the view by day, at night the glass will be black unless covered. If your apartment is high up, in a city, you may have a beautiful view at night. But this is for relatively few people.

In a modern room, or any room that is informal, don't let the windows become fuzzy with treatment. They must harmonize with the room in every way. If there is pattern in the curtains, it should be in scale with the room and everything in it.

If your curtains are being featured, try to make them beautiful — and just important enough. If they are to be background, don't let them get too busy. Don't let them interfere with the room's unity. Be sure they are made properly and installed so they hang well. If you do all of these things, you will surely have curtains that do their job and look well at the same time.

Mirrors Can Create Magic In All Rooms

Mirrors can make magic in every room of a home. They bring light and air into a small room, widen a narrow, highceilinged room, or raise the center of interest in a predominately low room. Today, there are sizes and styles of framed mirrors to suit any decorating need.

An arrangement of framed mirrors is a particularly imaginative way to add new dimensions to a room, the Institute points out. A collection of framed mirrors, hung like a wall arrangement of pictures might be, creates a strikingly different mood from that of a single mirror.

A pair of identical mirrors might serve as the focal point of an arrangement or perhaps a single large mirror can occupy the center. Mirrors in a variety of sizes and shapes, all with different frames and surrounding the center of interest, create a potpourri of light and color.

Frame styles and colors should be compatible with the furniture and decor of the room. Mirror sections of department or furniture stores and custom frame shops are good sources of help in selecting framed mirrors. Some stores also have decorators who can assist in planning a wall arrangement.

Mirrors can be both functional and decorative. The next best thing to a second window is a handsome mirror opposite the only window in the room

Housekeeping An Arduous Job

The majority of homemakers — whatever their economic or geographic circumstances — still find housekeeping an arduous business that demands more time than it should in an enlightened scientific age. And city dwellers, especially, take it on the chin in the battle against dust and dirt.

According to a survey of urban vs. suburban housekeeping made by W. J. Hagerty & Sons, Ltd., Inc., South Bend, Ind., manufacturer of home care products:

The city homemaker spends 32 hours per week cleaning house, compared with 19.8 hours per week for her counterpart in the suburbs.

CITY [illegible] SUBURBAN homemakers agree that cleaning the range and oven is their most irksome chore. Ironing ranks second with city women, while suburbanites complain about washing windows.

While floor and carpet care appliances, automatic washers, and steam irons are common among both city and suburban homemakers, few automatic dishwashers and garbage disposers are to be found in city homes.

The suburban homemaker is more apt to have paid domestic help, while the city woman relies more on her children for assistance. In both cases, the husband does little to help with the housework.

City and suburban women rely heavily on specialized cleaning products, are loyal to products that do a job, and look to science and industry to produce even more work-savers for them.

HAGERTY undertook the survey to learn what home care products the homemaker wants to ease her cleaning chores.

Mrs. Mary Gaffney, director of the Hagerty Home Care Institute, the company's consumer service arm, noted that women surveyed in both areas were generally mature, experienced housekeepers with a keen appreciation of efficient cleaning aids and a full awareness of the areas where help is needed.

"What we basically discovered is that income and location mean very little. All respondents in the survey were hard working homemakers with a genuine sense of urgency about their problems," she said.

"Both were frank to state that scientific advances had eased their burden in the past and was their main hope for more help in the future."

COMPARING an urban area with a median income of $9,800 and a nearby suburban area with average family income of $15,700, the Hagerty survey uncovered significant facts about the attitudes of today's homemaker.

While the respondents in the survey spanned a wide range in terms of years married (two weeks to 43 years), the typical homemaker emerged as an expert with between 16 and 19 years of housekeeping experience.

About half of all respondents had had some home economics training before marriage and most homemakers still have children at home to care for and clean up after.

THE URBAN homemaker has fewer rooms to clean (an average of 5.4 rooms vs. 7.1 rooms for the suburbanite) and more children at home (an average of 2.8 children vs. 2.1 in the suburbs), a fact which may present extra difficulties in terms of overcrowding and storage.

Bishops Synod To End Monday With Ballots

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The world synod of bishops will end Monday with a vote on 13 proposals for giving bishops greater authority in the Roman Catholic church, it was announced today.

The key proposals calls on Pope Paul VI to consult bishops in preparing documents on major importance to the church, but also states that bishops should consult the Pope before making important statements of their own.

OBJECTIONS HEARD

Some liberal bishops objected earlier in the Synod to the second part of this proposal.

The two proposals are linked together in the second item on Monday's ballot, but liberals who object to giving the Vatican veto power over their statements can vote in favor of the item with reservations.

A Vatican spokesman said a document containing the 13 proposals was distributed to bishops today.

Other main points call for greater cooperation of the Roman Curia with bishops, bringing bishops into an active role in the work of the permanent synod secretariat at the Vatican, holding general synods once every two years in addition to extraordinary and special synods, giving bishops' conferences and eastern rite synods the right to propose items for synod agendas and allowing experts to assist bishops during synods.

INTERNATIONAL AIMS

The Synod also votes Monday on proposals for closer cooperation among the various national bishops' conferences of the world. These proposals are generally noncontroversial and will be distributed to bishops tonight.

In today's session two bishops gave their backing to a proposal by Cardinal Francois Marty of Paris that the next synod take up problems of the priesthood, including the question of marriage for priests. They were Cardinal Franziskus Koening of Vienna and Cardinal Mafimos V Hakim, Melkite patriarch of Antioch.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Everyone Over Age 40 Needs Spirogram To Check Emphysema

VAN DELLEN

Everyone over 40 should have a spirogram of the lungs to determine whether emphysema is developing. This is true expecially of men who smoke or suffer from coughing, wheezing, or shortness of breath

The test takes less than five minutes and consists of breathing into a machine that records the volume of air and the time used to complete inspiration and expiration.

OBSTRUCTIVE EMPHYSEMA is the most serious form of the disease because it is progressive and disabling. It is preceded by years of bronchial allergy or infection that usually stems from inhaling irritants such as tobacco smoke or polluted air.

The large and smaller bronchi narrow when the inner lining thickens and the smooth muscle fibers encircling the tubes weaken. The irritation and inflammation also lead to an increase in mucus secretion.

As the wall thickens, the cough becomes less efficient and the excess sputum is retained. More force is required to produce an ample flow of air that will provide ventilation, especially during expiration.

MEANWHILE, THE TINY air sacs become distended and, like an old balloon, develop wrinkles that interfere with their elasticity.

Normally, expiration is a passive act. Air leaves the lungs because of elastic recoil as it would from a tire after the valve stem has been removed. Those with emphysema must literally squeeze out the air from the chest. The greater the effort to expire, the greater the compression on the bronchi.

These individuals are soon fighting for every breath trying to force air through flattened air passageways.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J)

DIETER PUTS ON POUNDS

A reader writes: Since going on a low fat diet I have gained six pounds and my blood cholesterol has gone from 350 to 398. Can you explain this odd situation?

REPLY

Yes. The best diet to lower cholesterol is low in animal fats and more liberal in vegetable (polyunsaturated) oils and spreads. It is well to remember that all fats are high in calories regardess of source. But there is more to cholesterol than food. It is lowered by exercise, losing weight, certain hormones, and clofibrate. Stress and anxiety raise the level.

RELATED TO CYST

P. L. writes: Is pilonidal cyst considered a birthmark?

REPLY

No. It is however, a close relative, in that the lesion represents a developmental defect that is present at birth. This little pocket at the base of the spine stems from imperfect closure of the tissues in that area. It may escape detection until the lower spine is jarred, such as occurs when riding in a jeep that hits a rut in the road.

ABDOMINAL MIGRAINE

T. W. writes: What is the cause and treatment of abdominal migraine?

REPLY

This is a migraine equivalent manifested by periodic attacks of abdominal distress. There is no headache. The pain probably stems from a spasm of a cerebral artery. The condition may be difficult to extinguish from abdominal angina due to a circulatory disturbance of the abdominal vessels.

BELCHING AND PREGNANCY

Mrs. R. A. writes: Is belching common in women who are expecting?

REPLY

Yes — also in those who are not pregnant.

Today's Health Hint—

The tendency to diabetes is hereditary.

HOW TO PLAY BRIDGE

Sometimes One Of The High Counters Really A Low Card

"Things are seldom what they seem," said a famous satirist, but he was just indulging his bent for exaggeration. A seven or eight is usually a high card, meant to encourage you to continue the suit you have opened. But there's no harm in looking around to make sure that your partner's card is exactly what it seems to be. Even satire isn't always wrong.

DIAMOND LEAD

West led the king of diamonds, and East followed suit with the eight. It was the lowest diamond East could play, and it was meant to be discouraging. East hoped his partner would think of switching to hearts before dummy's clubs could furnish discards.

West was a very serious, literal soul. An eight was a high card, and no nonsense about it. If East didn't want a diamond continuation, it was his business to produce a low diamond.

So West led the ace of diamonds at the second trick, and there went the defense.

DEVELOPS CLUBS

South ruffed the second diamond, drew one round of trumps with the queen, and then led a club to dummy's king. He returned to his hand with the jack of trumps to lead another club.

West played low again, and dummy's queen of clubs won. South got back with a third trump to lead a third club, and now West had to take the ace. Nothing could stop South from discarding a heart on one of summy's high clubs, so that South lost only one heart, one diamond and one club.

CAN DEFEAT

West defeats the contract if he switches to the jack of hearts at the second trick since the defenders can get two heart tricks before South can develop the clubs. West should have seen all of the low diamonds at the first trick and therefore should have known that East's eight was the lowest diamond available.

DAILY QUESTION

You hold:

♣—K Q J 5

What do you say?

ANSWER: Double.

This takeout double asks your partner to bid his longest suit and promises fine support for any suit he may name. You would prefer to have one more heart instead of one of the diamonds, but the hand is worth a double even as it stands.

Warn Fishermen

TRURO, England (AP) — Cornwall County Council has warned shell fishermen against using nets that could "entrap or kill" skin divers prowling among lobster pots off the coast.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Oct. 25, the 298th day of 1969 with 67 to follow.

The moon is full. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars.

On this day in history:

In 1854, in the famed Charge of the Light Brigade, some 670 British cavalrymen fighting in the Crimean War attacked a heavily fortified Russian position and were wiped out.

In 1936, the Fascist government of Germany and Italy formed the Rome-Berlin Axis.

In 1966, a fire aboard the American carrier Oriskany off Vietnam killed 33 men.

In 1968, 32 persons died in the crash of a Northeast Airlines plane near Hanover, N.H.

Thought for the day: American author Ridgley Torrence said, "God gave them youth, God gave them love, and even God can give them no more."

New Look For Coffee Tables

CHICAGO (AP) — A coffee table with spray-on graphite-based coating on its glass top can be plugged into regular electrical wall outlets for cooking food or keeping it warm.

The unit was created by Acheson Colloids Co., Port Hiron, Mich., inventor of the coating, to demonstrate how it can be used in residential heating, trailer-truck heating units, and other consumer industrial applications.

The company said the sprayed circular "burners" represent a startling breakthrough in conducting electricity and generating heat.

Temperature can be thermostatically controlled to a maximum of 500 F.

PART OF CENTENNIAL

Choirs To Perform Bloch Work

Ernest Bloch's "Sacred Service" will be presented in two free public performances tomorrow, one at 9:30 and the other at 11 a.m. at the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael.

This is one of the events in the church's eight-week centennial celebration. The performances will be lieu of a sermon at the services.

Performing the "Sacred Service" will be the combined Chancel and Westminster choirs and some members of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra conducted by Hugo Rinaldi. Baritone Byron Jones will be the cantor, and Doris Goldberg will be the organist.

Jones will sing the cantorial solos in Hebrew, and the choirs will sing in English.

Nationally-known artist Lucienne Bloch Dimitroff, one of the composer's two daughters, who lived in Mill Valley many years before moving to Mendocino County, will speak briefly on the significance of this work to the composer. Her daughter, Mrs. Boyan Milcev of Mill Valley, will sing in the choir.

While Bloch was director from 1925 to 1930 of the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, he spent much time in Marin County, especially in Mill Valley, and composed some of his music there. A Bloch festival was held at the College of Marin in 1965.

"Bloch composed this music as his supreme exaltation of the Jewish faith, "Jones said. "In it he expressed the ardent desire that men will at last recognize that they are brothers and live in harmony and peace.

"This message of brotherhood transcends the boundaries of religious faith and is heard through the universal voice of music."

The church is located at Fifth and H streets.

DISCUSS WORK—Baritone Byron Jones and conductor Hugo Rinaldi look over the score of Ernest Bloch's "Sacred Service," which the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael will present tomorrow as part of its centennial celebration. Draft Stand By Bishops Causes Shock

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The bishops of the Episcopal Church have caused considerable distress to some members of their fold who are still old-fashioned enough to believe in such things as honor, duty and the necessity of obeying the law even when you don't like it.

In a resolution adopted last week at South Bend, Ind., the Episcopal bishops called on the government to grant amnesty to men who have evaded the draft or deserted from the army rather serve in Vietnam.

I'm sure the bishops regarded their action as an expression of Christian compassion for courageous young idealists who are conscientiously opposed to what the United States is doing in Vietnam.

THE OTHERS

But what about the other courageous young Americans who have gone to war on distant battlefields of southeast Asia, not because they approved of our commitment there, but simply because they have been brought up to believe it is wrong to cop out on your country, even when you think it's making a mistake?

Bishops threw them a sop by adding to the resolution at the last minute an expression of "loyalty and devotion" to men in uniform. But this was plainly an afterthought.

It would have been enlightening for the bishops to walk through Ward 32 of Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington on the morning that the Washington Post gave prominent display to a story about their amnesty resolution.

WARD 32

Ward 32 is a long, grim room with a row of beds along each wall. Most of the beds are occupied by soldiers who have been badly wounded in Vietnam. Some of them are crippled for life. But they count themselves lucky. At least, they will tell you, they didn't come home in a box—as many of their buddies have.

If the Episcopal bishops talked with these young men—or others like them whose battle scars are psychological and emotional rather than physical—they would discover that very few had any illusion they were waging a noble crusade in Vietnam. They went because they felt they had to—which is to say, because they could not stomach any of the alternatives. And they are bitterly aware that there are several alternatives.

One which appears to have dominated the thinking of the Episcopal bishops, holds: "I consider this war immoral and therefore I refuse to serve in it, regardless of what it may cost me to take this stand."

FULLY PREPARED

Beyond doubt there are many young men who sincerely feel that way and who are fully prepared to accept the consequences—imprisonment or self-exile—which society has prescribed as the price of such an act of civil disobedience. The men in Ward 32 respect that.

But they will tell you about other motives for avoiding combat duty in Vietnam—such as an ardent desire to preserve a whole skin—and they can also list methods which have been successfully employed by their friends and acquaintances.

One easy out that is frequently used, they say, is to fake a disability that will make you 4F. There are a number of ingenious ways of doing it. If all else fails, you can tell the ingenious ways of doing it.

Another popular alternative—flight to Canada or Sweden—has hitherto had one great disadvantage: you couldn't come home again without facing trial and possible imprisonment.

The amnesty urged by the Episcopal bishops would, of course, remove that difficulty.

Greek Orthodox Church Of Marin Seeking New Status

The Greek Orthodox Church of Marin reached a milestone two Sundays ago when 65 families formally applied to the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of North and South America for recognition as a congregation.

On hand for the event at St. Anselm's Parish Hall was Bishop Meletios, prelate of the Western United States.

The action was necessary, according to Dr. Ted Preovolos, president of the congregation, before the church can be assigned a permanent priest. The church is presently being served by Rev. George Bogdanos of Oakland.

The church, which was organized in February, holds Sunday services in Montgomery Chapel on the San Anselmo Theological Seminary campus.

Seminar Set On Family Communication

Dr Cecil Osborne, auth0r ot "The Art of Understanding Yourself" and senior minister of hte First Baptist Church in Burlihgame since 1936, will lead a seminar on family communcation next Saturday at the Church of All Faiths (American Baptist Convention) in Corte Madera.

The session will begin at 1:30 p.m. with Dr. Osborne speaking on the theme of family communication involving parents, children and friends. Small group sessions will follow at 2:45 p.m. and the last hour will be devoted to a question and answer.

The seminar is under direction of the church's evangelism committee headed by Dr. James Anderson.

In announcing plans, Dr. Anderson emphasized the program is designed for teen-agers and parents who seem to have great difficulty in communicating.

Dr. Osborne has been associated with this type of program for the past 10 years. Since 1958 he has served as west coast director of Yokefellows, which has done experimental work in the field of communication.

Concert Will Benefit Church

A concert "An Evening to Remember," will be presented by nationally-known baritone Robert Peterson at 8 p.m. next Saturday at the Novato Ward Cultural Hall at Center Road and Kenyon Lane in Novato.

The concert is a benefit for the building fund of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.

Peterson starred on Broadway when he replaced Robert Goulet as Lancelot in the musical "Camelot." He has appeared in numerous television shows. He has starred with the American Opera Society in "La Boheme", "Aida," and "La Traviata." He has also starred in summer stock productions of such musicals as "Brigadoon", "South Pacific," "Pipe Dream," and "Pajama Game."

Theological Study No Longer Cloistered

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Theological study, once carried on mostly in quiet academies apart from the technological and social sciences, today is increasingly pursued in close conjunction with those fields.

The shift has set off, some physical, as well as mental, readjustment.

Besides moving to keep in touch with secular disciplines, theology also has generally broken out of its denominational orbits, and now goes on mostly in a context of various approaches to faith.

"There's an expanded awareness that theological work has to be done in association with various religious traditions and also with other areas of knowledge," says the Rev. John Gallen, a Roman Catholic theologian.

INVOLVES ALL

"It involves the whole human experience, not just part of it."

That quest for wider horizons was symbolized here when the 100-year-old Jesuit seminary, Woodstock College, this fall completed the first stage of a move from its rural, woodland setting in Maryland to a cosmopolitan educational complex in Manhattan.

Here, the once-sequestered Catholic classes go on in cooperative interchanges with Protestant Union Theological Seminary, the Jewish Theological Seminary of America and Columbia University, all in the same uptown area.

Ceremonies formalizing the new Protestant-Catholic academic ties were held this week.

"It's not enough to study only theology, or only Catholic theology," said Father Gallen, a Woodstock professor and director of the college's new research Center for Religion and Worship.

"We need to examine other traditions as well, both Protestant and Jewish thought, and we've also got to keep abreast of the university sciences, the whole world of man—it's all in God's province."

And that inclusive divine sphere is the business of theology, sometimes called the "queen of sciences."

THROUGH SCIENCE

Through other scientific and intellectual disciplines, however, "we know much more about man and his world than in the past," Father Gallen noted.

"And theology has to take this knowledge into account if it is to deal fully with reality, as we now understand it."

Woodstock's move here, from its 687-acre tract in the hills 20 miles west of Baltimore, is part of a trend that has involved many seminaries in moves for closer links with a broader educational spectrum.

Among the major new cooperative arrangements are the Boston Theological Institute, involving seven Protestant and Catholic seminaries in that area, and the Graduate Theological Union at Berkeley, Calif., involving 10 seminaries.

In Dubuque, Iowa, representatives of Presbyterian and Roman Catholic seminaries this fall completed agreement on plans for sharing classroom, office and dormitory space.

In Dayton, Ohio, four Theological seminaries—Lutheran, Methodist, Catholic and United Church—are considering a "cluster" arrangement there for sharing faculty, curricular resources and other facilities.

OTHERS FORMED

Similar new theological groupings have formed elsewhere, in Atlanta, Philadelphia, Chicago and Rochester, N.Y.

In Woodstock's transfer to the new Manhattan scene, about a third of its faculty and study body — 68 students and eight professors — moved this fall, while 130 students and 15 professors still are at the Maryland campus.

The rest will move in the fall of 1970, completing the shift.

"It's an exciting new atmosphere, with tremendous possibilities," Father Gallen said. "We're all very enthusiastic about it."

The Jesuit faculty members here rent office space in a Union seminary building, Reed House, and have classrooms rented at Union, at nearby Riverside Church and the Interchurch Center, an interdenominational office building.

There are library and instructional exchanges among the different religious schools, Jewish, Protestant and Catholic. Four ordained Jesuit seniors are enrolled in the Protestant seminary working on advanced degrees.

LIVE TOGETHER

Most of the students and faculty live in a newly renovated apartment building where they did much of the painting and wall-papering themselves.

The school's newly opened Center for Religion and Worship conducts research into patterns of American religious life, and is working to produce new liturgical rites especially suited to the American people.

Branches To Print New Periodical

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI)—Rerpesentatives of the Church and Society agencies of the Presbyterian Church in the United States and the United Presbyterian Church have announced plans to publish jointly a new magazine entitled Church and Society.

According to spokesmen, the publication date for the new magazine is January 1970.

Minister Is Named For Church Youth

Wallace Kuroiwa, who is working on an advanced degree at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry, has been named to the new office of minister of youth at the First Baptist Church in San Anselmo.

As youth minister, Kuroiwa will develop an active youth program within the church and community.

A native of Hawaii and a graduate of the University of Hawaii, he is completing his master's degree in philosophy at the Baptist seminary.

Kuroiwa was introducted to the youth of the church at an informal gathering last Sunday at the San Anselmo home of the church's pastor, Dr. Ralph J. Fortune.

Cedars Aids Retarded For 50 Years

By VIOLET RYAN

The first school in the west for the retarded, founded in 1919 as the Cedars School, is still going strong at its original site a beautiful woodsy estate in Ross.

The school, now known as the Cedars Development Foundation, was founded by Gabrielle Renshaw and Cora Myers, a contemporary and friend of Maria Montessori and Helen Deveraux.

They were among the earliest pioneer in recongizing that the mentally retarded have a place in society, that with proper training they can lead secure and happy lives and that many less severly retarded can make a meaningful contribution.

WHEN THEY founded the Cedars School, there were four children, two teachers and four housemothers, and two of the original students are still there.

The school now has 75 boarders and 20 day pupils, varying in age from four to 61, a full school program from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and counselors working from 3 to 8 p.m. with a varied recreation program.

Miss Myers and Miss Renshaw retired in 1938, and Mrs. Marie Tappendorff, who had been working at the school since 1936, bought an interest in it,

SWIMMING AT the ranch pool, north of Sunny Hills in San Anselmo, is a popular summer exercise with teacher Mrs. Frances Coutandin, in white bathing suit, giving a few pointers to the children. and became director.

A NEW dormitory was constructed in 1940 and another in 1946, rooms were added to the school and the teaching staff was increased to 10.

After making the school a non-profit foundation in 1965, Mrs. Tappendorff retired and John McIvor became the top administrator.

The foundation also operated a 22-acre "ranch," north of Sunny Hills in San Anselmo for older males, which is staffed by a house mother and father.

During summer vacation there is supervised swimming every day, horseback riding, crafts and an outdoor play and summer camp area. Children participate in bowling, roller skating and cub scouting. The foundation is still looking for a Girl Scout leader for the girls.

EACH STUDENT is assigned some small task within his ability with each encouraged to do his best and to be proud of his accomplishment.

While the program at the school is structured, it is not rigid — if there is an unexpectedly beautiful day, books are put aside, a picnic lunch assembled and there is an outing to a beach or park.

More recently the foundation purchased a main home and ranch house in Los Ranchitos, where five girls of teen-age live with house parents and attend special classes in public schools.

It is considered a "halfway house" where the girls learn home-making skills preparatory to going home to parents or foster parents. A similar home for five boys of teen-age is in the planning.

AT THE school the aim is to make the students, young and old, happier, healthier and more self-reliant.

There are gaily decorated dormitories with rooms for one, two, three or four congenial children in the same age group. The home-making room is often filled with the delicious aroma of cookies and the crafts room seems to be always busy, and about now there is increased activity in making Christmas gifts for parents.

Holidays are celebrated with parties including Halloween in costume and a birthday party for each at a decorated table with the cake of his chosing that he helped to ice.

IN DECEMBER, there are parties given by volunteers with the climax a Christmas pageant and party for friends and family.

Each year the students go to a big circus and several small ones, Giant baseball games and the Ice Follies. The summer program usually is concluded with a special treat, and this year it was a trip to Marine

"Why Did My Dress Pucker and Shrink?"

The other day we discussed heat-sensitive adhesives and the stains they cause. This time your problem is caused by a heat-sensitive fabric. We find more and more of this as certain synthetic fibers are combined in fabric construction.

Your dress contains a polyvinyl chloride fiber which shrinks excessively in normal drying and steam finishing. This causes the shrinkage which brings about the size change and puckering.

A dress containing this fiber should carry a label stating, plainly, that the dress should have special handling. Nothing can be done to restore the size of the dress or to reduce the puckering. Shrinkage of heat-sensitive fibers is permanent. The fault lies with the manufacturer who uses such a fiber and fails to label the garment for special handling or with the customer who removes the warning label.

World.

During the school year there is a dinner dance once a month for those older than teen-age, and an afternoon dancing party for juniors, with social graces and good manners stressed.

There has been a large group of volunteers, coaching in classrooms, helping in recreation, taking children to their homes for lunch, dinner, overnight and sometine for weekends.

Fifty years ago the retarded were hidden away through lack of understanding of their potentials, but now it is known they can live busy and happy lives, and Cedars is doing its best to bring this about.

LIVING ROOM at the school in Ross has the flavor of home life, a cheerful environment and the pleasures that ease the strain of living for the retarded.

THE HOMEMAKING ROOM where girls learn simple sewing and both boys and girls try their hand at cooking is a place where learning comes at a practical level. This scene is busy with teacher Clara Griffin presiding over the making of cookies and some girls at their sewing.

NURSERY CLASS is one of the special areas at the school which meets the needs of the younger group in an attractive, warm setting lending a relaxed atmosphere. Teacher Mrs. Myrtle Heinecke holds the attention of several students while one boy in the background is enjoying himself by following the story of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs along with the record.

HALFWAY HOUSE in Los Ranchitos for teenaged girls is a step toward going home to parents or foster parents for girls who learn home-making skills and also attend special classes in public school.

Gene Nelson Believes . . . Be Yourself

KSFO Personality Tried Playing Parts At Mike

In a time of youth revolt and upheaval, one Marin man has done much to help and understand today's young by offering them a rather simple philosophy but one that took many years and much experience to learn: "Always be true; always be yourself."

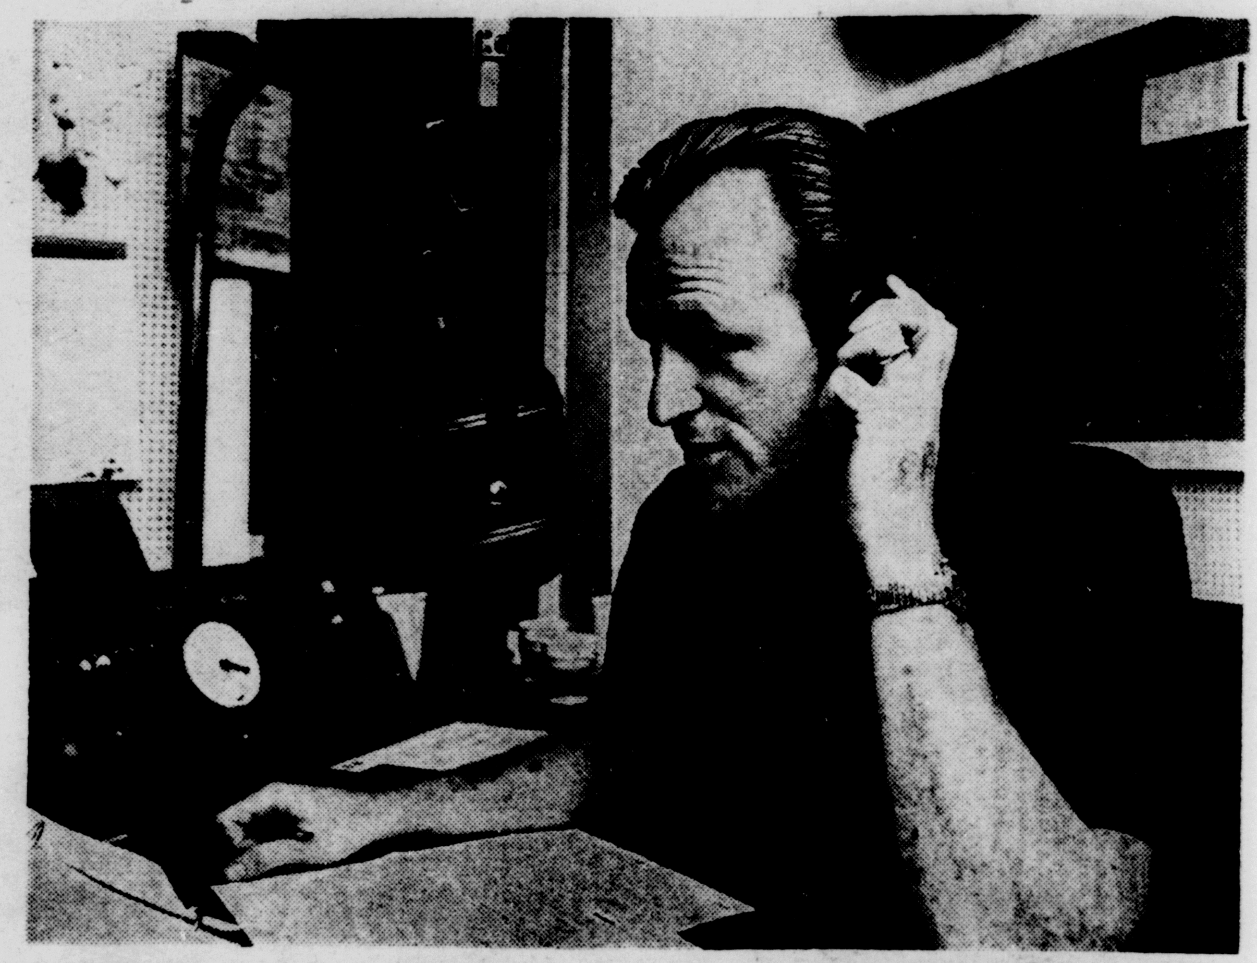
KSFO's Gene Nelson, long time Sausalito resident, is considered one of the country's top radio personalities. As such, he has had his share of celebrity interviews, record pluggers and oddball happenings.

But one of his major interests has always been with the young. Earlier in his career he was with a "top 10" radio station catering much to teenagers.

HIS POPULARITY was so tremendous that he won a number of radio awards, the teenagers dubbed him "Emperor Nelson" — a title which, to some extent, remains with him to this day — and even reached some sort of peak of glory when he was asked to host the Beatles during their first Bay Area appearance at Candlestick Park.

"Only with a top 40 station," Nelson recently explained, "You have to give the impression of being single, under and available. This wasn't me and I never tried to give that impression. I think the kids respected me more because of my just being honest with them."

WHILE HIS range of appeal since joining KSFO has increased to an even wider listening audience, his work and interests with youngsters still remain. As an example, he and his wife, Barbara, working on behalf of their church, recently inaugurated the Sausalito Youth Center which has proven extremely popular. His wife worked there almost constantly until just recently when a full-time director was hired. Nelson is an elder in the Sausalito Presbyterian Church.



AT WORK Gene Nelson of Sausalito follows his philosophy of being himself, after earlier attempts at playing a part while at the mike.

Asked about today's youth with their anxieties and problems, Nelson offers an added bit of philosophy: "I don't ask what are the kids coming to) I ask where are they coming from?"

NELSON'S RADIO career began at Syracuse University and, like most personalities in front of the public, he attempted various styles. "I thought for a time I'd use a comic approach. Then I became "Mr. Sincere." One day I said to myself, "Who am I?" I never felt right playing parts. At that time it hit me like the well known thunderboldt. Just like the old saying: Honesty is the best policy. Since then I've always been just myself."

And, since being just "himself," Nelson's fame and fortune have soared. He has been seen on TV commercials, modeling, often serving as m.c. at anything from fashion to talent shows and even gaining a small role in a Julie Christie movie filmed here simply because, "I'm a Julie Christie fan."

Somewhat unique in broad-

casting, Neslon majored in "being a disc jockey." As he added, "This was almost an unheard of happening.

"Most people think being a deejay is an attempt to find a backdoor into show business. Others majored in radio with the idea of becoming eventually a program director or a station owner."

"IT SEEMS the radio bug hit Nelson early in life, at the age of 13 when he was interviewed on a local station in Zanesville, Ohio. At that moment, he knew exactly his goal.

Nelson worked his way through Syracuse at a local radio station where he served as all night man. "I managed to do my homework while playing some pretty long records in those days," he said. The home work obviously paid off because Nelson graduated Magna Cum Laude in Radio-TV in 1959.

His philosophy of "always be yourself" took shape almost with his first interview. Artie Shaw had come to town and Nelson spent hours reading data on Shaw trying to anticipate the questions he thought his listeners would want answered.

HE TOOK great pride in thinking how original and unusual the questions seemed. Until he started talking with Shaw who had heard all of the questions "at least 10,000 times before."

Nelson, Barbara and five-year-old Christopher Todd — and a family dog appropriately named Dawg — are an active Marin family. Gene recently appeared in a Tennessee Williams play presented by the Mill Valley Performing Art Center and Barbara received acclaim for her recent role in the Ross Valley production of "A Thousands Clowns."

In addition, the family likes to golf, ski and have recently started taking skin diving lessons from Sausalito's Jerry Thompson.

Nelson, who is also an outstanding musical historian, also recently completed an acting course at the University of California and was accepted by the American Conservatory Theater. But his hours at KSFO, 8 p.m. to midnight, conflicted with therir performance schedule.

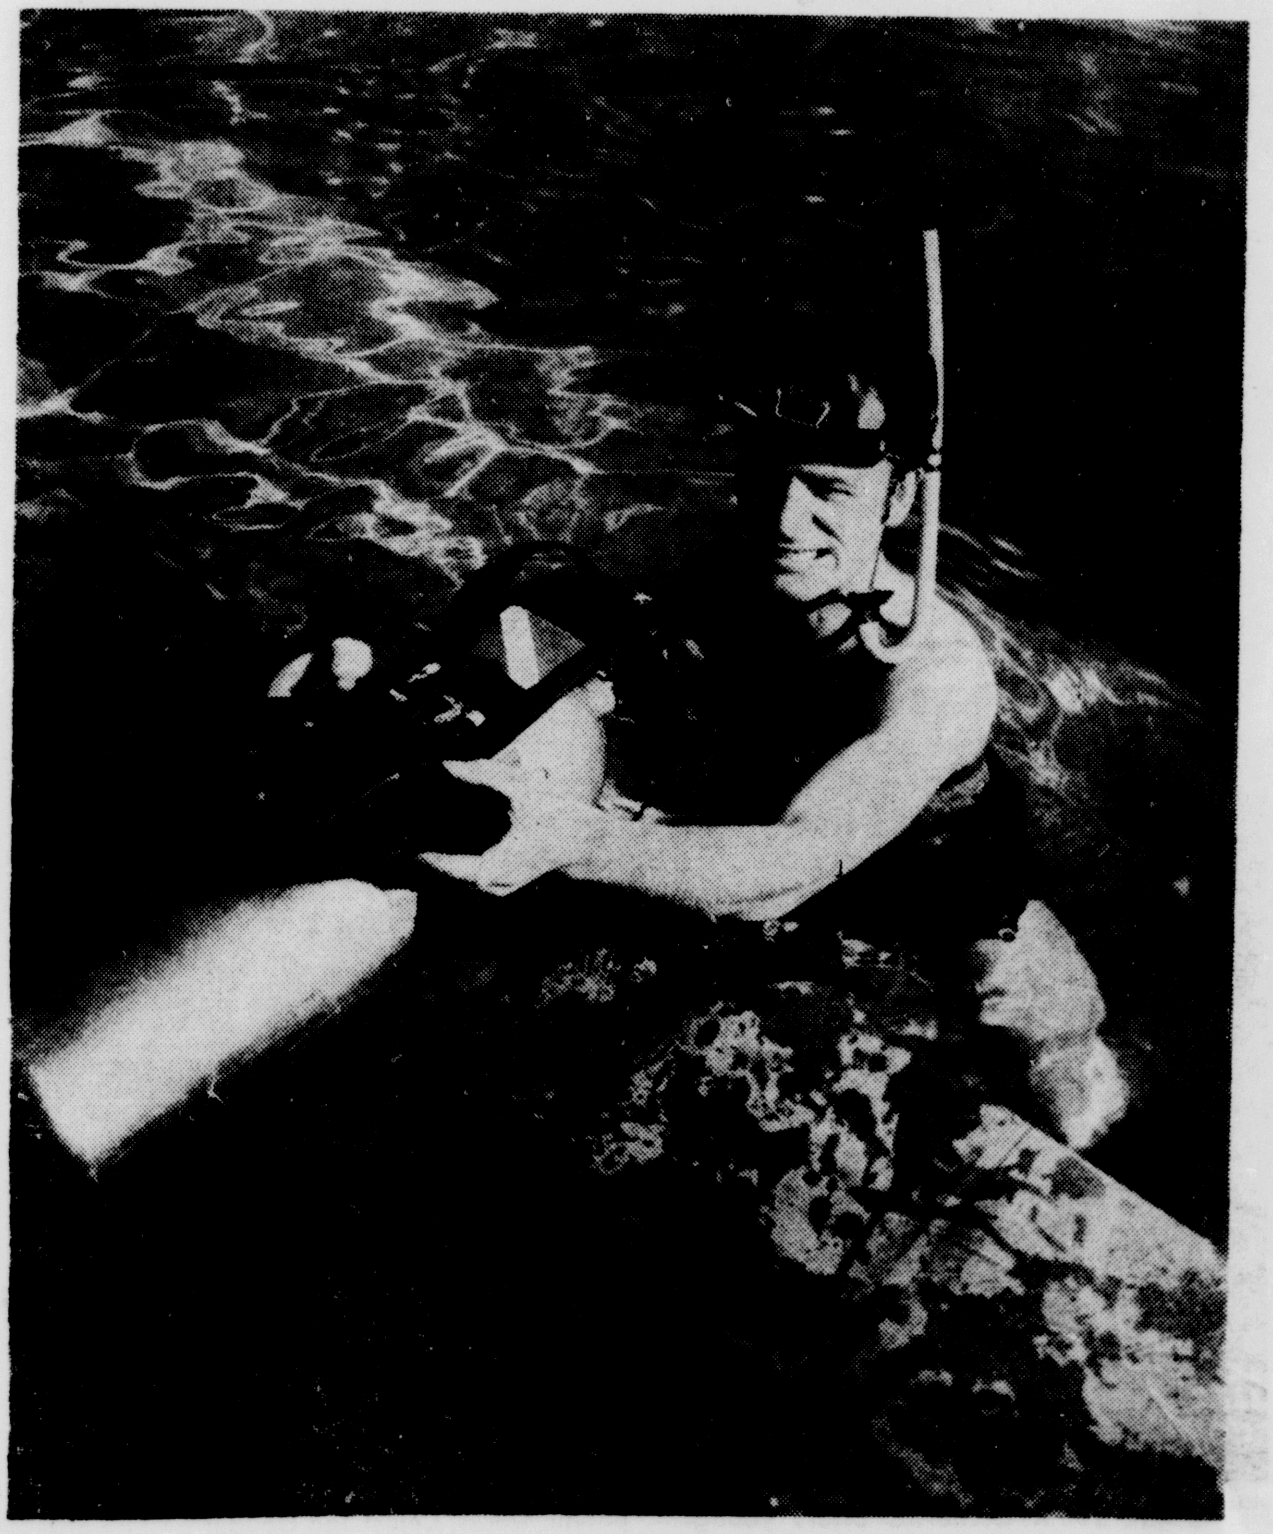
As if his schedule weren't full enough, Nelson has started teaching a course in announcing at the College of San Mateo three times a week.

HE RECENTLY conducted a contest where he "gave himself away" for a day. Among the winners were a Marin woman who wanted him to narrate a movie on conservation, a teacher in Hayward who asked him to teach her sixth grade class on civics, and a group who wanted him to be master of ceremonies at a fashion show.

ONE OF the Nelson families better guarded secrets — although KSFO listeners are aware of it — is the fact that he calls his wife, on the air, "Bubbles." It seems many years ago they both worked at the same radio station in New York where there was a strict rule against employees dating each other. Nelson, on the air, would say, "I'm going out with Bubbles tonight." This was the signal for Barbara to get ready for a date.

But as for working with youth, Nelson summed it all up by saying, "In getting along with the young, always be honest yourself. You don't have to always agree with the kids but be truthful. They'll appreciate your honesty. I've had scores of phone calls from teenagers about music, clothes, language and I've always given them the most honest answer possible."

That might be just the right tip for everyone to follow.



PHYSICAL ACTIVITY doesn't faze Nelson, who is taking skin diving lessons in Sausalito from Jerry Thompson, after trying his hand at golf and skiing.

SELECTING TUNES for his show, Nelson reflects his wide interest in music.

Marin Symphony Guild Scope Broad

Expanded Program Planned With New Auditorium Near

BY MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Few people in Marin, especially newcomers, have a complete understanding of the full scope of activities in connection with the Marin Symphony Orchestra.

While the Marin Symphony Guild is conducting its 18th annual membership campaign, a review is in order of these activities and the history and ambitious plans of the most comprehensive music program in Marin County.

The main purpose of the Guild is the support of the Marin Symphony Orchestra, founded in 1951 when the Orchestra numbered 30 players under the direction of Gaston Usigli, founder of the Carmel Bach Festival.

Since then the Orchestra has grown to 75 professional, semi-professional and amateur musicians under the baton of Sandor Salgo, professor of music at Stanford University and conductor of the Carmel Bach Festival. He also conducts the Stanford and San Jose Symphony Orchestras and is music director of the Stanford Opera. He has conducted the Marin Symphony since 1956.

ORIGINAL FOUNDERS of the Orchestra, Mr. and Mrs. Barry Boland, Mrs. Lucien Mitchell, Mrs. J. Paul Oppenheim and Mrs. Ralph B. Dewey are still active as players and/or supporters.

The governing body of the Marin Symphony is a 30-member board of directors chosen from the Orchestra and the community.

Mrs. Robert L. Schultz, current president, was also president from 1958 to 1960 and founded in 1960 the Marin Symphony Auxiliary, which has charge of all social events of the Guild.

In addition to the Orchestra the Guild sponsors a wide variety of other programs.

THE MARIN YOUTH ORCHESTRA, now in its 15th year, is composed of many talented oung instrumentalists in Marin several elementary schools. Its several elementary schools.Its members are required to leave the Orchestra on graduation from high school so that each year new young musicians are able to participate.

The Orchestra has been directed since its inception by Hugo Rinaldo, one of Marin's outstanding music educators. An accomplished violinist, Rinaldi is director of music for the San Rafael School District and conducts the Marin Chamber Orchestra.

WORKSHOP FOR STRINGS: In order to prepare young string players for admission to the Youth Orchestra a workshop for strings for elementary school and high school students is conducted by Robert L. Jacobson of the San Rafael School District Music Department.

MUSIC FOR MINORS: The Guild's Music for Minors program, inactive last year, will be re-instated this year. This consists of educational and entertaining musical programs for elementary school children, and the purpose is to acquaint the young with symphonic music and demonstrate the structure and instrumentation of symphony, using the Marin Symphony programs as the basis.

SCHOLARSHIP FUND: A memorial scholarship fund has been established to build a perpetual fund for an annual scholarship of $500 for advanced young musicians. The fund is being built and maintained by memorial donations, bequests and special contributions.

POPS CONCERTS: Recent pops concerts have been such outstanding successes that it is hoped they can be scheduled regularly as spring and fall events at the Marin Art and Garden Center. The next one will be presented on Sunday, May 31.

MRS. RALPH B. DEWEY is the president of the Marin Symphony Auxiliary, which is in charge of the social activities of the Guild.

Marin Symphony Orchestra Grows To 75 Musicians

Music For Minors, Scholarships Youth Orchestra Among Activities

three annual concerts at one of the Marin Country Clubs, and a Symphony Dinner Party will also be held at one of these clubs.

Inspired by critical acclaim of its symphony Orchestra and the magnificent new Veterans Memorial Auditorium soon to be available at the Civic Center, the Guild is undertaking a major expansion program. Expected within five years is a six-concert instead of three-concert series; two annual pops concerts; three instead of two Youth Orchestra concerts; and additional musical offerings for the young.

Among innovations this year is the hiring as part-time manager of Marcelle B. McCoy, manager of the annual Marin Art and Garden Fair, whose office is shared by the Marin Symphony.

For the first time this year, since seating facilities in the new auditorium will be limited, concert tickets are not included with Guild memberships.

ADVANTAGES of Guild membership are (1) first call on season tickets and reserved seats for both the Symphony and Youth Orchestra concerts (2) invitation to the annual Symphony Dinner Party and concert preview luncheons (3) admission to dress rehearsals of the Symphony Orchestra and (4) printing of names of associate members and above on all Symphony concert programs.

Memnership classifications are Friend, $5; Associate Member, $10; Sustaining Member, $25; Sponsor, $50; Patron, $100; and Benefactor, $500 and over. All memberships are fully tax deductible.

Until the new auditorium is available regular concerts of the subscription series will be performed in the College of Marin gymnasium on Sundays at 7:30 p.m. Concert dates are Nov. 30, Feb. 8 and April 26.

YOUTH ORCHESTRA concerts at San Rafael High School auditorium will be presented on Jan. 25 and May 10.

Further information about Symphony Guild memberships, for which the campaign will run through Nov. 3, and series ticket subscriptions may be obtained by calling the Marin Symphony office at the Marin Art and Garden Center.

The Marin Symphony Orchestra is in every sense a community orchestra. While a few players are professional musicians who also play with the San Francisco Symphony (Jean and Lucien Michell, Carl Modell and Michael Gerling), most are non-professionals who live and work in Marin County.

FOR SOME it is very much a family affair. They include the husband-wife teams of Jean(cello) and Lucien (viola) Mitchell; Charles (violin) and Robaline (piano) Meacham; Barry (violin) and Alice (cello) Boland; and Saul (violin) and Mona Cello) Dubman, whose daughter, Madeline, (flute) formerly played and soloed with the Marin Youth Orchestra and now plays with the Marin Symphony.

William Barnes (bass) has two daughters, Emilie (violin) and Julie (harp) who play with the Marin Youth Orchestra, which his wife manages.

Among those who teach music in schools are Lynn Dowdey (tympani) Dixie School District; Marjorie Whittelsy (violin) Corte Madera; Jane Pokorney (violin) Reed School, Tiburon; Robert Greenwood (bass) Tamalpais High School; James Chesnut (trumpet) San Francisco; Tod Fleming (percussion) Mill Valley; Jean Stevens (principal oboist) San Rafael. Charles Meachan, who is assistant conductor of the Marin Symphony, is a music instructor at the College of Marin.

Players can also be recognized in Marin wearing other

ONE OF innovations of the Marin Symphony Guild this year is the hiring of Marcelle B. McCoy, manager of the annual Marin Art and Garden Fair, as a part-time manager and the establishment of headquarters in the Fair office at the Center. Mrs. McCoy and Mrs. Robert L. Schultz, president of the Marin Symphony Guild (identify right to left) look at plans of the Veterans Memorial Auditorium at the Civic Center, where Marin Symphony concerts will be held when it is completed.

10 REASONS WHY

OWNING YOUR HOME IS YOUR FINEST SECURITY

Your home in Marin is a family investment that pays off!

When you buy a home, you're adding to your capital. You're investing in your future, the future of your family, and the future of the home itself.

Your investment pays off in many ways:

The satisfaction of ownership, the pleasure of watching your home grow as your family grows. Because, in effect, a home is a living thing, it responds to your care and attention.

The more effort you put into it, the more satisfaction you get out of it. It becomes your family "castle."

It repays your interest—with interest. Steadily increasing equity in a home is one of the most rewarding forms of painless, automatic saving. Everything you do to make your home more livable makes it more valuable, too.

HERE ARE 10 IMPORTANT ADVANTAGES OF HOME OWNERSHIP

1. Security
The safe feeling that comes with ownership, and the knowledge that your home is a safeguard against inflation. If prices go up, so does the value of your property.

2. Investment
Payments on your mortgage mean you are buying something, not just paying rent. You keep owning more and more.

3. Tax advantage
Your real estate taxes and the interest on your mortgage or land contract are deductible when you figure your income tax.

4. Financial independence
More people have started on the road to financial independence through home ownership than in any other way.

5. Standing and credit
You are a solid part of the community. You feel that you "belong" and home ownership gives you substantial credit rating.

6. Environment
Your children have a proper neighborhood in which to grow up. Your family finds itself among responsible home owners with background much like your own. You establish roots.

7. A cash equity
A well-bought home is like a savings account.

8. Character development
Responsibilities of ownership develop business acumen and appreciation of financial independence . . . self reliance.

9. Peace of mind
Knowledge that provision has been made for your family . . . and that they can share in your pride of ownership.

10. Satisfaction
Along with the other advantages, there are many things that make life worthwhile—vegetables from your own garden . . . the chance for do-it-yourself projects, large or small . . . the backyard barbecue . . . the picture of your home on your Christmas cards. These heartwarming things are a very real part of owning your home.

Writing Animal Characters Takes Tricky Bit Of Doing

By DON KEOWN

WILD GOOSE, BROTHER GOOSE by Mel Ellis; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 159 pages, $4.95.

WINE . . . WISDOM . . . & WHIMSY edited by Sidney B. Taylor; Winepress, 168 pages, $6.95.

One of the trickiest things about writing a novel with animals as the chief characters is the differentiation between instinct and reasoning.

Man at least likes to think of himself as a reasoning creature, and he tends therefore to endow other animals with the same attribute, sometimes to a degree that is injurious to the authenticity of the book.

Even such a skilled practitioner of the genre as Mel Ellis is unable to avoid this fault completely.

Duke the gander, hero of his "Wild Goose, Brother Goose," sometimes seems more human than waterfowl. This, however, occurs only periodically, and for the most part, Ellis is freer than most of his fellow craftsmen from this confusion.

He also avoids sticky sentimentality without in any way diminishing the appeal of Duke and the other wildlife that populate his book.

Duke is a Canada goose, an aristocrat among North America's waterfowl, and Ellis follows him through two years of his eventful life: It is a saga of a whole series of disasters of varying sizes — dogs, traps, guns, wolves, hunger, a tornado, blizzard. They cost Duke his mate and his offspring. But somehow, with an indomitable will, Duke himself survived it all. And in the end he guides a wounded female goose through ice and snow to safety, and in so doing seems to gain some kind of inner release from responsibility that at last wins for him his complete and natural freedom.

Of Duke's many foes, man is by far the most menacing.

Listen to this description of the carnage inflicted on opening day of the season by hunters hiding along the boundaries of a protected refuge:

"As was their habit, the geese began morning flights at dawn, and lead like a blizzard swept the perimeter of the marsh. Armadas of geese wilted, and the voices of terrified birds was a thin violin string of sound across the drum beat of guns. They fell like flies caught in a lethal spray.

"Birds with broken wings plummeted. Geese absorbing fatal body shots set their wings and sailed to burst their breasts on the hard ground. Some came down like rags. Others turned end over end, craning their necks. Geese climbed and dived and sailed and fell in every conceivable aerial attitude as flocks disintegrated.

"Some families rallied, only to be blown apart again. Distraught geese followed fallen mates straight into the guns.

"For 15 minutes shots crackled like the sounds of a fire running through a forest. Then it was as though the geese remembered and the shooting diminished and there were only sporadic explosions, as among the ashes when the fire has passed.

"The great mass of geese settled back into the refuge. Except for the persistently mournful cries of widow and widower, the flock was mostly silent. Only the single geese remained aloft, reluctant to end their search. And sometimes youngsters, with no parents to guide them, flew into the guns."

Sounds like marvelous sport, doesn't it! Great fun!

Ellis, writing for all ages and from a rich background of nature knowledge, has followed his earlier "Run, Rainey, Run" and "Softly Roars the Lion" with yet another animal novel of exceptional merit and meaning.

THE PURPLE Thumb is a bi-monthly magazine for connoisseurs and students of the grape, launched last year at Winepress Publishing Co., Box 4016, Portland Oregon.

The Thumb deals with such subjects as recipes using or to be used with wines, the making of wines and beers, viticulture, wine lore and etiquette, etc.

The magazine does not take itself or its subject at all seriously maintaining a lighthearted tone. Nevertheless, it is well designed and well written.

Now Sidney B. Taylor and Ken Martino, editor and art director respectively of The Purple Thumb, have wrapped up the first eight issues of their publication in their entirety, placed them between some handsome hardcovers, and served them up as a book under the title "Wine . . . Wisdom . . . & Whimsy."

Unquestionably, there is thus included a lot of reading fun, ranging from how to make pineapple and barley wines to the merits of different wine glasses, from wine-buying tips to hors d'oeuvres recipes.

Yet, just bundling up a bunch of magazines, covers, advertisements and all, seems a rather loose way of editing and publishing, no matter how attractive the packaging. What you winde up with is nothing more nor less than the bound volumes of a magazine, although in a somewhat more convenient format.

Taylor and Martino, it would seem, might have gone to the trouble of exercising a bit of selectivity, at least culling out those letters to the editor that simply praise the magazine or subject checks for subscriptions. It would have contributed to the professionalism of what is, nonetheless, a most readable, entertaining and useful book.

SO YOU'D like to be the local version of Bob Hope at your service club or the life of the party with your social set?

Robert Orben, a veteran author of humor and joke books and a syndicated columnist, has assembled some 2,000 short quips by topics for speakers and others under the title "The Ad-Libber's Handbook" (Doubleday, $4.95)

Zingers like: "I've got only one question about those short dresses. How can you tell if they shrink?"

And: "I've got an idea that's gonna make me a fortune. Sen-Sen flavored booze."

At that, the stuff no worse than the material in a monologue by Hope or most of the other stand-up comedians. But then Hope is a national institution whose public apparently will forgive him anything. The rest of us hardly qualify as such, and we would be letting fly with one-liners like "Things are getting so bad even the muggers won't go out alone" at our won risk, which might be considerable.

HELL'S BELLE by Joan Fleming; Ives Washburn; 224 pages; $3.95. Reviewed by Mary Leydecker.

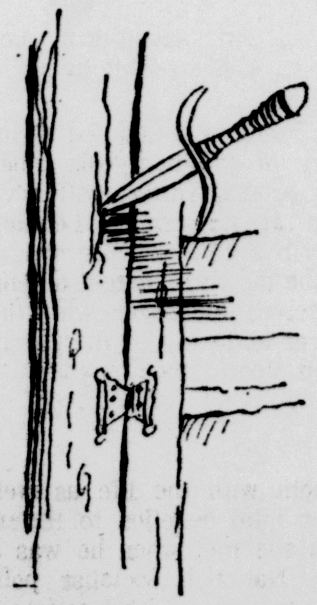
This chilling little tale of an 18-year-old Parisian girl whose main object in life is to find someone to kill her stepmother for her.

Being a lovely young thing, Alexandra has no trouble in ensnaring an Englishman she calls Georges in the real and imagined events of her life.

They met in a Paris bar where Georges steadies her after she downs six Chartreuses.

From there they go on to attempted suicide, murder and all sorts of sordid events interspersed love-making in such settings as a cemetery and attic.

Miss Fleming can certainly write, and her subject matter may be meat for many. The ending is suitably surprising and dramatic, and while the book is pretty sick, it's not as bad as the dust jacket — a hideous thing in orange and magenta.



THE VENOM BUSINESS, by John Lange, World Publishing, 310 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

Not all venom is in the snake business. Charles Raynaud knows about snakes and the business of putting them in false-bottomed boxes so the treasures of Mexico can be smuggled to rich customers.

One rich customer leads to another and to another hazardous job, and for awhile in the world of booze, dope and miniskirts in London, Raynaud seems almost to lead the life of a double agent — and as such he's doubly sure of ending up dead.

On one side is a glamorous former French singer and on the other her 24-year-old playboy step-son each trying to do the other out of a big inheritance. If Raynaud plays his cards right, for one side or the other he's bound to walk away with a chunk for himself. In a novel strewn with sex and narcotics games, cruelty, cowardice and crudity, about the only thing that's worth hanging onto is the suspense and there's plenty of it.

SOLACE WITH SARCASM IN A NEW COLLECTION

"A Calendar of Consolation" (Funk & Wagnalls, $3.95) is a collection of quotations selected by Leonard Woolf from a variety of sources, all dealing with solace, but in a diversity of ways with the sardonic predominating:

Some examples:

"By night an atheist half believes a God." Young—"Night Thoughts."

"Important people call their amusements business." St. Augustine—"Confessions."

"Repentance is but want of power to sin." Dryden—"Palomon and Arcite."

"We always have been, we are, and I hope that we always shall be detested in France." Duke of Wellington—"Letter to Lady Wilton."

"It is a disturbing truth that even undertakers die sometimes." Arnold Bennett—"In a New Bottle."

"I will praise any man that will praise me." Shakespeare—"Antony and Cleopatra."

"Society is now one polished horde, Formed of two mighty tribes, the bores and bored." Byron—"Don Juan."

Some New Books For Junior Readers

"A Baby Starts to Grow" (Crowell, $3.50) is one of a number of "facts-of-life" books to be published in recent months for the very young children.

New York newspaperman Paul Showers begins where he left off with his earlier "Before You Were a Baby," the story of conception, to tell, with the aid of illustrator Rosalind Fry, how the pre-born infant develops in the mother's womb.

The book ends with the delivery of the baby and his start of a life of his own.

It is part of the publisher's Let's Read-and-Find-Out Science Series. The presentation is frank, yet in good taste. The decision as to whether the very young are ready for this kind of information, and whether such a book is the best source, or a helpful tool in making clear the explanation, will have to rest with each set of parents. But if the answer is "yes" then "A Baby Starts to Grow" is well-done, responsible and well executed.

Some other new books for the juniors:

The lighthouse has always been something of a symbol of adventure for young Americans. Robert Carse, seaman, officer and yachtsman as well as writer, keeps alive the romantic aura while also being sound scientifically and historically in his "Keepers of the Lights," the factual story of the lighthouse service since pre-Revolutionary times. Carse spotlights the men who have operated the lights and thus gives his history a human interest base. California stations, of course, figure in the book.

Another history for young readers is "The Hudson" (McGraw-Hill, $5.50) by Manuel Komroff, telling the story of one of America's great rivers. Konroff traces the role the Hudson has played in the development of our East. And perhaps, at the conclusion, he is overly optimistic in assessing the present fondition of the badly polluted stream. But the book makes good reading.

When his widowed mother re-weds, young Toby Steel is left behind in Wyoming to live with a grandfather he has never seen. The old man proves to be a recluse and eccentric. How the lad and his grandparent resolve their differences and find understanding is the subject of Katharine Newlin Burt's well-written "One Silver Spur" (Funk & Wagnalls, $3.25) for boys about 10, 11 and 12. There's adventure to help hold their interest.

"Choicy" (Funk & Wagnalls, $3.50) by Margaret and George Ogan is an adventure yarn flavored by the sea for boys 14 and under. "Choicy" Jones, a youngster who dreams about ships, and his grandfather tackle the herculean task of rebuilding and refloating an old, abandoned schooner. Some schoolmates and eventually the fathers help out. And the tale reaches a rousing conclusion on the High Seas.

An exciting chapter in American history furnishes the background for Margaret Goff Clark's "Danger at Niagara" (Funk & Wagnalls, $3.50). In the war year 1813 young Homan Reed is caught up in the events along the Canadian border. The pace is fast and the setting authentic.

"The Closed Circle" (Funk & Wagnalls, $3.50) by Corinne Gerson is a sensatively told story of a young girl who is determined to bridget he gap between her chums in a Pennsylvania town and young Hope Miller who belongs to a family that sticks strictly to the old Pennsylvania Dutch ways and who has therefore been ostracized. The novel has a moral, but it makes its point against prejudice without becoming too preachy. And it presents an interesting picture of life in an interesting region.

In "Say Something" (Harper, $3.50) by Mary Stolz, with pictures by Edward Frascino, a little boy asks questions about his world, then provides his own answers with the help of his imagination, an easel, paints and brush. For 4 to 8-year-olds, it has strong appeal for the youngster with an inquisitive mind and a creative outlook.

Random House has published two more suspense novels for young mystery fans in its Alfred Hitchcock and the Three Investigators series—"The Mystery of the Moaning Cave" and "The Mystery of the Screaming Clock" ($1.95 each), texts by William Arden and Robert Arthur. With introductions by Hitchcock, the two books follow the pattern of their predecessors in the series, with lots of action and excitement.

"Francois and the Langouste" (Little, Brown, $3.75) by Ethel Sadowsky takes its young readers, 6 to 8, to a different culture — that of Martinque in the Caribbean. Francois, it seems, is habitually late to school. Too many distractions. It provides him with adventures, but it almost costs him the privilege of attending the school picnic. As they follow Francois through his busy day, small Californians will learn a lot about the way of life of their counterparts in a far different setting.

"Goodbye, Dove Square" (Little, Brown, $4.50) by Janet McNeill brings back the adventure-prone young characters of "The Battle of St. George Without." Now the old neighborhood of Dove Square is being razed, and its residents moved to new apartments. Matt is not happy with the change. But before Dove Square is completely gone, there is still time for some new advantures in the supposedly demolished or deserted old houses. Mrs. Janet has made her children somewhat older than in her previous book, and has deepened their emotions accordingly.

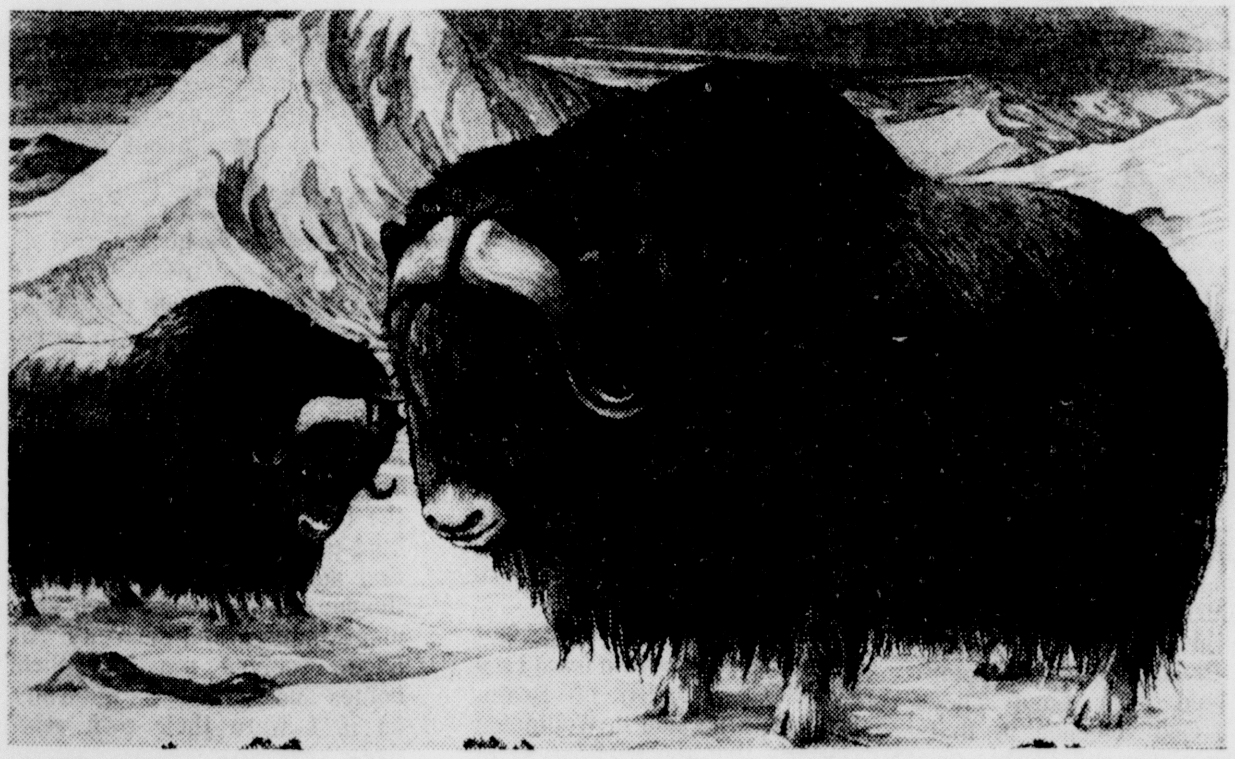
In "The Buffalo Soldiers in the Indian Wars" (McGraw-Hill) Fairfax Downey tells for young buffs of western history the story of the 10th U.S. Colored Cavalry that only recently has begun to receive the attention it deserves. Old Remington prints and line drawings by Harold James serve as illustrations. Downey, author of many, many books for juniors, uses a style best suited to children in the upper grades with some knowledge of and interest in military history of the period. For them, the story will be an exciting one.



A STURDY BEAST is the musk ox, one of the many depicted in "The Animal Atlas of the World," a fund of information about animals, common and uncommon, and their behavior.

Animal Atlas An Eye Treat

ANIMAL ATLAS OF THE WORLD by Dr. E. L. Jordan; Hammond, 224 pages, $14.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Here's a treat for the eyes and a tonic for the mind.

A big and beautiful book, "Animal Atlas of the World" should enjoy brisk patronage as a Christmas gift volume. But it is also a most useful and stimulating reference work.

The author, Dr. E. L. Jordan of Rutgers University, also wrote Hammond's earlier "Nature Atlas of America" as well as college texts and other books on ecology.

"Animal Atlas" took him and his camera to six continents to observe both the common and uncommon creatures. He researched extensively. And his findings represent a treasure trove of information about animals and their behavior, exploding myths but giving new factual substance to other habits and attributes just as marvelous. In transmitting his data, he has avoided the professional tone and has written in an engaging and entertaining manner.

A roster of gifted nature artists have supplemented his efforts by supplying some absolutely splendid color illustrations. New, up-to-date maps and charts are also included.

It is a hefty book and a showy one. But it is much more than just a superficial volume loaded with pretty pictures. It should stand for a long time as a sound, reliable resource tool for students and adults alike who are attracted by animals and who are interested in learning more about them.

Eva Braun Sometimes Bored During Life With Hitler

EVA BRAUN, Hitler's Mistress, by Nerin E. Gun. Meredith Press. 300 pages. $6.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

In recent years much has been written about happenings behind the scenes in the Nazi high command and now comes a book on the life and times of Eva Braun. The author, a European journalist who spent some time in the concentration camps, has interviewed many of the living who had known both Hitler and Eva, as well as her relatives who are still living in Germany.

The result is a detailed social history of the bourgeois inner circle around Hitler, with Eva Braun at its center. Leading far from a glittering life of luxury, the top Nazis fought among themselves for favor with the Fuehrer and endured the poorly cooked food when invited to Berchtesgaden. Eva's diaries and letters and the memories of her sisters bring out her boredom with the life as well as her total devotion to Hitler, whom she met when he was a rising National Socialist politician and she a shy assistant to photographer Heinrich Hoffmann in Munich.

Hoffmann became the official Nazi photographer and Hitler met the young Eva, fresh from convent schooling, on his visits to the studio. The story gives a vividly intimate picture of her unusual, sometimes isolated life to the time when both perished together in the Berlin bunker while the Russian Army surged forward.

Photographs include many from Eva's own scrapbook, previously unpublished.

THE FRIENDLINESS of New Zealanders, noted by travel writers and tourists alike is evident at the South Fiord, Lake Te Annau, Southland as they gather at lakeside to chat with visitors. The scenery is impressive, but most travelers remember the warmth of the people.

New Zealand's Attraction—People

By MERVYN CULL

What is the greatest tourist attraction in New Zealand? Rotorua? The Bay of Islands? Mt. Cook? Milford Sound?

None of them! The answer — and a wealth of evidence gathered over the years supports the view — is New Zealanders themselves.

No matter what reservations they may have about other facets of New Zealand, few overseas visitors seem to leave without taking with them an almost embarrassingly favorable opinion of New Zealanders, their friendliness and their hospitality.

IN A recent interview, the U.S. Ambassador to New Zealand, J. F. Henning, was asked: "What aspects of life in New Zealand do you consider would influence Americans who might be deciding whether to visit, or to emigrate to New Zealand?"

He replied: "Your free society. Your social equality. Your scenic glories. Your people. Above all your people."

If Mr. Henning likes New Zealanders, we have certainly given Americans the impression that we like them.

FOR EXAMPLE, Eldon Landback of Sacramento, who recently led a Second Marine Division Pilgrimage to New Zealand, made the following comments during a reception: "The written history of the Second Marine Division has one chapter entitled 'The Land They Adored'. One sentence in that chapter clearly states our thoughts when it says 'It is doubtful if any alien troops ever received a warmer or more sincerely friendly welcome than the Second Marine Division got in New Zealand'."

The Marines are currently planning another pilgrimage to New Zealand in 1973, which will be the Division's third.

In his book "All the Best in the South Pacific," the American travel writer Sydney Clark says: "If hospitality is a gauge of character, the Kiwis rate very high, for their welcome of foreigners is warm, sincere, unquenchable . . . I am happy to say also that unless New Zealanders are a nation of skilled actors, they like Americans. This I mention because it is not ever thus in all lands."

ANOTHER AMERICAN travel writer, Myra Waldo, writing in "Myra Waldo's Travel Guide to the Orient and the Pacific," says of New Zealand: "There is no hint of servility in the bearing and manner of a waiter at a restaurant, a taxi-driver or the clerk behind the shop counter."

"Instead there is a feeling of friendliness, in meeting as an equal, and then, as a natural outgrowth, the desire to please you."

Dr. Richard Pilant, historical specialist for the Canadian Tourist Association of Brantford, Ontario, said in Wellington recently that the friendliness of New Zealanders should receive much more emphasis when the other aspects of the country were extolled.

NEW ZEALAND, he said, did not blow its horn enough. "People here seem to be genuinely interested in meeting and talking to people from other countries." In other countries, people were more concerned with extracting the tourists' dollars.

It may be argued, of course, that diplomats, travel writers and tourist officials would, in the normal course of events, receive a degree of preferential treatment not accorded to Joe Doaks, the storekeeper from Greengrass, Wyo. or to Mrs. Freda Smith, retired postmistress from Little Muddling-on-the-Moor, Yorkshire.

But the experiences of tourists and visitors from many countries and from all strata of society, and the impressions of New Zealand which they take away with them, seem to be remarkable similar.

FOR INSTANCE, in a recent letter in the New Zealand Herald, Eva B. Laker, of Brighton, Sussex, said: "I have enjoyed the hospitality of the New Zealand people, but it is difficult to find adequate words to express thanks and praise for such genuine kindness and sincerity. All have received me into their homes and families as naturally as if I were their own relatives."

As part of his personal philosophy on the tourist industry, the general manager of the Tourist and Publicity Department, R. S. Austin, has long recognized the value of human relationships.

"To the majority of travelers," he says, "the most rewarding and enjoyable part of visiting another country is meeting the people of that country."

"I DO not mean so much the idea of host panels at every point, although this does have great merit. I mean the friendly and personal contact with people the tourists deal with during their stay. People like you and me."

Tourist officials believe that by telling New Zealanders just how much spontaneous gestures of friendliness and hospitality mean to overseas visitors, they are helping fully to realize our greatest tourist asset.

Oroville Dam Spot For Fun

Motorists and sportsmen have a new place to go this year Oroville, the historic Gold Rush town at the foot of the fabulous upper Feather River country, 70 miles north of Sacramento.

The attraction is the big, new Oroville Dam and the various boating, fishing and camping playgrounds that have sprung up around the dam and the huge reservoir nehind it, reports the California State Automobile Association.

Everything about this dam is monumental. It is the highest earth-filled dam in the world, the highest dam in the United Statesl and the keystone of history's most ambitious water development project. At 770 feet—44 feet higher than giant Hoover Dam—it is as tall as a 62-story building and as imposing as any of the nearby hills.

WITH MORE than 167 miles of shoreline and a 15,500 acre surface, Lake Oroville is a recreational bonanza. Stretching back from the dam, the blue waters of the lake lap at wooded slopes and surge against rocky canyon walls that occasionally soar up likethe sheer walls of a fjord.

Already boatmen have found the waters of the lake ideal for sailing, motorboating and water skiing, and campers and hikers have found new shores to breathe the sweet, pure air of the great outdoors.

Three recreational areas and a 13-lane boat ramp and boar service area at one end of themile-long crest of the dam are completed.

ONE OF the recreational areas, a grassy picnic park, complete with two-lane boat ramp and dressing rooms for swimmers, is located on the shore of the North Forebay (reached by driving north from Oroville on Highway 70 and turning off at the Garden Drive interchange). Another with a four-lane boat ramp and picnic area is on the South Forebay, three miles west of Oroville on Grand Avenue.

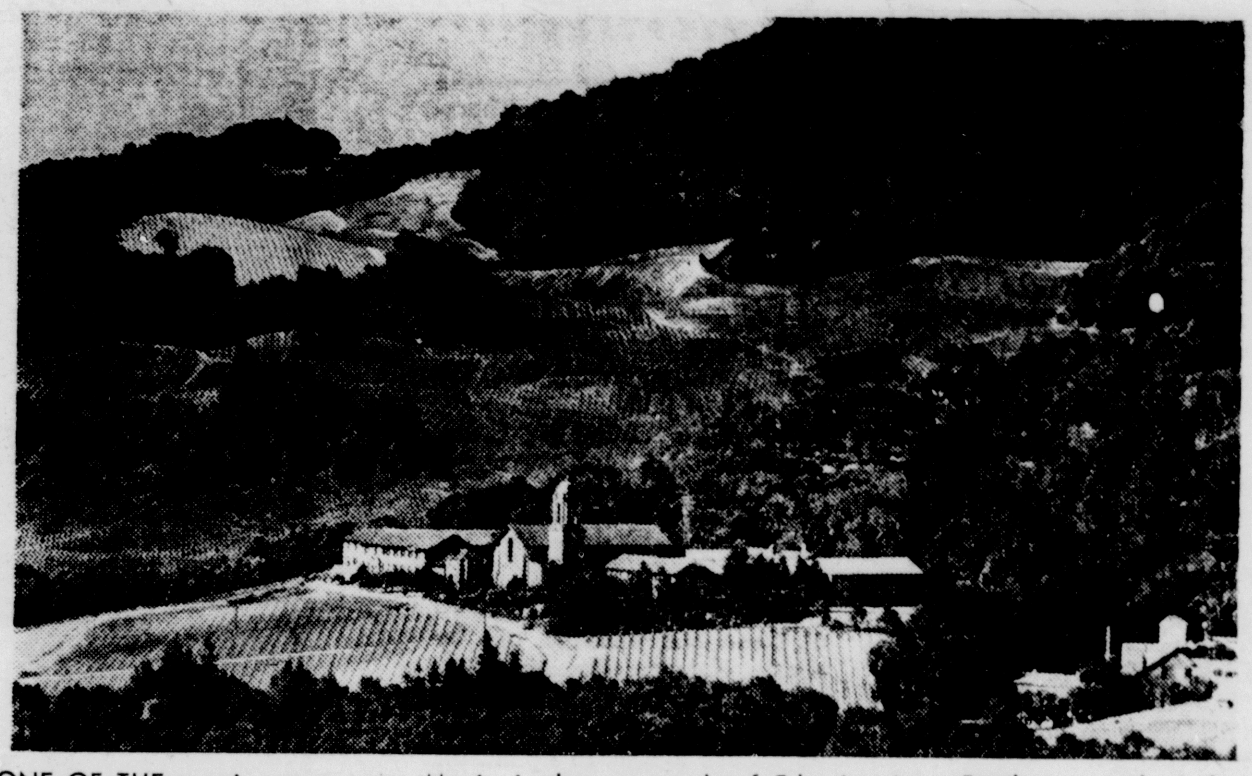
The third, Loafer Creek, is the largest, and the only one do far located on Lake Oroville. It is also the one with the most facilities—33 camping sites. Located in historic, thickwooded Bidwell Canyon, Loafer Creek is reached via the Oroville-Quincy highway.

ALTHOUGH most all outdoorsmen will find something enjoyable about Lake Oroville, fishermen in particular will be enthusiastic. Over a million fish, including sturgeon, rainbow and brown trout, red eye, large mouth and black and spotted bass, have been stocked in the lake. Visitors who care to see the techniques of artificial spawning should plan to visit the hatchery in October when the salmon run is at its highest.

While at Lake Oroville, plan to visit the twon of Oroville, which has a long and dostomgiosjed jhistory. Several reminders of its past are the Chinese Temple on Broderick Street next to the Feather River levee; the Pioneer Relics Museum, Montgomery Street near Memorial Hall; and the old rambling white C.F. Lott Home on Montgomery Street at 3rd Avenue.

ANOTHER attraction that draws visitors is thew Bidwell Bar Suspension Bridge, 12 miles northeast of town on the Oroville-Quincy highway.

VINEYARDS NEARBY



ONE OF THE scenic areas near Marin is the Napa Valley where the Mont LaSalle vineyards of Christian Brothers stand on the western slopes.

TOMALES INDIANS

Near Marshall,
There is this small graveyard,
Near the road,
And little wooden crosses;
A fresh bouquet of flowers,
Somewhere there in,
Almost every day.

Few are they,
The pure,
Like flowers, plants,
Originating here;
Belonging,
But never knowing where else;
Their big brown eyes;
Quiet intelligence,
Capable,
But at times reserved,
Always there;
You have to meet one,
To know these things;
Courteous,
Welcomed and worked
In the best of homes;
Interesting to talk to;
The few I knew,
Appreciation and equality,
Were easy and acceptable;
And married,
Mexican, Italian, Irish,
Racial mixtures,
Next of kin.

Indian bones are shells,
Of life and earth,
Like all souls,
Mutable into everything,
From the silence, thought,
Wind,
Tomales Indians,
Graves by the Bay!

POINT REYES — C. B. GEARHART

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

THE GARY BURTON QUARTET — "In Concert" — RCA LSP-3985; "A Genuine Tong Funeral" — RCA LSP-3988; "Country Roads & Other Places" — RCA LSP-4098:

Vibist Gary Burton and his group play jazz chamber music in the tradition of the Modern Jazz Quartet, though perhaps slightly more modern. Yet through some fluke he has become a hit with strickly rock fans. It's hard to understand, but more power to him, because this is a beautiful, cohesive and inventive jazz group.

The first two albums featured guitarist Larry Coryell, who on the thimrd has been replaced by San Francisco guitarist Jerry Hahn.

The live Carnegie Hall concert reminds me very much of the MJQ, though some of it is much less structured.

The Tong Funeral is the best of the bunch — a "Dark Opera Without Words" by Carla Bley, based on emotions toward death. While strictly instrumental, its ideas, both musical and literary, reminded me of the Brecht-Weill collaborations.

The third LP shows a bit of the country music influence.

CAGE: "Variation II;" POUSSEUR: "Three Faces of Liege;" BABBITT: "Ensembles for Synthesized" — Columbia MS 7051:

This disc in Columbia's "Music of Our Time" series presents recent electronic music by three leaders of the avant-garde in serious music.

In the Cage work, each of four amplified channels on the original tape were fed by both a contact mike attached to David Tudor's piano and a phono cartridge with items such as pipe cleaners and toothpicks inserted where the pickup stylus usually goes.

The variety of sounds drawn from this wired-up piano are surprising. The Henri Pousseur work might be considered a sort of modern-day Respighi tone-poem, describing three aspects of the Belgian city of Liege. It was commissioned by the city to accompany an outdoor light show by an artist,, but when the officials heard the far-out music they blew their stacks and opted for Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" instead! Babbitt's short piece has more life in it than most of this synthesizer-created music.

"THE GREAT TCHAIKOVSKY SYMPHONIES" (Nos. 4, 5 and 6) — Leonard Bernstein / The New York Philharmonic — Columbia D 3S 781:

There are now four packaged sets of all six Tchaikovsky symphonies, but no others of the famous last three in one box. This effort is somewhat in the nature of the Vox-Box series, except that Vox doesn't have old Lenny Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic. The price savings is similar, and if you already have the first three (especially in Dorati's fine Mercury packaging) this new album would be ideal to complete your set.

Now I feel I can finally retire my old mono discs of these three symphonies by the Leningrad Philharmonic. Nobody agrees on definitive - performances of these oft-heard works, but Bernstein stands up with the best of them except perhaps for No. 5 which is a bit dull. 4 and 6 have moments that on good equipment will stand your hair on end. Hey, that sounds like a criticism, but it's not.

Now Is Fall Planting Time

Fall is a big planting season in the Golden State.

Not only do Californians put in their spring gardens — the bulbs and annuals that will burst into bloom early next year — but they do as much permanent planting as possible.

THERE ARE many reasons for this, according to the California Association of Nurserymen. First, shrubs planted now can get a good head start. In October and November the soil is still warm enough to encourage vigorous root growth.

At the same time, cooler daytime temperatures make it easy on the plants. Winter rains eliminate the need for much watering, and by the time spring arrives you have established plants ready to support the vigorous new growth.

ANOTHER GOOD reason for planting now is that a good selection of landscape material is available. Your nurseryman is receiving shipments of conifers and broadleaf evergreens, some of which are obtainable only at this time of year.

Among them you'll find collector's items in rhododendrons and azaleas. These blooming beauties benefit greatly from fall planting, establishing themselves during the winter for a burst of glory in the spring.

MANY outstanding conifers (junipers, yews, cypress, pines, firs and cedars) are shipped to nurseries at this time. Hobbyists await this season to obtain harder-to-find specimens.

Other fine shrubs available balled and burlapped, or in containers — depending on the area in which you live — include fragrant daphnes, berried holly plants, camellias and mountain laurel.

With the exception of certain frost-tender plants, most all the trees and shrubs available can be planted now. Trees set-out this Fall will pub on up to several feet of growth over identical varieties planted next spring. This should be an inducement for the gardener who wants to shade an area of his home or patio.

Overshading Creates Problems

That tree providing abundant shade from the hot sun may be giving too much shade for its own good.

A tree expert says "if a tree's crown is too thick, twigs and branches die for lack of sufficient sunlight. And a top-heavy tree is a push-over when gale winds strike."

Overshade cuts off needed air and light to grass and plantings nearby.

TOO MUCH shade induces growth of mildews and molds on leaves of plants and garden furniture. Gray mold, fostered by heavy shade, attacks lilacs and other shrubs, causing leaves to dry up, stems to curl and twist.

To correct overshading, prune to open the crown of a tree to sunlight. Thin out excessive branches, cut back wayward ones, eliminate cross-over branches rubbing against each other, and eliminate hazardous branches overhanging sidewalks, drives or buildings.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Top dress rhododendrons, camellias and azaleas with an acid plant-type mulch recommended by your nurseryman.
- Use pots of blooming chrysanthemums to brighten the porch or patio — and to bring festive fall colors indoors.
- Top quality lily bulbs are available this month at G.A.N. nurseries. These modern hybrids perform beautifully in pots or in the ground. Give them a well-drained soil in partial sun or filtered shade.
- When shopping for daffodils, be sure to include some of the novelty types with two-tone cups or double, ruffled flowers.
- Remove fallen leaves and other debris from the garden. They serve as breeding places for garden pests and diseases.

DWARF CITRUS POPULAR

Interest in dwarf citrus continues to increase and this popularity is a tribute to the desirable features of the trees, rather than the result of any organized advertising campaign.

The desirable features are many. For the homeowner, the most happy feature of the dwarfs probably lies in the fact they bear orchard-size fruit, almost immediately.

In many nurseries, in fact, it is possible to obtain dwarfs in containers that will be in bloom or bearing fruit!

THIS INCLUDES several kinds of oranges, lemons, and grapefruit in addition to many other tasty edibles such as tangerines, tangelos, limes and kumquats. All are identical in size and flavor to standard size trees.

Another important advantage of dwarf citrus is the very fact of their dwarf size. Their compactness fits nicely into today's landscapes, including use on patios where the trees may be grown in containers, to add to the enjoyment of outdoor living.

THE DWARFS grow about one-fourth the size of orchard trees, yet many produce up to 75 per cent as much fruit. True dwarfs are created only by budding or grafting on dwarfing rootstocks.

The trees will grow to about eight feet in height and width. Those grown in containers tend to be smaller than those planted in the ground.

Dwarf citrus makes it possible for the city-dwelling gardener to have an evergreen orchard — to provide a wide range of flavorful fruits. The small space they require can be modified to provide optimum growing conditions.

If ground-planted, a location can usually be selected near a fence or wall to furnish reflected heat, if warmth is a factor in your area.

If grown in containers, they obviously can be given the most advantageous climactic spot during the four seasons.

In brief, they require sunshine, moisture, and plant food in amounts that are quite easy for home gardeners to supply.

Red On White

For a striking color accent against a white house, frame a wooden terrace or patio bench with two 10 or 12-inch clay pots of brilliant red-flowering geraniums.

FIRST PRIZE in the All-America Rose Selections competition this year went to a Hybrid Tea with shading from a deep rose-pink to light red. Its extra long buds, three to four inches, and its satiny open flower received acclaim.

Compost Pile Easy To Make, Helps Sandy And Heavy Soil

BY EARL ARONSON

A compost pile is a valuable addition to almost any garden Compost helps the soil. As does any form of humus, it gives body to sandy soil and retains moisture. It improves heavy soil by loosening it and discouraging compacting.

Compost spurs growth of bacteria, which help make fertilizers available and slowly release a small amount of plant food.

IT IS easy to make compost. Collect leaves, stems, vegetable tops from the kitchen and garden waste that does not harbor insects or diseases.

On a level site—preferable out of sight—make a six inch layer of this material, keeping the pile flat on top. Sprinkle a cupful of all-purpose fertilizer per bushel of waste and a bit of limestone.

ADD ANOTHER layer, as before, repeating the fertilizer sprinkling. At the same time, or as you gather material, add to the pile in the same way until it is four to five feet tall, keeping the top slightly hollowed to help retain rain and other moisture.

No cover is needed in warm weather. In winter, a sheet of black plastic tossed over the pile keeps in heat and moisture, and encourages decomposition later.

AFTER THREE months, if your heap was begun in spring or summer, turn over the pile. This mixes all the layers and materials. You can put this in a new pile, ready for use in two or three months. Water from time to time if the weather is dry.

For acid-soil plants, such as rhododendrons, keep the compost pile acid by using oak leaves and omitting lime.

Wax Plant Pleases When Grown Indoors

You'll take a shine to the glossy leaves and pink-white flowers of the Hoya carnosa or wax plant. It's one of many foliage plants that do nicely indoors.

The wax plant likes to dry out a bit between waterings, so keep it in a porous clay pot to provide even, natural drainage and prevent over-watering, cause of most house plant failures.

MAKING THIS Nativity Scene can spark many pleasant hours of complete relaxation for the entire family. The pattern shown above provides full size cutting guides for making the creche and the entire group of 11 figures. The stable, measuring 16 inches wide by 14 inches high is ideal for use on a table or below Christmas tree. Each figure is first traced on panelboard, then cut to exact shape of pattern. Painting guides on pattern can be traced, then painted colors pattern specifies. To add a realistic touch, spread straw or moss on the floor of the stable and on the platform outside. A colorful lighting effect can be achieved by concealing a single Christmas tree bulb in back of stable. Just send 75 cents to Independent-Journal P. O. Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y. 10510 and ask for Nativity Scene Pattern No. 31.

Tot's Toy Chest Easily Built

Decorative and versatile containers for toys, extra linen, blankets or what-have-you are easily-built foot lockers. Little space is needed for a locker at the foot of a bed, yet it nicely ends a clutter problem.

The rectangular boxes are especially good for children's rooms, but win places for themselves elsewhere, too. They'll blend right in with most decors, simply through choice of wood, finish and decoration.

PINE IS a prime selection, but fir, hemlock and cedar are suitable also. Building with lumber may involve a litle more fitting; results, however, will more than make up for a bit more effort.

Size may be tailored to needs and location. For the foot of the bed, a good size is 36 inches long, approximately 19 inches wide and 20 high.

A MODEST inventory of materials is required. The skeleton of the locker is formed with 1x2s, and sides, lid and bottom use 1x4s and 1x2s. Hardware includes two three-inch hinges, a latch, also handles and furniture gliders, if desired.

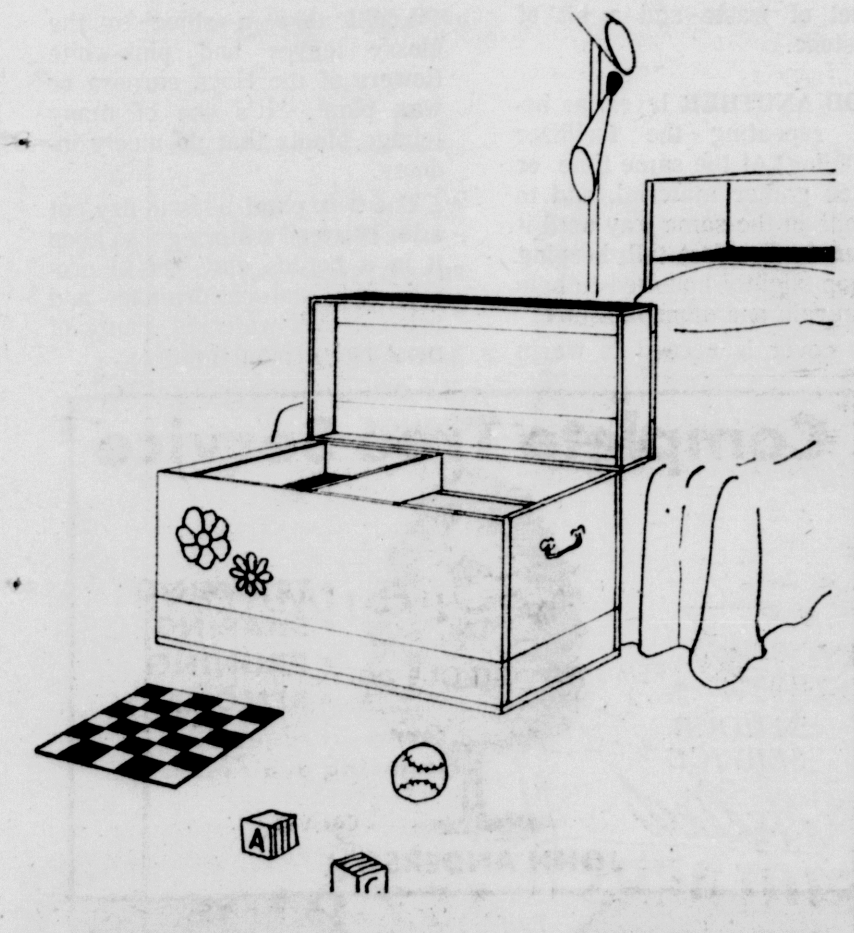
A box tray can be made of the same or thinner material, and installed to slide on two 1x2-inch strips fastened across front and back of the chest.

IF POSITIONED so that the top of the tray meets flush with the top of the chest sides, there will be clearance for the lid to close down, even when items stored in the tray are heaped.

Apply the first coat of stain to the locker before filling nail holes. Smearing plastic wood or putty on the unfinished sufface prevents stain from penetrating and results in an uneven finish.

The inside of the lid may be dressed up with a colorful contact paper, gaily patterned fabric or other decoration. At a final touch, cover a foam or padded seat cushion for the top to match the bedspread.

For detailed plans of toy chest write to Western Wood Products Assn., Dept. P-510, Yeon Bldg., Portland, Or. 97204 enclosing 15 cents in coin.



A FOOT LOCKER can be multi-purpose, serving for children's toys and other storage. A sliding half tray is convenient for small items, and the locker can be topped with form or padded cushion covered to match bedspread.

A Pencil Holder

For a pencil well in the home or office, paint a coffee can or a similar container. Wedge it into a piece of Masonite quarter-inch Peg-Board, cut to size with a keyhole or coping saw. Then prime and paint the perforated hardboard. The sharpened points fit into the holes, making pencil selection easy.

SELLING HOME?

Minor Improvements Could Hike Price

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — If your family is one of some 2.5 million Americans who will sell their homes this year, judicious investment of $100 or $200 and a little time and effort could add an extra $1,000 or more to the sale price.

While, generally, any major renovation is unwise if undertaken solely in the hopes of boosting the selling price of a house, there are numerous minor improvements that can make selling easier and bring a higher price.

FIRST impressions are lasting and, often, little things do count — far out of proportion to their real importance. Many people have a way of seeing things as they are, not as they could be.

If your kitchen, for instance, is a bit the worse for wear, pointing out to the prospective purchaser the really good appliances, the excellent work pattern and the good location for supervising the children won't do nearly as much as a fresh coat of paint or paper, crisp curtains at sparkling windows or a gleaming, waxed floor.

The Armstrong Cork Co., which makes building and home improvement products, says company research has shown the value of small amounts of money spent wisely for projects such as new shrubbery, a freshly painted front door and shutters, new flooring in kitchen or bath areas.

John R. Baldwin, manager of contract development for the company, says his personal experience bears this out. He has moved his family nine times in less than 18 years. Baldwin has some pertinent suggestions.

HE RECOMMENDS, first, that you try for "curb appeal" as the realtors refer to it. Be sure the lawn is cut and trimmed neatly, that shrubbery looks the way it should. Look at the property with an eye to little things — a mail box that needs painting or replacing, a fence that needs straightening, a gate hinge that needs tightening. Outdoor living areas should be "policed" and kept free of trash and clutter. Garage doors should be closed — and the inside neat.

Before you put a house up for sale is the time to weed out collections of "junk" in garage, basement and attic — and even in closets and cupboards. You might even do a little packing of unessentials ahead of time.

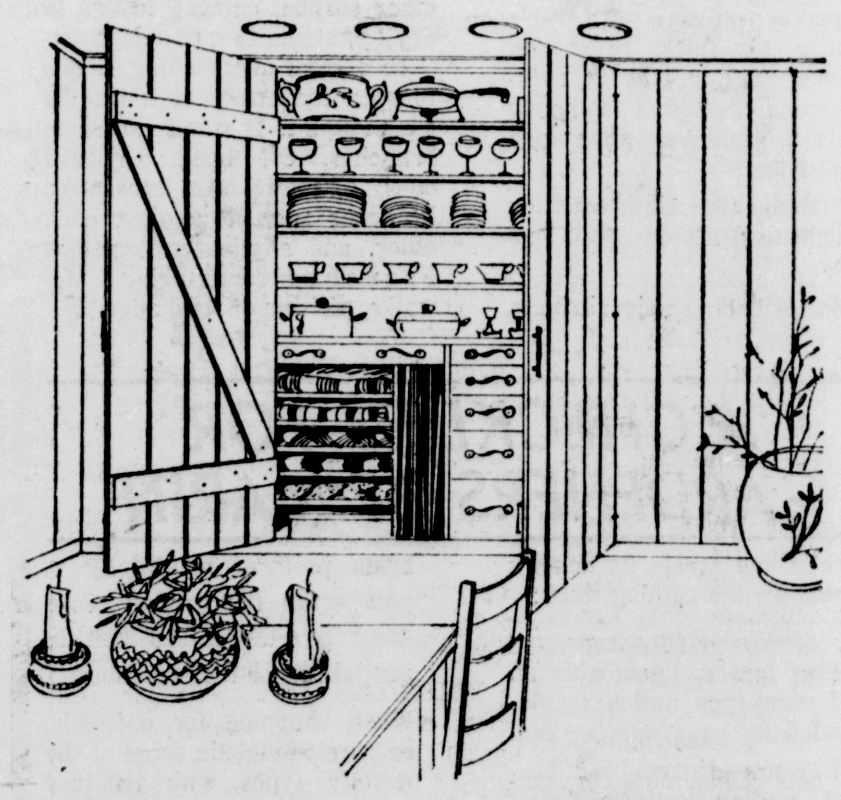
HOW IS the house exterior? Often fresh paint on doors, windows and trim such as railings can make a big difference. Screen doors and windows should be in good condition.

Inside, Baldwin suggests, go through the house with an eye for loose door knobs, sticking doors and windows, dripping faucets, burned out light bulbs, other minor flaws.

Although a house should look lived in, it's a good idea to go through rooms with the eye of a stranger. We all, at times, live with faded walls, scruffy woodwork, shabby furniture, but they are our own. Such things detract from the good points of a house.

ELIMINATE clutter. If rooms are small, or if you really have too much furniture, try removing a few pieces.

A VANISHING CLOSET



THIS CONCEALED closet is a superb storage idea for the dining room. Doors are built of tongue-and-groove boards and fit flush into the wall of paneling, so as to "disappear" when closed. The unit has adjustable shelves, linen trays, lined silver drawers, and compartments for trays and table pads.

Handyman's Pages

Storage Space Key To Room Livability

When a living room isn't used for everday living, something's wrong. And when your best friends prefer playing cards in the cluttery family room, it's time to get to work. Obviously your living room is unlivable.

People go where the action is. They read in the rooms holding bookcases, listen to music wherever the stereo tuner is located, and play cards at a table in a cozy corner. Return that action to the living room and it will quickly rival the family room for popularity.

NATURALLY you'll want the living room to be party-pretty, so dress it up to adult standards and keep the family room geared to children's activities.

Storage will be one key to success in redesigning the living room. An old-fashioned but always successful approach is to gather all storage needs together in one unit fashioned for a corner by the fireplace.

Then a cozy inglenook develops and the traditional grouping of furniture near the fireplace makes better sense.

Although the storage unit must be tailored for its contents, cabinetwork needn't be elaborate. A generous-size box works wonders when fitted with adjustable shelving and sectioned across its width to allow for a variety of needs. Some sections can be enclosed by doors, others left open.

The average family will need need open shelves for record albums, treasures, a portable TV, and books. But there' no need to provide shelving here for the entire library. Space for favorites, art books and current reading matter will suffice.

Behind doors will go the stereo equipment and shelving for playing cards, ash trays, coasters, party napkins, scratch pads and so forth.

It's effective to hang such a storage box on a paneled wall, matching the woods. Douglas fir boards, four or six inches wide, are a good choice for the wall covering, with wider boards used for the storage unit's frame and shelving. Doors can be cut from even wider "sheets" of solid edge-glued fir.

THE FINISH can be what you like. An accent of natural wood is never amiss in even the most formal living room. It can be the one ingredient that returns warmth to the room while the storage supplies the dimension of livability.

But if paint's the thing in your house, then paint the paneling using rough Douglas fir boards or V-joint panels to supply the texture of wood. The basically simple styling of the storage box can then be dressed up with moldings, painted and antiqued if desired.

STORAGE ROOM is the key to livability in a living room. The cozy storage nook created in this room is a unit added to a cedar-paneled wall. It was built box-style with adjustable shelves and sections of varying widths. By hinging doors to outside edge of uprights, cabinets were created.

Home Fire Hazards Should Be Checked

Even the most modern-looking home can be a "fire-trap."

It happens because homeowners are not sufficiently aware of the fire hazards that can actually be "built" into a house. The dangers might include: too few — or hard-to-reach — exits, faulty heating and electrical equipment, lack of "firestops," and use of combustible building materials in critical areas.

TO COMBAT these dangers — which yearly contribute to more than 1500 destructive home fires — the National Fire Protection Association urges homeowners to make a safety check of their residences and to eliminate any fire threats that may exist.

Here are some areas that deserve special attention. For further information on fire-safe homes, contact your local fire department or the NFPA, 60 Batterymarch Street, Boston, Mass. 02110.

ROOFS — The Association strongly recommends use of fire-resistant roofing materials with a Class C or higher rating. These include all asphalt shingles, tile, asbestos cement and asphalt rool roofing.

WALLS — Considerable fire-resistance is provided by noncombustible plaster walls and gypsum and cement-asbestos wallboards. The fire-threat of combustible wallboards can be reduced with fire-retardant paint.

DOORS — Solid, tight-fitting doors can hold back fire and smoke for several life-saving minutes. Hollow core doors offer virtually no fire barrier. All bedroom doors should be closed at night as a fire precaution.

WINDOWS — The safety formula here is that all windows should be large and low enough for quick escape, and easily opened even by children.

CHIMNEY — Bricks should be tight-set and uncracked, mortar in good condition. Combustible framing should be at least two inches away from chimney.

FIRESTOPS — These are barriers between wall studs, floor joists, and ceiling rafters designed to block or slow the passage of smoke, heat and flames. Dangerous open areas can be "firestopped" by nailing two-inch thick lumber into the openings or by filling the space with bricks and mortar.

Screening Is Key To Privacy

building a fence along the street is an obvious answer, and it's a sensible one, too. Fences don't need time to grow, as a hedge does, nor do they require space or demand watering and pruning. A street screening can transform an ordinary front yard to a gracious entrance court.

While construction time is short, it's smart to figure several weeks of planning, for the choice in fence patterns is abundant.

SLAT SCREENS, built with one by ones, one by twos, two by twos, or a combination, are currently tops in popularity. A deceptively light look belies their opaque quality, and slat screens adapt well to both formal and informal landscaping.

Easy to build, the basic pattern has one by ones or one by twos face-sailed vertically to the edges of fence rails or, in a horizontal application, across the face of posts.

Maximum span distance is three feet. To carry a vertical application, a six-foot-high fence should have three rails. For a horizontal application, four by four-inch posts should be spaced six feet on center, with a two by four line post set between pairs of four by fours.

ON A SLOPING site, sections of the fence can be stepped down, keeping top rails perfectly straight and level. A horizontal pattern is especially good here, since slats can be carried straight across, from section to section, despite a step-down in panels.

Many homeowners find it easiest to build slat screens in place, nailing the cedar or fir one by ones directly to rails or posts. But full-size panels also can be built in the workshop, with slats fastened to nailing strips and completed panels then attached to the waiting framework.

Inside the yard — anything goes. Try a courtyard approach substituting flagstone paving for lawn and widening shrub borders to accommodate a variety of materials.
